Canada Threatens to Cancel Game

MOSCOW (UPI) — Team Canada said today it was prepared to cancel Thursday's tie-breaking match in the eight-game hockey series if a new dispute with Soviet hockey officials were not resolved.

"We're quite prepared to cancel the game if the Russians do not live up to the agreement," said Joe Kryczka, a Calgary attorney who is president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

He referred to an agreement the Canadians thought they had made with the Russians Monday that two West German referees who officiated in Sunday's game here would not work any others in the series. The referees, Franz Baader and Joseph Kompalla, came under heavy Canadian criticism after the game, which Canada won 3-2.

Kryczka said the Russians now wanted the Germans to officiate at the tie-breaker.

Because of the Germans officiating in Tuesday's game, the Canadians played short-handed for 17 minutes while serving a total of 10 penalties — including a major to Phil Esposito and a 10-minute misconduct to Bobby Clarke — to only two for the Russians.

Kryczka told newsmen after an afternoon meeting at the V.I. Lenin ice rink that the Russians said they never agreed the West Germans would not officiate at the last two games — only that they would not handle Tuesday's contest.

The Canadians won that game 4-3, to even the series at 3-1. The referees were Rudolph Batja of Czechoslovakia and Uwe Dalberg of Sweden — the men Canada wants to officiate at the final match.

There was no word after today's meeting when the two sides would meet again to discuss the dispute. One Canadian source said it was possible they would get together tonight.

Speculation here was that the situation would be resolved by a compromise with one of the West German referees working with one of the other pair.

UIC Deficit No Scandal — Trudeau

Times News Services

Prime Minister Trudeau admitted Tuesday in Medicine Hat that the Unemployment Insurance Fund is running a deficit into "several hundred millions of dollars," but denied it is a scandal.

During a question and answer session, Trudeau was forced for the first time in this campaign to defend the fund's deficit as a result of the current high unemployment rate.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has called the deficit a national scandal, and although he has defended other aspects of the unemployment insurance administration, the prime minister until Tuesday had avoided answering this specific charge.

During the question and answer period, attended by about 700 mostly friendly residents of the area, Trudeau was asked if the Unemployment Insurance Fund is in trouble.

It is not, the prime minister replied, even though there is a sizeable deficit.

He noted that some of the opposition have tried to make this a campaign issue, but insisted that the deficit was foreseen, given the high rate of unemployment, under recent changes in the legislation approved by the House of Commons.

I know it (the deficit) is into several hundred million dollars, but I don't see any scandal in that — that's the way the act was made," he stated.

The prime minister explained that under the new legislation, the federal government pays 100 per cent of the benefits — "gobs of money," he called it — when the unemployment rate exceeds four per cent.

He said that the exact amount of the deficit will be made known when the unemployment insurance commission makes its regular report.

He added he believed such reports are made four times a year.

Meanwhile, the Toronto Star says federal manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey has documents tending to disprove election campaign charges that the government's new unemployment insurance program contributes to unemployment by encouraging idlers to freeload.

The newspaper says in an Ottawa story an internal dossier claims that more rigorous examination of eligibility in the 12 months up to last Aug. 1 resulted in 742,000 claims for benefits being disallowed — an increase of 89 per cent over the previous 12-month period.

The Star says the dossier will be used by Mr. Mackasey in a stepped up defence of the insurance scheme, which has become a major campaign issue amid charges that administration is lax and benefits are so high that many prefer not to work.

Robert Stanfield met students, housewives, shopkeepers and a dog named Trudeau Tuesday in a varied day that saw him fly almost 1,000 miles to speak in support of one candidate.

The Conservative leader spoke on a radio program, conducted a brief interview, addressed his first meeting of university students of the federal election campaign and

Lewis Adds Mac-Blow To 'Bums' List

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. doesn't rate as high on David Lewis' list of "corporate welfare bums" as some corporations, "but it certainly knows how to take advantage of the corporate welfare system established for it by the Liberals and Conservatives."

Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, zeroed in on MacMillan Bloedel today in response to a statement Tuesday by J. V. Clynne, the chairman of the giant forest products company.

Clynne called on his fellow corporate chiefs to mount a vocal defence against NDP criticism of tax concessions to industry, saying Lewis was suggesting that major companies are "acting disreputably."

Lewis stepped off his aircraft in Vancouver Tuesday and eagerly welcomed news of the counter attack against his "corporate ripoff" campaign theme which is mounting among big business.

Told of Clynne's statement Lewis said he was "delighted."

"I would expect Mr. Clynne to be upset," said the NDP leader.

At a news conference today

the NDP leader stressed that he is not suggesting that corporations are being devious or are doing something illegal.

"We are not attacking the corporations; we are attacking the system which allows corporations to legally avoid paying their way," he said. "The only way one can dramatize what I am trying to say is by naming names and giving figures."

23.8 PER CENT

Lewis said he had checked with the NDP's research department and was told that between 1964 and 1971 MacMillan Bloedel had net earnings of $812.9 million on which it paid income tax of $193.2 million, for an effective tax rate of 23.8 per cent.

"If we had had real tax reform in 1971 and had closed the loopholes I am concerned about, Clynne's hard-pressed company would have paid something near the 48 per cent it is theoretically supposed to pay."

"I suspect the ordinary taxpayers of British Columbia had to pick up this shortfall... not only individuals but also large and small businesses in the manufacturing field."

Turner Praises Monetary Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Finance Minister John Turner welcomed the United States' monetary reform proposals today as constructive and helpful.

Turner, addressing the International Monetary Fund and World Bank meetings, said he detected that delegations are "anxious and determined to press on with the work" of reforming the international payments system.

Turner then spoke of the problem of adjusting national currencies against other world currencies.

"There is a natural tendency for countries to give prime place to domestic stability, especially when in balance of payments surplus," he said. "But this tendency can lead to distortions in the international system. All of us must manage somehow to find that combination of our economic policy instruments which will not only satisfy our legitimate domestic objectives but also induce appropriate balance of payments adjustments."

The proposals were met with some hope in Europe, concern in Japan and moderate enthusiasm in the U.S.

"We will no longer sit back and be a patois as we have in the past," said M. E. Norman, an investments counselor in Houston. "It is a positive step to strengthen the dollar and it was anticipated." Sources in Brussels reported Europeans — particularly the French — are not eager to downgrade the role of gold. Also, they have rejected the link between monetary reform and trade reform insisted upon by Washington.

In Japan, the Mainichi Daily said finance ministry and Bank of Japan officials termed the plan "too bold for America's self-interest." They said the proposals would hit Japan on both "monetary and trade fronts."

Fourth Victim For Strangler

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — A fourth teen-age boy was attacked by a stranger Tuesday in a field in Waterloo.

The boy, 14, was crossing the field at about 10:30 p.m. when a man leaped at him, seizing him by the throat. The boy was able to fight off his attacker and was not choked into unconsciousness as were the first three victims.

NO ONE GETS PEACE PRIZE

OSLO (AP) — The Norwegian Nobel Prize committee announced today it has decided not to award a Peace Prize this year.

A Nobel Committee spokesman gave no official reason for this year's decision. The prize money, approximately $100,000, will be kept in the Nobel fund.

Tanzania Troops Spotted

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — A Ugandan military spokesman said late Tuesday that a large convoy of vehicles carrying Tanzanian troops had been spotted moving through northern Tanzania towards the Ugandan border villages of Mutukula and Nigakati.

He added, in a statement broadcast by the government radio here, that boats "suspected to be carrying troops" had also been seen heading for the eastern Ugandan town of Tororo from Musoma, on the southern shore of Lake Victoria.

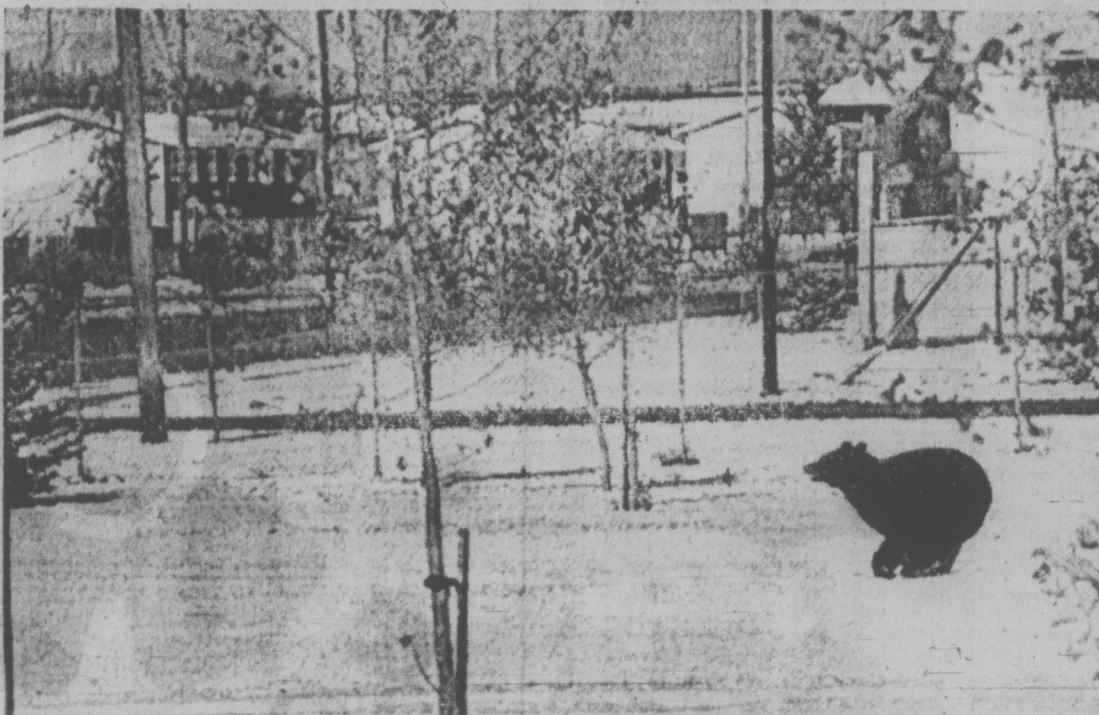

The spokesman warned: "If this is another planned provocation by Tanzania, the Uganda government should not be blamed for any repercussions that might come as a result of the movement of troops from Tanzania towards Uganda."

Less than 12 hours earlier the spokesman had claimed that India, Zambia and Tanzania were collaborating to plan a new attack on Uganda.

In Dares Salaam, a Tanzanian spokesman today denied the latest Ugandan assertions.

An Indian High Commission spokesman has "categorically denied" this charge. He said, "The Uganda government has been misinformed, and there is no foundation to these allegations."

Both invasion claims followed Tuesday's reported statement by Somalia's foreign minister, Omer Arteh Ghalib, broadcast by Radio Uganda, that he was "satisfied" with the outcome of his mediation between Uganda and Tanzania.

BAREFOOTING through Calgary's first big snow of the season, a country visitor flees from famous western hospitality. Police with tranquillizer guns and shotguns pursued the full-grown black bear through city streets until he finally made a getaway back to the wilderness.

Did Signal Tip-Off School?

Saturna Island Free School residents had a signal system in operation which warned them when health officials were about to inspect the premises, Victoria county court was told Tuesday.

The school was closed last fall for alleged unsanitary conditions and is appealing the closure.

Senior medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread was asked by the school's counsel, William Sigurson of Vancouver, why he had used an RCMP launch to pay a surprise visit to the school June 18, 1971.

Whitbread replied that it was necessary because every time he boarded a ferry at Swartz Bay a warning signal was sent to the school, triggering "rapid action to clean the place up."

He said that when he, four RCMP officers and public health inspector Daryl Anderson arrived, "we actually caught them with their pants down."

Whitbread described the school buildings as being "dirty and filthy." He said bottles, blankets and garbage were strewn on the floors. There were dirty dishes in the kitchen, he said, and traces of grease on kitchen counters.

Although there was food in the refrigerator, Whitbread said he wouldn't want to eat it because the doors and shelves were dirty.

There appeared to be no regular meals served, he said, and children seemed to be helping themselves to bread and cheese.

Victoria dentist Eugene Kaellis, whose son and daughter both attended the school, testified that he was "rather fussy about cleanliness" and had been completely satisfied when he visited the school.

Jim Campbell, whose property adjoins the school's site, also testified on behalf of the school.

FIRECRACKER SALE BANNED

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald announced today he has banned the sale of firecrackers to the general public.

The minister said the ban, effective immediately, will restrict the use of firecrackers to persons licensed to use display fireworks under new conditions that will be implemented in the next few months.

The change will be made by tightening regulations applying to fireworks under the Canada Explosives Act.

Firecrackers already are banned by all Greater Victoria municipalities and some others across the country, but have been ineffective because they have not been applied universally.

U.S. Money Plan 'Revolutionary'

By HOBART ROWEN
The Washington Post
An Analysis

WASHINGTON — The United States seized the initiative on the question of monetary reform Tuesday, suggesting a bold six-point program that would end the special reserve role of the dollar and establish mandatory international rules to force necessary changes in exchange rates.

Treasury Secretary George Shultz presented the plan as a set of "ideas," rather than a "detailed blueprint." But its revolutionary sweep, as well as its detailed nature, was a big surprise for his audience, the delegates of the annual meeting of the World Bank and International Monetary Fund.

The average citizen would not see much of an impact from great changes in the monetary system, but would stand to benefit from the absence of repeated monetary crises if the reforms worked.

The underlying theme of the American suggestion is this: In contrast to the Bretton

Woods monetary system which allowed changes in exchange rates only when a nation's currency was in "fundamental disequilibrium," the American plan calls for compulsion to force changes, according to pre-determined rules, "and under appropriate international surveillance," when things get out of line.

The most important test would be the level of a nation's reserves. If they got to be too high, a nation would be expected to revalue its currency. If it resisted, it would be subject to certain sanctions — including an import surcharge put in effect by others.

Shultz made clear that no one could expect quick resolution of the "difficult, complicated, and controversial issues" that he had raised.

To get "stability without rigidity," Shultz organized his suggestions into these six headings:

The exchange rate regime — there should be a "central" or "par value fixed for each country, with those values assured by convertibility into "other international assets."

To dampen speculation, the allowable margin should be "sufficiently wide," with the dollar, like other currencies floating within that range.

The reserve mechanism — the SDRs (Special Drawing Rights) would replace the dollar as the "numeraire" of the system — that is, the unit in which other currencies are denominated. Gold would "not disappear overnight" but diminish in importance.

The balance of payments adjustment process — this is the heart of the proposal and

Airline Seeks $75 Overseas Fare

Times News Service
WASHINGTON — A major U.S. charter airline asked the civil aeronautics board today to approve a $75 one-way air fare ticket for flights on a New York to London "sky bus."

Trans International Airlines said the sky bus would operate on a daily basis using 345-passenger DC-10 jetliners and 250-passenger DC-8 jetliners.

According to TIA president Henry P. Huff, the airline would offer passengers a "no frill service." But he said the $75 one-way fare would be open "to all ages during any season of the year and would not be governed by present excursion flight restrictions."

On Tuesday, Britain approved an $81 one-way Trans-Atlantic fare for Laker Airways, a small British airline. Laker still must gain CAB approval before it can operate its planned "skytrain" to the United States.

Under the proposal, passengers would not be able to book in advance. They would simply arrive at Stanstead Airport near London, or John F. Kennedy Airport in New York, and purchase a ticket for the next scheduled flight.

A spokesman for Air Canada said he was surprised by the government decision. He anticipated that most of those using the new service would be students or retired persons who might not be concerned if a flight was not available at the time they wanted it.

An Air Canada official stressed, however, that if Laker should develop a full shuttle service, this would cause extreme alarm among regular commercial airlines.

A spokesman for Laker Airways, the company planning to run the new operation, said he is confident the numbers of persons who have to be turned away because flights are full will be small.

If Laker wins U.S. approval, and most officials here believe this is almost certain, the company will begin with one daily flight in each direction between London and New York in winter, with an extra four flights a week in summer.

One-way flights in winter months will cost slightly more than $80. One-way tickets in summer months will be about $92. A regular one-way winter fare to New York from London now is about $215. In summer the summer fare is $290 and up, and the between-season fare now is about $240.

Laker plans to use DC-10 aircraft in summer with a capacity of 345 passengers. Boeing 707 planes will be used in winter with a capacity of about 158.

"If the demand for this service genuinely outstrips the supply of aircraft, we hope to go back to the governments concerned at a later date and request an increased number of flights," a Laker spokesman said.

The company, headed by Freddie Laker, a former president of British United Airways, foresees a "shuttle service" some time in future.

WIDOW WINS SUIT

A Saanich widow has been awarded $56,500 damages for the loss of her husband and for injuries to herself in a two-car collision April 5, 1969, at the Qualicum turnoff on the highway to Port Alberni.

Mrs. June Olive Sekkemo, 1430 Simon, received facial and other injuries in the crash that killed her husband, Soren Magnus Sekkemo, and three others.

In a B.C. Supreme Court civil trial heard in Victoria, Mr. Justice R. A. B. Wootton ruled that the driver of one of the vehicles, Richard Lafond of Nanaimo, was responsible for the accident. Lafond, 22, was also killed.

Mrs. Sekkemo was awarded $14,000 for the loss of her husband and $42,500 for her injuries.

Real Caouette celebrated his 53rd birthday Tuesday by charging that some regional expansion funds are pouring into Liberal election coffers.

Talking to reporters after receiving a birthday cake at the Winnipeg Press Club, the Social Credit leader said big corporations are receiving regional expansion grants and some of this money is helping to finance the $5 million to $8 million Liberal campaign.

They are giving millions of dollars to rich industries," he said.

Part of this money is used to help the Liberal Party to maintain their campaign to get into power in Canada.

He said rich corporations are channelling money into the Liberal and Conservative party election funds to be sure they have feet in both camps.

Liberals Support Sign-Off

Victoria's Liberal candidate took up the Tory "sign-off" challenge today, saying "We shall not despoil the scenery."

Lawn signs have never been a feature of our campaigns," said David Groos in reply to an announcement by Allan McKinnon that his Conservative campaign would be kept off the grass.

McKinnon called lawn signs "political pollution" and challenged other federal candidates to follow his lead.

"I've had no election signs in Victoria in the last three campaigns," he said, "this is a garden city and we'll not despoil the scenery."

Campbell, a former president of the B.C. School Trustees Association and outer Gulf Islands director on the Capital Regional District Board, said he had visited the school frequently.

One of these visits was in May, 1969, two days after he had received a copy of a health inspection report which he termed "vicious to some extent."

He described his impressions of the school "quite favorable." He said that although the buildings were shoddy, with chipped woodwork, conditions were "very clean."

William Sheffield, a staff member and director of the school, said he was given no reason for the notice to close, which he received in August, 1971.

He said that at the time he was given notice, he had two staff members working full time cleaning, scrubbing and polishing because the school felt itself under constant danger of closure.

Sheffield said that in June and July, 1969, he received a letter and visit from Whitbread. A number of complaints were listed and he was given a time limit to remedy the situation.

In November of that year, he said, Whitbread sent another letter in which he wrote: "Certain requirements outlined in our letter which cannot be met by you will not be enforced."

Sheffield said conditions had kept improving right up to the time of closure.

He said he had to refund money to parents of students who had been enrolled to start in the fall. This money, he said, had already been spent on improving the premises.

the weather

British Columbia suffered through another very cold night with new record low temperatures for September established in several areas. Coldest overnight was the Cariboo where lows dipped down to around 15 degrees. However, milder air is flooding across the northern Pacific and over the Alaska Panhandle this morning but this air is moister than the air now over B.C. Skies are clouding over in the northern half of the province and the cloud will spread to southern areas early Thursday. Some rain will accompany the cloud as it spreads across the province with central areas likely to have wet snow. Moderating temperatures are expected in all areas with lows tonight near 40 on the coast and in the thirties in the interior. Afternoon highs Thursday will be mostly in the upper fifties. However, cooler air will continue to give highs near forty to the central interior.

Options Many, Varied For Peninsula Growth

Five alternatives for future residential development on southern Vancouver Island are outlined in a report released today by the Capital Regional District's planning department.

The report makes no recommendation as to which of the alternatives should be selected.

The choices given by the planners:

1. Continuing present policies, or making some modifications;

2. Directing residential development into the Highlands;

3. Directing development into Langford, Colwood and Metcheson;

4. Increasing development on the Saanich Peninsula and in the urban core;

5. Establishing satellite towns in Central Saanich and Colwood.

"At this stage it is not possible to say which of the alternatives best fulfills residential land use needs. Each has some advantages and disadvantages.

"However, those which are considered inappropriate should be eliminated at the outset so that attention can be focused on the remainder," the report says.

One of the alternatives, or parts of several of them, could be selected as a residential land use pattern to form the basic framework of a new regional plan.

"Some uniform policy is necessary in order to assure that events which take place in one area do not adversely affect people who live in another," the report says.

The satellite-town alternative ran into quick opposition from Central Saanich Mayor Archibald Galbraith.

The towns would accommodate 30,000 people, at Latoria in Colwood and Turgoose Point (an Indian reserve) in Central Saanich.

Galbraith called the alternative "a planner's dream."

He said the municipality already has a plan which will keep it five-sixths rural by the turn of the century.

He felt it would be a waste of good agricultural land and would deprive merchants already established in Sidney of local business.

Discussing the urban areas, the report envisages the Saanich population increasing to 143,100 from 65,100 by the turn of the century. Saanich planners, the report says, estimate that up to 226,000 people could be accommodated within urban containment areas.

Victoria's population would rise to 89,900 from 60,900 but continuation of present policies "will mean that the city will remain the economic and social focus of the region."

If present policies are continued, it would be possible for Oak Bay to grow to 34,400 from 18,400. The report noted that in the last 10 years, 60 per cent of residential construction was for multiple-family dwellings.

Esquimalt could grow from 12,900 to 21,400.

The report is expected to be discussed at regional board meetings next month.

REPORT 'LEAK' IRKS DIRECTOR

A director of the Capital Regional District board said today it was "totally irresponsible" for someone to have publicly leaked a planning department report on alternative residential land uses.

The report was officially released this morning, following an earlier unauthorized release. The report was due to be made public later this week, after regional board directors got their copies.

Jim Campbell, director representing the Outer Gulf Islands, was one of a number of directors yet to get a copy in the mail.

"It was totally irresponsible for one of the directors — I don't know who leaked it — but I will want to know," he said from his Saturna Island home.

"I don't believe in secrecy. I have attempted to have this matter discussed at the board. I just happened to pick up a paper and there was a complete report.

"If it was one of the staff, and I don't believe it is, he should be severely reprimanded.

"If it was an elected person, he should apologize to the rest of the board and make an undertaking not to do this sort of thing.

"I certainly will bring it up at the regional board if no one else does. I have already expressed my concern to the chairman and the executive director."

Director Raps Library Study

A community interest survey which found that most adults and students were in favor of a public library in a proposed high school at Burnside and Acorn was labelled "suspect" Tuesday.

Donald Miller, director of library services, said at a meeting of the Greater Victoria Public Library's board:

"There are lots of things in this survey that are suspect. The survey asks all sorts of questions but doesn't come up with the answers."

The survey, designed to determine the recreational and social needs of people in the area of the proposed high school, was commissioned by members of the Community Advisory Group, Saanich's municipal planning department and the Greater Victoria School Board's research and testing division.

Sixty per cent of 552 men questioned had said they would use a public library if it were located in the proposed school. Sixty-eight per cent of the women said they would, 66.7 per cent of the students.

Saanich Ald. Alan Newberry said he was pleased to see people putting libraries above "swimming pools and more traditionally glamorous types of things."

Esquimalt Ald. Art Mebs said he couldn't see the feasibility of placing public libraries in schools of an urban community.

Chairman Brian Tobin said libraries should be placed where people go, whether it be shopping centres or elsewhere. He pointed out that the new Victoria-Saanich branch library was only a mile away from the school site.

It was agreed that the use and services of the new branch should be assessed before considering putting a branch in the school, which Miller said he understood could be ready as early as 1974 if approved.

In other business: —Miller told the board that former B.C. Centennial Committee chairman J. J. Wallace probably would officially open the new library 2:30 p.m. Oct. 16.

The sum of $1,000 was voted to hire a temporary clerk at the Oak Bay branch from Oct. 1 to Dec. 31. Miller said book circulation at the branch had reached a record 15,235 in August, almost rivaling the Saanich branch level.

It was agreed to use $5,000, received from the University of Victoria for a Canadian fiction collection, to buy other books.

The board voted to spend up to $2,000 on construction of an office for the head of the main library's circulation department.

—Miller was asked to report on possible sites for a branch library in Gordon Head. Allowance for such a branch would be included in the 1973 budget.

Now It's Victoria General Hospital

A senior spokesman for doctors hinted in Victoria Tuesday that major changes are on the way across Canada in the delivery of health care.

Dr. Peter Banks, past president of the B.C. Medical Association and president-elect of the Canadian and British Medical Associations, was speaking at the official renaming of Victoria General Hospital.

"Large changes in the pattern of our work are on the horizon and we look forward to working harmoniously as a functioning unit in this city's health system with the new provincial government under a strong and independent and informed regional board," he said.

"It would appear that those who plan this nation's health care intend to make us, the doctors, no longer the servants of our patients but rather the servants of the state, and that we might well have progressive difficulty in putting the interests of our individual patients before that of the state."

Before 30 onlookers, including a dozen Sisters of St. Ann, Banks unveiled a plaque just inside the hospital entrance, a tribute from the medical staff to the Order which founded the former St. Joseph's Hospital in 1876.

Said Banks: "I have walked the wards of this hospital for nearly 20 years, and at all hours of the night and day I have seen the Sisters working within the hospital in many capacities, and on no occasion have I ever seen their dedication or their kindness falter."

The Sisters turned the 430-bed hospital over to the community earlier this year. It now is operated by the public Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society.

It was renamed Queen Victoria Hospital by the society's board, but the annual meeting in April voted in favor of the name Victoria General Hospital.

John Murray, acting executive director, said Tuesday in his remarks that retiring of the name St. Joseph's Hospital was the wish of the Sisters. The St. Joseph's School of Nursing will retain that name and the hospital's chapel will continue to be known as St. Joseph's Chapel, to be used by all clergy and for all faiths.

A Glimmer of Light?

There may be a new ray of hope for a Vietnam peace in the latest proposal by Hanoi that both sides should agree to guarantees that would prevent domination of the South Vietnam government by either. The new element is that the Communists appear willing to settle for less than control of the Southern government "during the transitional period."

United States policy has been that prevention of such control was a major objective of American force in Vietnam. If this aspect has now been eased, Washington is left with still less reason for sustaining the Saigon government and the fighting.

It is perhaps too much to expect that the proposition is simple and open. But it is certainly another step toward the middle ground on which a settlement must eventually be reached. There have been hints in recent weeks that something may be brewing in the way of agreement—something not evident on the battlefield of Vietnam or in the conference room in Paris.

Certainly, President Nixon would be quick to embrace a solution that would top off his presidential campaign with an opportunity to fulfill his promise to get all the troops home and bring about peace. Most of the first part of his undertaking has been accomplished. And on many occasions he has seemed willing—at least in speeches—to call it quits if proper guarantees were made for return of American prisoners.

The United States official support for the South Vietnam regime, while still effective, is certainly much cooler than it was, and therefore much more open to a compromise offer. It could be that we shall shortly see an end to the most unrewarding and unpopular war in which the United States ever engaged. It would be a relief to the whole world if this present tragic charade were terminated.

Dr. Leon Koerner

Death in Vancouver Monday did not end the story of Dr. Leon Koerner, the Czech refugee who found Canada good to him and returned the favor in full measure. His story will live on in the benefits that he bestowed on the province which he came to know as home.

They include gifts totalling $1 million to the University of B.C. for a faculty club building and a graduate student centre. He donated $25,000 for a UBC eye research centre. He gave innumerable grants, in the name of the Leon and Thea Koerner Foundation, from the $1 million with which it was created. Much of the fund was devoted to cultural assistance in the province, and such institutions as the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria knew his generosity.

Dr. Koerner saw his contributions merely as grateful returns of the wealth which British Columbia had provided for him. But that wealth was the result of Dr.

Koerner's own initiative and efforts, for he pioneered in the utilization of hemlock which he made known as Alaska pine, and he also pioneered in the provision of many benefits for his employees in the woods and mill which he operated.

Dr. Koerner was a man who had experienced hardships and he appreciated the advantages and opportunities which Canada offered. His determination to share his success with his adopted country set an example of citizenship for all industrialists.

The Lingering Voice

It has remained for Social Credit to add a new twist to the old political custom of finding a remunerative job for a party supporter when he has been defeated in an election. This time, supporters have been found jobs when the whole government has been defeated.

A former minister, Dan Campbell, has been appointed to a top research position on the Opposition staff. Another former minister, Grace McCarthy has ordered her own appointment as a research assistant.

There will be arguments about the timing of the orders-in-council for these appointments, about the constitutional right of the outgoing cabinet to make such appointments, about the letter of the law, and other technical matters.

But the aspect of the matter that will most strike the average citizen will be the question of propriety. Is this the sort of last-minute grab that, morally, a defeated government should make? And apart from the public money that is involved, isn't it somewhat of a thumb-to-nose gesture by a regime that failed on election day to earn public approval?

Co-operation to Beat Terror

WASHINGTON — The United States is going to carry the fight against terrorism and anarchy in world communications to the United Nations in the next couple of weeks and try to make this a major test, not only of the world organization but of the "basic principles" signed by President Nixon and Chairman Brezhnev of the Soviet Union four months ago.

The problem is clear enough. Normal diplomatic intercourse between the nations has been violated repeatedly by the harassment, kidnapping and even murder of diplomats during the last few years.

Not only diplomats but ordinary citizens cannot be sure when they enter an airplane these days that it won't be hijacked, diverted and threatened with destruction in the air. An evening out on the town for Henry Kissinger is no longer merely a social occasion but a military operation, with cops watching the kitchen and the doors.

All international meetings, whether of athletes, diplomats or businessmen, are subject to this terror, and now the postal services of the world are being used to send explosive devices to Israeli embassies, where the mail has to be sifted by experts in bullet-proof vests.

Challenge to UN

Secretary of State William Rogers, whose quiet efforts to deal with this problem have failed, is now going to challenge the U.N., and especially the Soviets and the other permanent members of the U.N. Security Council, to agree to tough new regulations to punish the hijackers and bomb-throwers and those who finance and protect them.

He will propose that the members of the U.N. agree not to provide arms and money to organizations engaged in this international banditry, and mainly that they agree to extradite or punish sky-jackers and cut off air traffic with any nation that refuses to co-operate.

He has tried this before without success, but next week he intends to call on the U.N. for effective action, and much depends on whether in the meanwhile he can persuade the Soviet Union, China, Britain, France and the other major commercial airline nations to go along.

This will be an interesting test of the Nixon-Brezhnev "basic principles" signed in the Kremlin last May 29. The third article of that declaration said: "The U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. have a special responsibility, as do other countries which are permanent members of the United Nations Security Council, (China, Britain, and France) to do everything in their power so that conflicts or situations will not arise which would serve to increase international tensions. Accordingly, they will seek to promote conditions in which all nations will live in peace and security."

Well, the big five of the U.N., except China, have the biggest commercial air fleets in the world. They not only have a "special responsibility" to try to bring some order into international air travel, but together they could go a long way toward discouraging sky-jackers if they refused to fly into any nation that refused to extradite or punish them.

WILLIAM ROGERS
... challenges the U.N.

So far, the Brezhnev regime in Moscow, while deploring skyjacking, has shown little interest in withdrawing its air traffic from Cuba, Algeria, or the Arab states, which are the usual destinations of gunmen who blackmail the airlines and take over the planes, but Rogers is going to make a public issue of the problem anyway.

Protecting the mails and international meetings from political terrorists is a harder problem, and here about all Rogers can do is to urge extradition or punishment of those who are caught. But it is easier to stop commercial air travel to nations that refuse to co-operate than it is to withhold all postal service.

Nevertheless, the first "basic principle" in the Nixon-Brezhnev agreement is that the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. will be "guided by their obligations under the UN Charter" and as Secretary of State Rogers says, "if the United Nations won't apply its principles to this international anarchy, I don't know what it will do."

Counter-Punch

The trouble with this argument, of course, is that once the American Secretary of State raises the question of imposing the principles of the Charter and defending human rights, he is likely to be asked to apply those principles to the war in Vietnam, and to the misery of the refugees in the Middle East and Southeast Asia, and this is not his favorite subject.

In fact, it may be that a private appeal by President Nixon to Brezhnev, Chou En-lai, Prime Minister Heath, and President Pompidou would have a better chance of success than a public challenge in the United Nations.

The Soviet Union is facing the worst agricultural problem since the 40's, and Nixon has agreed to sell it over a quarter of the American wheat crop at favorable prices to get Brezhnev over a very difficult political and economic problem.

Under these circumstances, it is not unreasonable for the President to ask that the Nixon-Brezhnev agreement of last May be applied to the world communications crisis, even if this leads to a serious debate on the war in Vietnam, which should probably have been held at the U.N. long ago anyway.

"... now, let's go over that again ... the one with the ribbon tied to it is your left leg ..."

DAVID HUMPHREYS

New Europe, New Problems

LONDON — Finance Minister John Turner displayed clear understanding of a really fundamental European issue when he urged the British not to be more European than the Europeans, more Catholic than the Pope. His characterization would have been slightly more accurate if he had suggested they not be more French than President Pompidou, though that would take some stretching.

Mr. Turner seized an opportune time to make his point while attending the Commonwealth finance ministers conference. He accepted the inevitable, that Canada would suffer some short-term trade disadvantages upon expansion of the Common Market next year, but he hoped Britain would soon prosper in an outward-looking Europe.

The face-saving summit meeting of present and prospective Common Market leaders opens in Paris October 19, as planned. The agenda, in order of likely accomplishments, is European economic and monetary union, relations with the outside world and strengthening Common Market institutions.

The economic and monetary union is dear to the French President's heart. He agreed to hold the conference, in spite of other disagreements, only when ministers reached agreement pointing to substantial success in that field.

Important to Canada

Mr. Turner's point comes under the second heading about which little has been heard except for some talk about co-ordinating foreign policy. If anything approaching common European foreign policy began to appear, the character of that policy would become of supreme importance to major trading partners like Canada and the U.S.

British Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber assured Mr. Turner that Britain stands for an outward-looking, trade-liberalizing Common Market. An increasing number of influential people here are becoming impatient with just such assurances which, however firmly stated, are platitudes. Their question is, "If the British government really believes them, when do the platitudes stop and concrete proposals come forward?"

The answer is only when it is in Britain's national interests to put them forward, as senior Canadian diplomats in Europe have long recognized. During the last two years of membership negotiations and entry preparations, it has been in Britain's interests to accept and even approve the Pompidou order of priorities. There is no sign here of any reversal of form at the Paris summit or during the next few months.

The floating pound is not, apparently, the symbol of British independence it might appear to be. The British have given several assurances that the float is strictly temporary. President Pompidou has insisted it must be brought back to a fixed parity before January 1 when Britain joins the market. His confidence on this point at his last formal press conference gave the impression that he had been given adequate assurances. Having adhered in May to the Common Market's currency co-ordination plan, Britain a month later was forced into the temporary float. Her action in coming months will be watched for signs of willingness to sacrifice national interest in the short term to the European goal.

... fullest growth

Imposing Figures

It was headed by Frank McFadzean, chief executive of Britain's biggest international company (Shell), and included Sir Alec Cairncross, the British government's former chief economic adviser, James Meade, former director of the economic section at the cabinet office and Sidney Golt, a former deputy minister and leading trade negotiator. All now hold prominent positions in academic or business life.

They have published concrete proposals for trade liberalization next year and called on Britain to press for Common Market leadership at the forthcoming summit conference. Copies have been sent to Whitehall, already busy preparing the British position papers for the summit. Their importance, said one British observer, was that they are high-powered and British.

For Canada, their importance is that they are obviously North-Atlantic minded. As Mr. Turner wants the government to be Ottawa would probably support their contention that agricultural exports should not be considered as a fundamentally different problem from industrial problems. Yet this is the prevailing French (and Common Market with its foundation of price supports) view.

In their book, the eminent Britons warn, "There is a danger that the self-interested actions of governments will destroy the liberal system of international economic relations so painfully built up over 20 years of thought and negotiations." They realize that during the next year fundamental choices that go right to the heart of the common market should be taken. Nobody, least of all the Europeans, doubts that choices must be made. The question is whether they will be the right ones.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of Sept. 27, 1912:

At five o'clock today Victoria will welcome its royal visitors, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and their daughter, Princess Patricia and party. As one of the sons of the great Queen whose name this city bears the welcome will be the warmest that can be extended.

It will be a transformed Victoria that will greet the royal visitors this afternoon. Public spirit and private enterprise have joined wholeheartedly in decorating the streets through which the Governor-General, his consort and his daughter will pass until the streets appear as long vistas of color and brightness.

Tenure: Give It to the Profs Who Really Need It

By JAMES EAYES

The university of North America may not be going the way of the dodo or the auk, but it is well on the way of the Penn Central Railroad and Rolls-Royce Motors. An institution once seemingly invulnerable and indispensable now is caught in a financial crisis and teeters on the edge of insolvency. Customers no longer demand its product and governments are disinclined to bail it out.

What happens next? Here's one possible scenario.

"We're sorry, Prof. Lebensraum. Plutonia University can't find room for you next year."

"But Dean Shortfall, I have the best student attendance record on campus. My student shows up at every lecture."

"Pack 'em in, Lebensraum, that's the name of the game these days. Look at Prof. Flick's new course at the Institute of Filmic Studies, Myth and Mystique in the Early Buster Keaton. Why, there were 500 students at last night's show, er, lecture."

"But Dean Shortfall, my course has the best staff-student ratio on campus. In Beowulf Today we have attained the Mark Patison ideal: a student at one end of a log, me at the other . . ."

"Hell, Lebensraum, Plutonia can't even afford the log! I'm afraid you'll have to go."

"You can't fire me, Shortfall. I've got tenure."

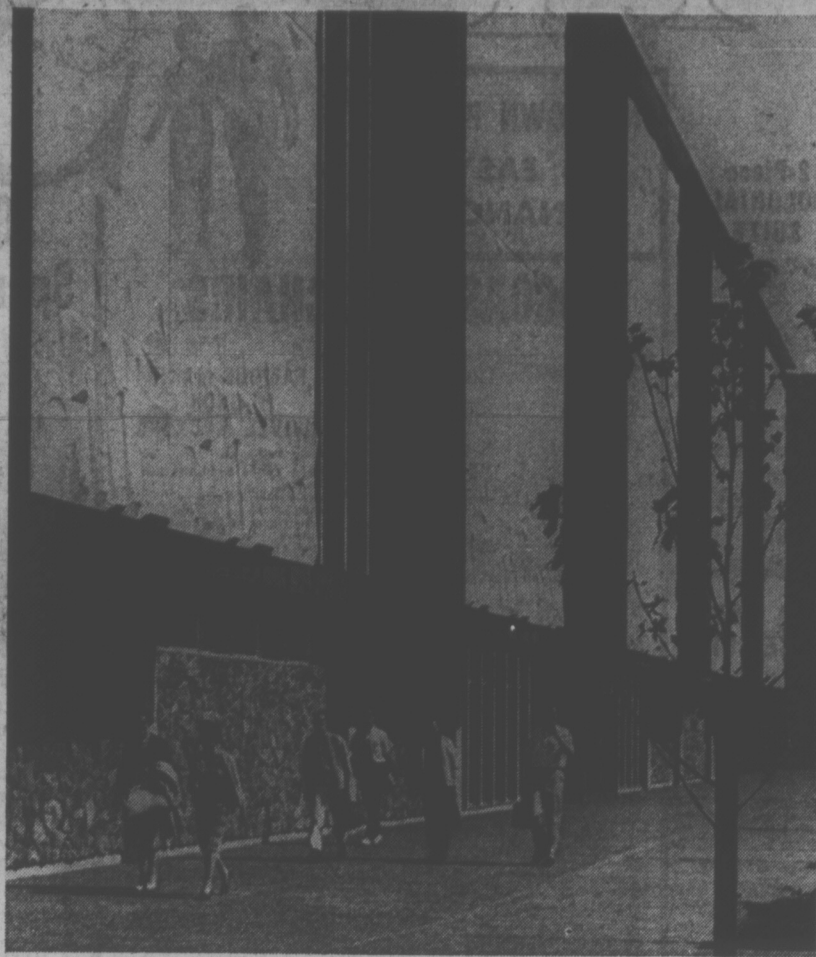

"All of us at Plutonia, my dear Lebensraum, are united in the hope that your tenure will prove helpful in finding a position elsewhere."

Financial Disease

Most universities may yet avoid the extremity of firing tenured faculty, but you don't have to be a weatherman to tell which way the wind is blowing. You can tell from events at two North American campuses last week.

A letter to the faculty from President James M. Hester on the present state of New York University informs them that their alma mater suffers from "a progressive financial disease," a partial cure for which is the dismissal of 217 members of the full-time teaching staff.

A report by the senate committee on re-

THE UNIVERSITIES: Teetering on the edge of insolvency

dundancy at Carleton University, Ottawa, recommends that if it becomes necessary to fire faculty members, "the fact of tenure shall become a relevant issue only when all other considerations between two individuals are of equal weight."

Tenure today is under attack and its advocates have been placed on the defensive. High time, say its critics, and a good thing too.

Prof. Robert A. Nisbet, the most outspoken of those critics, observes that few people not in academic life understand what the practice of tenure has come to involve.

"They may suppose it is simply the academic equivalent of the type of job security that exists in, say, General Motors, the bureau of the budget, or the Los Angeles Dodgers," says Nisbet. "In each of these, a man is guaranteed his job so long as he competently fulfills its specification, whether this be installing carburetors, performing an audit, or playing second base, and he is not likely to be dismissed or demoted on grounds extraneous to his competence except possibly for commission of felony or flagrant insubordination."

But, says Nisbet — correctly in my view — that's not how it is at all.

"Tenure, as we find it in the university today, is as nearly impregnable a form of differential privilege as the mind of man has ever devised," he says. "Once attained by an individual, it is, on the evidence, proof against virtually any degree of moral obliquity, mental deterioration, or academic torneither admires nor respects. They need it — but not all of them deserve it.

For those who don't deserve it, tenure is a form of feather-bedding even railway firemen never knew. The public, which pays for it, is catching on and doesn't like it.

"It's hard to put too much faith in the continuing diatribe of a man pontificating from a tax-supported ivory tower," Ted Burgoyne of the Victoria Colonist has been kind enough to write of my columns. "One wonders how well he'd do if he had to leave his security blanket behind."

I sometimes wonder, too. But there's nothing wrong with security blankets — provided they're wrapped around bodies who really need them. This is not now the case.

Tenure ought not to be abolished but it ought to be reformed. Here is a modest proposal for cutting the high cost of higher education.

Rather than giving tenure to more senior faculty, give it to more junior. Allow younger academics the fullest possible play for uninhibited innovation and dangerous thought. Tell them to treat their tenure not as some philatelic rarity to be hidden away in a glassine envelope, rather as a credit card to be flourished on all possible occasions.

The most serious complaint that the public has against professors in the matter of tenure," David Braybrooke very properly points out, "is not that professors should not have it, but that having it they do not use their special freedom more frequently and more vigorously."

A Modest Proposal

Such blithe spirits as lecturers and assistant professors with tenure ought to keep alma mater on her toes, but they will not save her any money. Part two of my modest proposal does that. When the tenured academics earn promotion on their merit, they should be offered a choice: to remain tenured, at lower pay and lower rank; or to give up tenure in exchange for the glories of full professorship — but only on a yearly contract.

Each faculty member may choose in perfect freedom. Tenure is spared for those who want it. Money is saved by university and taxpayer. Justice is done, and seen to be done. The proposal, if modest, is on merit incontrovertible. Need it be added that it stands no chance of acceptance by faculty associations any time or anywhere?

The Transformation of Russia

By DEV MURARKA
By The London Observer

MOSCOW — Soviet sociologists and demographers say that in recent years there has been a fundamental change in the structure of Soviet society. With advances in technology and education there are more "brain" workers, more students and more pensioners.

Three factors are said to have caused this change. In the first place, work as well as social activity has become more complex. Second, there is a change in the proportion of those who work and those who study. Third, the life span of the population has become longer, this increasing the proportion of retired people.

At work the proportion of the working population engaged in actual or material production activity is still high compared with those engaged in brain-work and the service sector. Whereas in the United States more than half of all the employed persons are "brain" and service workers, that stage has not been reached yet.

The statistics provided are somewhat confused. For instance, in one article it is claimed that the total number of gainfully employed persons in the USSR is 115,500,000, of which 66 million, or 56 per cent, are working class, presumably production workers. But in the same article it is claimed that 28 per cent of the employed population is engaged in trade and public catering and another 28 per cent in mental labor and in services. This adds up to 112 per cent.

What this does indicate, however, is that more than half of the working population is engaged in material production. Evidently Soviet sociologists want this situation changed because they contend that the fewer people employed in material production the higher the indication of labor productivity. And even Communist Party documents complain that productivity is still low in the Soviet Union and needs to be raised rapidly.

As for the second category, the sociologists say that in the past the number of working people was many times greater than the number of students (ie. those training for work of one sort or another). But today the situation has changed. The students number 52,600,000, or just less than half of the working population. The general standard of education for workers is also rising; a majority of them have at least secondary education, and it is the proclaimed aim of the Party to raise the average educational level of the workers even more.

This creates problems, since the more educated workers expect rather different standards of conditions at work and at home. Numerous sociological investigations in recent years indicate that pressure is on for better working conditions and greater comfort at home.

Retired people or pensioners number 33,100,000. In fact this figure indicates only those whose main source of income is a pension. There are another seven million whose earnings from part-time work or other sources is greater than the pensions they receive. These figures relate to 1970, when the population of the USSR was 241,700,000, so one-sixth of the total population has already retired and the proportion of retired people is steadily increasing.

It is becoming quite a problem to provide facilities for the retired people, some of whom are quite active. Although there have been general appeals to provide them with some kind of employment, mainly in the social and political field where their experience and seniority can be put to use, a large proportion of them in fact must still depend on their pensions.

The Soviet sociologists draw the conclusion that their society as a whole is becoming more advanced. They point out for instance that of every 10 persons employed five are workers, three are intellectuals and office employees, and two are collective farmers. Approximately six out of the 10 live in a city.

But this is not all. Recent studies have shown that a kind of transformation is also taking place among agricultural workers. Their number is declining, but because of the greater use of machines more of them are now skilled rather than purely manual workers. Soviet sociologists infer from this that technical change by itself is bringing about a certain degree of equality between the town and countryside, although the differences are still very sharp compared with the more advanced countries.

Indeed, though urbanisation is taking place rapidly in the Soviet Union, the pace would be faster if restrictions were removed from settlement in cities and towns and incentives not provided for younger people to stay on the farms. In spite of this, the government has considerable difficulty in retaining educated people in the villages. Most of them spend a good deal of effort and ingenuity in arranging their transfer to cities and towns under one pretext or another.

A Cause for Booming

By JOHN NICHOL

Let us all, on this brisk autumn evening, gather around the old gumball machine, and give thanks for small blessings.

What small blessings? Well, for one, the Canadian hunk of the Canada-Russia hockey series is behind us and the teams have disappeared behind the Iron Curtain. That the teams have gone is a matter of regret.

But it is a matter of no regret whatsoever that with them has gone the whole supporting army — a loose gaggle of hockey minions, officials, sports flacks, external affairs types, spear carriers, miscellaneous pick collectors, Great Crested Blazer Wearers and other exotic birds.

And speaking as a Canadian and Vancouverite, may I respectfully say — good riddance!

The Vancouver fans were excited, proud, nationalistic and enthusiastic as they jammed through the turnstiles to watch the fourth game of the series. This enthusiasm did not last long.

There were the usual dull introductions. The Russian players were cheered. So were the Canadians, long and loud. There was a feeling of excitement and national pride in the air.

Then Mr. Alan Eagleson, who is an Easterner, a Politician and a Hockey Official, was introduced. He was booed.

What else? Naturally! He was an Easterner! He was a Hockey Official! And he was a politician! What did he expect? Chimes?

So what about the game? The Canadians were not booed because they played badly. They were obviously not in as good physical shape as the Russians. The Vancouver fans would not boo them for that.

They were obviously unable to pass the puck and control the game as well as the Russians. The Vancouver fans would not boo them for that.

Why, then, did the Vancouver fans start to boo the Canadian team? Because, it was obvious that some of the Canadians decided on their own to resort to chippy, dirty hockey.

If you question this analysis, look at the films!

The Canadian team was booed in Vancouver for the best of all possible reasons — because the fans thought some of the Canadian players were displaying evil temper and poor sportsmanship. The Vancouver fans should be praised because they had the guts to tell the truth.

Hockey has become a venal business of greed, opportunism and violence in which the breaking of rules is both taught and encouraged.

If young Canadians aspire to this kind of career, we are sunk. The Vancouver fans understood this and they booed.

In doing so they demonstrated that they were not brainwashed by the great big NHL Super Brain Washing Free Grease Machine. They knew what they were looking at, and expressed themselves accordingly.

If Toronto and Montreal want to drink their own bathwater, that's their business. The Vancouver fans protested, and I say three cheers for them. They knew what they were doing. Let the Toronto sports writers stay home and stick to their moralizing and pickering fishing!

Major Con Job Claimed By Job-Seeker

VANCOUVER (CP) — An unemployed Vancouver man who phoned Prime Minister Trudeau on an open line radio show here Saturday says that as a result he was offered a federal government job which is "99 per cent certain."

The 27-year-old man, who asked his name not be published for family reasons, in an interview Monday he stretched the truth in telling the prime minister of his status.

"I used him for what I wanted—a God-damned job," he said.

The caller said he and his wife were living extremely well on his wife's $500-a-month salary and the $85 a week he collected from the Unemployment Insurance Commission for the last 10 months.

The couple, who have a two-year-old son, had just returned from a San Francisco visit and were planning one to Hawaii, the man told the prime minister.

Mr. Trudeau said he would make sure the caller was offered a job and if it was refused his unemployment insurance payments would stop.

HAD NO PLANS

The man said Monday there was no trip to San Francisco or any plans to go to Hawaii. He also admitted the UIC payments were only $70 a week.

The man said he had been "dragged through all kinds of crap with Manpower."

He described his call to the prime minister as "my little revenge with Manpower."

The man said he had followed all the rules in looking for work since he was laid off from a three-week job in a sawmill shortly after coming to B.C. from Ontario a year ago.

He said he has graduated from high school, completed one year of a three-year business administration course in Ontario and has worked as a salesman and lab technician.

But because he did not want to go into sales again and had no definite job desires, the man said he was classified as a warehouseman "where I have no experience and no chance of getting a job."

"I'm not sure if it was set up (by Trudeau) or not, but I walked in today and they just changed my classification and there was a job available," he said.

"There is educational potential here. It makes you wonder why they couldn't have done that months ago. It's too bad there isn't a line open to Trudeau every day."

GOVERNMENT JOB

The man said the job he has been offered and will accept is with the federal government, but he refused to say what it is or what it pays.

There were a few job offers which he turned down, the man said, because the pay was less or only equal to the unemployment benefits and "it became a moral question of whether I should take myself away from my family or not."

"I've done nothing wrong—there is no fraud involved," the man said, adding that if Mr. Trudeau tries to have fraud proved "he can shove it because there aren't jobs."

After interviews with three newspapers the man said he was bored "with the whole thing. I just want to go to work at my job. . . . It is a legitimate job."

Renter Trend Increase Seen

TORONTO (CP) — Canada gradually will become a country of tenants in the next 20 years, Michael Audain, housing director of the Canadian Council on Social Development, said Monday.

In a paper to a seminar on rental housing, Mr. Audain said rented dwellings made up 39 per cent of the more than six million dwellings across Canada in 1971.

It is doubtful if the trend to renting will be reversed in the 1970s, he said. Mr. Audain cited population growth in metropolitan areas, more non-family households brought about by young people leaving home earlier and the shift to multiple dwellings because of construction costs for the continued trend toward renting.

A. E. Diamond, Toronto president of Cadillac Development Corp. Ltd., told the seminar that the Ontario Landlord and Tenant Act, 1970, has resulted in higher maintenance costs for the developer.

He said rent controls were unnecessary except to control an "inordinate rise in rents."

Maintenance costs went up because the only way now to obtain money to cover costs of repairs is through the courts, he said.

Mr. Diamond suggested landlords' return on their investment had dropped from 16.7 per cent in 1968 to 12.8 per cent in 1972.

Liz Seimans, a member of the Winnipeg Tenants Association, said the seminar seems to be "dealing with people who can afford to live in a high-rise and the people here all seem to be executive directors or something or other."

Oak Bay Program Expanded

Woman
In Garden,
House Burgled

Education Minister Eileen Daffy has been formally appointed deputy premier according to orders-in-council released Tuesday.

The official title is acting president of the executive council. Premier Barrett is president.

Another cabinet order appoints Lands Minister Bob Williams acting finance minister in the absence of Barrett.

John Twigg, a 23-year-old university graduate, has been named press secretary to the government at a salary of $1,335 a month.

Twigg was press secretary to Barrett during the recent election campaign.

Other cabinet orders showed that Dorothy Sage has been appointed secretary to the minister of rehabilitation.

The appointment of the former secretary, Edith Valen, who worked for Phil Gaglardi, was rescinded.

Oak Bay recreation commission has announced the start of regular fall and winter programs.

Additional programs offered this year include:

Henderson Park — creative stitching, Sept. 28, 1:15 to 3:15 p.m.; ceramics, Oct. 3, 1:15 to 3:15 p.m. and 8 p.m. for ages 13 and over; leather, Oct. 4, (ages 9 to 15), 7 p.m.; children's ceramics, Oct. 7, (ages 9 to 15, 10 a.m. to noon; children's handicrafts,

Oct. 7 (ages 9 to 15), 10 a.m. to noon.

Also at Henderson Park, a mother and tot creative movement offering a new way to exercise will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 to 11:30 a.m. starting Sept. 26. Oil Painting for beginners is slated for Oct. 4, 1:15 to 3:15 p.m. and card games, Sept. 29 at 1 p.m.

Carmarvon Park — lapdary, Oct. 3, 1:15 to 3:15 p.m.; yard craft, Oct. 3, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.; youth group, Sept. 25, 7 to 10 p.m.

Windsor Park — photography, Tuesday, Oct. 3, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.; dark room classes, October 4, every second week; children's classes, leather, October 3 (ages 8 to 14), 7:30 to 9 p.m.; guitar, (ages 9 to 12) Oct. 4, 7 to 9 p.m.; stitching, (ages 8 to 15), Oct. 7, 10 a.m. to noon; art, (ages 8 to 15), Oct. 7, 10 a.m. to noon.

Oak Bay sports program schedule is:

Henderson Park — ladies badminton, Tuesday and Thursday, 1 to 3 p.m.; basketball, Oct. 4, ladies, 9:45 to 11:30 a.m.; boys, (ages 7 to 9), 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.; boys (ages 10 to 12), 7:30 to 8 p.m.; adults, 8:30 to 10 p.m.; tennis instruction, Sept. 23, 10 a.m. to noon; gymnastics and floor hockey, (ages 8 to 15), 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Saturdays; Youth free time, Monday through Friday from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m.

A total of $400 in cash and $7,000 in non-negotiable investment certificates was stolen from a Victoria home by thieves who apparently entered the home through an unlocked basement door.

Victoria police said Tuesday Mrs. Rowena Sieg, of 1950 Bouchier, was working in the front yard of her home when the theft occurred, sometime between 1 p.m. and 4:22 p.m. Monday, police report.

LOCAL BRIEFS

Recycle Group
Seeks Workers

Project Recycle needs volunteers to help expand its programs and cope with the increasing demand for its services in the Greater Victoria area, the organization announced Tuesday.

Additional workers are needed at the Borden Street warehouse, the dropping off point for recyclable material, in the office and to help in its expanding educational programs.

The call for help follows the Capital Regional Board decision to spend $10,881 to continue the project until the end of the year.

Volunteers should phone the warehouse at 479-1015.

Properly sorted glass paper and metal can be brought to the warehouse between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday, Friday or Saturday. Bundled newspapers can be dropped off every second Saturday starting Oct. 14, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Drinking Partly to Blame

Greater Victoria Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said drinking was partly to blame for the death of a man aboard the Liberian tour ship West Star Aug. 26.

After conducting an inquiry, St. Jorre ruled Cornelius Rahn, 19, of 3451 Cardiff, died of asphyxiation "due to his intoxicated condition" and the fact he became trapped in a cargo elevator.

He was found early Aug. 26 in the opening of the elevator with his feet and torso out of it and his head caught between the elevator floor and the door.

'Pot Farm' Charges Laid

CAMPBELL RIVER — Two men were remanded for a week Monday after pleading not guilty in provincial court to charges of cultivating marijuana.

A trial date will be set for Gerald Connor Fernley Dick, 36, of Campbell River, and Robbie Leeds, 28, of San Francisco.

The charge was paid after RCMP, aboard the Campbell River-based patrol boat MP-93, went to Read Island near Campbell River and found 116 marijuana plants in the vegetable patch of a farm. Total weight of the plants, which ranged from immature ones to some 10 feet high, was about 65 pounds.

Bushnell

Shareholders of Bushnell Communications Ltd. have agreed to decrease the issued capital of the company to $4,342,078 from $9,167,078.

The step is a bookkeeping item to allow the company to conform to the Ontario Business Corporations Act and allow it to pay dividends, a company spokesman said after the meeting of shareholders.

The action stems from a $4.8 million loss incurred as a result of 1969 attempts to purchase all the shares of the Thomson-Davies broadcasting interests and the assets of Canadian Marconi Ltd. of Montreal.

Bushnell lost deposits in both cases and, although a portion of the loss could be written off against the retained earnings account, about $2.8 million was retained on the books as a deficit.

The act prohibits paying dividends while a deficit is being carried and Bushnell took the accounting step of decreasing the capital to wipe the loss from the ledger and allow the dividends payments.

No quarterly dividends have been paid for two years.

Bowater

Bowater Corp., which is big papermaking interests in Canada, is to merge with the trading company known as Ralli International to combine management experience and a tradition of hard-driving enterprise.

Officially, Bowater is taking over Ralli by way of an agreed bid worth more than $80 million ($192 million).

But observers suggest that directors of Ralli will retain a big voice in the running of the combined firms.

Bowater Chairman Martin Ritchie said Malcolm Horsman, chairman of Ralli, is the kind of personality to supply Bowater with the "entrepreneurial ability" it needs.

Horsman said Ralli "is liquid while Bowater is well geared, and Bowater is coming out of its downward cycle."

By GARRY FAIRBAIRN

OTTAWA (CP) — Courtesy is the basis for doing business in the People's Republic of China, says Lou Robert, marketing manager for Intronics Ltd., of Stittsville, Ont.

The Ottawa-area electronics firm went to the recent Canadian trade fair in Peking and came home with a $28,000 contract. During his two weeks there, Robert found himself in an entirely different business climate.

Courtesy requires that innumerable cups of sweet tea be provided and consumed during negotiations.

Honesty is present in all aspects of business, as it is throughout society, he says.

Produce displays in Peking are left outside-shops all night with no risk of theft.

Wherever Canadians went, they were treated with respect he reports. On one occasion, Robert wanted to take a picture of giant panda bears at the crowded Peking Zoo.

"I thought I would just try to hold my camera up so that I could take a shot over the heads of the crowd."

"When they saw what I was doing, a pathway about 10 feet wide immediately opened in front of me right to the cage."

Roberts says that one reason his company got an order is that it is Canadian-owned and the product is wholly Canadian in design and production.

The product sold to the Chinese was a gradicon digitizer, which converts graphic data to digital data for computer bank storage. It will be used for resource mapping.

Accountant Tags Tax Act Unnecessary Complexity

The new federal tax act may be a bonanza for accountants but not all of them are pleased.

W. G. Mitchell of Vancouver, president of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia said in an interview:

"Yes, it means more work for us but looking at it from an unselfish point of view all the government has done is introduced a lot of unnecessary complexity."

It was necessary to close certain loopholes in the old legislation but this could have been done by amending the old act. There was no need to completely rewrite the act, he said.

"There was nothing so terribly wrong about the old legislation."

Mitchell was elaborating on speeches he has been making around the province criticizing the new tax act as serving no overall useful purpose except providing more employment for himself and other accountants.

gains tax is a particularly serious blow for western Canada, said Mitchell. A capital gains tax is a big hindrance in an area still in the early stages of development of resources, he said.

One change that is needed is the removal of either the provincial or federal sales tax, he said. He said it is "nonsense" to have two complete sets of sales taxes at the federal and provincial level.

Further tax reform is needed, he said, but the effect should be to simplify rather than confuse the tax structure for Canadians.

In addition he called for a uniform and standardized system for estate and succession duties in Canada.

The new tax act, he said, will work a hardship on B.C. natural resource industries like logging firms.

Earlier, James McPherson, president elect of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants expressed similar views in Victoria on the ad-

Introduction of a capital gains tax is a particularly serious blow for western Canada, said Mitchell. A capital gains tax is a big hindrance in an area still in the early stages of development of resources, he said.

He predicted that the new federal legislation would produce a slowdown in the rate of new mines coming into operation by 1975.

Large mining companies were being discouraged from going into new exploration ventures by the federal tax schedule.

He added that the revised tax act also threw too heavy a burden on middle wage earners, those making between $8,000 and $10,000 per year.

Telex, Post Linked

OTTAWA (CP) — The post office and CN-CP Telecommunications will launch a new rapid-delivery service Oct. 1 for Canada's 24,000 Telex subscribers, it was announced Tuesday.

The service, called Telexpost, will make speedy communication possible between Telex subscribers and non-subscribers by combining the message transmission capabilities of the Telex system with the delivery services of the post office.

Telex terminals have been installed in post offices across the country to prepare for the new service. It will make next day delivery available to address for 75 cents and same-day service possible for an additional charge of 40 cents. No restriction has been placed on the length of messages.

Once a message is received by Telex in a post office, it will be placed in an easily-

Imports Slash Trade Surplus

OTTAWA (CP) — Booming import traffic coupled with modest growth in exports has cut the Canadian commodity trade surplus for the first eight months of 1972 to $564.8 million, about a third of last year's $1.6 billion, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

Exports for eight months this year grew by 9.3 per cent, but imports were up almost 21 per cent. In August alone, exports were up 5.3 per cent, while imports rose 20.6 per cent.

The statistics bureau reported that August exports this year totalled $1.5 billion compared with $1.4 billion last year, but imports rose to $1.45 billion from $1.2 billion.

This brought the cumulative trade totals for this year to $12.6 billion in exports compared with $11.5 billion in eight months last year, while imports rose to more than $12 billion compared with $9.9 billion last year.

Imports are higher from all countries this year. They rose in August from all areas except imports from the United Kingdom, which were down 31 per cent, and from Latin America, off 8.4 per cent.

On the export side, sales have been higher in the eight-month period to the U.S., Japan, and Latin America. But they have been down to the U.K., the European Common Market and Commonwealth countries.

The sharp reduction in the commodity trade surplus makes it more likely that Canada will run a deficit this year in its over-all balance of payments.

While Canada usually earns a surplus in commodity trade, this is frequently turned into a deficit by payments for non-commodity transactions, such as freight, insurance, interest and foreign travel.

Statistics Canada said in its report Tuesday that, taking seasonal factors into account, imports ran to a record level in August. Imports have risen steadily since early this year, though there was a decline in July.

The cut in imports from the U.K. last month was mainly attributable to a strike of British dock workers.

The higher import figures were spread over a large number of commodities, with large increases in food, industrial machinery, automotive products, communications equipment, office machines, clothing and aircraft and aircraft parts.

Imports of petroleum and coal products, and of steel products, were down in August this year from a year ago.

SEAWAY ICE STUDIED

TORONTO (CP) — Since 1960, thanks to improved ice control and weather forecasting, the shipping season on the St. Lawrence Seaway has been lengthened by about 30 days.

But officials on both sides of the border still are looking for ways to extend the season just a little longer.

They are looking at ice control, hydro requirements and economic feasibility in attempts to give shipping in the 2,342-mile waterway extra days of navigation.

The unpredictable Canadian winter is a major roadblock. A late spring or an early freeze can mean delayed schedules and financial losses to ships trapped in the system during the winter. In 1970, the seaway was open 260 days compared to 234 days in 1960.

The difficult problem of ice control has been defeated in at least one section of the seaway. A fleet of 26 icebreakers in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and up the river, combined with floating ice booms and artificial ice islands, have made Montreal a year-round port, adding about two million tons of cargo annually.

The channels that bypass the St. Lawrence rapids and lift ships 226 feet from Montreal to Lake Ontario present advocates of a longer shipping season with another difficult challenge.

This section is the first part of the system to freeze over and become impassable.

Methods being studied by the Canadian and U.S. teams include water bubbling devices to ensure open waters around docks, artificial ice islands to break up ice and the use of waste heat from thermal generating stations along the shore to raise water temperatures.

Cominco Cautioned by PCB $1,000 GRANT FOR HOUSING On Pollution Permit Optimism

A statement by Cominco that it does not anticipate any problems in obtaining a pollution permit to re-open a lead-zinc mine and dump tailings is considerably premature, a spokesman for the provincial Pollution Control Branch said Tuesday.

Pollution Control Branch information officer James McCrossan said no permits could be assumed to be certain until towards the end of this year.

All new permits and existing permits will be judged on the basis of technical criteria laid down in the new report, he said.

On Tuesday R. P. Douglas, Cominco mines manager, said the company would reopen the HB mine 30 miles from Trail early in 1973.

He noted the company needed a permit from the Pollution Control Branch but anticipated no problem in obtaining it.

Later Tuesday McCrossan said no company should take anything for granted until it sees the new terms of reference published in the report which is still at draft stage.

The report is the result of hearings held in Cranbrook and Vancouver during March.

The draft report is being prepared by the Pollution Control Branch and it will be forwarded to the Pollution Control Board, the policy-making section, for discussion and completion.

The report will set technical objectives for disposing mine tailings in British Columbia.

It will affect the whole mining industry. All applications for new dumping permits will be judged against it and existing permits may be amended to come within its objectives.

No date has been set for release of the report and McCrossan said it would be some months in preparation but would certainly be ready before Christmas.

Earlier, the board released reports on technical guidelines for dumping of waste by forestry companies and petroleum and chemical industries.

The mines report will be the next in the series.

Normally, some months of negotiation are needed before a permit is granted McCrossan said.

No tailings could be dumped before the permit was obtained.

However, if Cominco's plan comes within the terms of reference of the board's report the company could still meet its target date of early 1973 to re-open the mine.

The mine has been closed for six years. Cominco operated the HB mine from 1955 to 1966 when a depressed zinc market forced its closure.

About 100 persons would be employed at the mine. Production would be 1,000 tons of ore per day, about the same rate at which the mine was operated before.

Some equipment will be transferred to the HB mine from the Bluebell mine at Riondel, B.C., on Kootenay Lake. The Bluebell mine was closed last year due to a lack of ore.

McCrossan said the board's pollution report will include criteria for smelters as well as for mining and milling operations.

Saanich council's lands and housing committee agreed Tuesday to recommend a $1,000 special grant to Mt. Douglas Court Society, a non-profit, philanthropic housing society for persons earning limited incomes.

Chairman Ald. Edith Gunning said Saanich had a two-fold responsibility toward the organization, which had found its tax assessment raised unexpectedly high this year, causing it to expect a $3,000 deficit.

Saanich had urged the society to build in the municipality and had helped it find land. Then, through an error in assessment, council had revised the sum after it was too late for the society to adjust its income by increasing rents.

She said Saanich should thus help the group in its first "difficult year." Other members of the committee said the concession should be granted only once.

In other business, aldermen accepted an offer of slightly more than $66,000 for eight single family residential lots in a land assembly on Grange Road near Interurban.

The bid from Victoria Home Builders Association will result in housing backdropped by Edge Place and Colquitz River beautification projects in conjunction with open green space and a form of attached housing.

Edmonton Seeks Swiss Funds

EDMONTON (CP) — With no debate and only a few questions, city council has agreed to borrow $11.75 million, at an interest rate of 5% per cent, on the Swiss money market.

The sale of debentures — in 45-million Swiss francs — will complete the city's borrowings of $29 million to finance 1973 capital projects.

The alternatives to borrowing on the Swiss market would be to get the money in Canada at an interest rate of 8 1/2 per cent, or on the American market at a cost of eight per cent.

Council also agreed to appoint several investment dealers and banks to act as a fiscal agency to arrange the public issue and sale of city debentures.

Previously the city either tendered or used the appointment of an agent.

Photos Capture Old Victoria

Long-time Victoria residents will have an opportunity to wallow in nostalgia at an exhibition starting today in city hall which shows the leisurely Victoria of yesteryear.

The exhibition features some 300 photographs taken by well-known local photographer Harry Upperton Knight, covering almost every aspect of the city scene over the past half-century.

Commerce, industry, landscapes and seascapes, urban sketches, cameos of gracious social events, portraits of worthy citizens and charming child studies—all were captured by Knight's camera.

He was a master of the soft focus lens, and the technique is used to skilful effect in many of the pictures, including one outstanding study of the Inner Harbour.

The exhibition, which has been assembled by city archivist Ainslie Helmcken from Knight's collection which was purchased by the city earlier this year, was to be opened by Knight in the anteroom of the council chamber at 3 p.m. today.

Top Military Chiefs Coming

Senior officers from various military commands in Canada and the United States will attend a conference at CFB Esquimalt Sept. 29 to Oct. 5.

The Phoenix Rose To Stormy Challenge

Only 24 Hours Out, Greenhorn Sailors Ran Into Hurricane Ginger, Limped Back to Port,
Dried Out, Made Repairs and Returned to Fray

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

The Scruggs family took its first sailing lesson in the middle of a hurricane.

They survived.

This week they headed their 36-foot sloop Phoenix into the Inner Harbor, 16,000 miles and 18 months later, some of the most seasoned sailors in these parts.

Bart Scruggs talked about his family's "learning on the job" experience as his three oldest daughters, Dianna, 15; Debbie, 13, and Dolores, 12, cleared up topsides.

He and his wife, Lorene, and their five daughters (the youngest, Norma-Jean, is now five, and her sister, Elizabeth, six) had never been on a sailboat until they took possession of Phoenix in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

With stores aboard, on what was to be the trip Scruggs had dreamed about since a boy, they headed out to sea.

"We were so green just putting up the mainsail was quite a job," he recalled.

"Suddenly 24 hours out of Fort Lauderdale we found ourselves in the middle of Hurricane Ginger, being thrown about in huge waves with no idea in which direction we were heading!"

Friends ashore were relieved and surprised when the pummeled Phoenix limped back into port.

They were even more surprised when, dried out and her old-seaworthy self again, the Phoenix and her intrepid crew started out again.

This time they made it.

Since that time the Phoenix has logged a course which has taken her all around the Bahamas, the island of Haiti, Jamaica, the Sanblas Islands off Panama, through the Panama Canal to the Perlas Islands in the Pacific, the Galapagos Islands and up the coast to Victoria.

Scruggs said some of the most uncomfortable sailing was not done in the brace of hurricanes and two tropical storms that they've weathered.

It was the attitude of the Haitians that gave them their worst moments.

"They were very inhospitable," Scruggs explains, "When we first entered their waters we were met by a gunboat loaded down with armed personnel. We didn't actually go ashore because all the beaches had armed patrols on them. It gave you an eerie feeling."

Mrs. Scruggs and the two youngest children left Phoenix at San Diego after a 43-day leg from the Galapagos, making the last trek home by bus.

Scruggs and the three oldest girls have taken a month to bring Phoenix up from San Diego.

"It was a difficult beat up," Scruggs said. The wind was against us and we had to tack, tack, tack."

Signs of the strain were in the faces of his all-girl crew. But, willing and able, they set out like old hands as the order to cast off came.

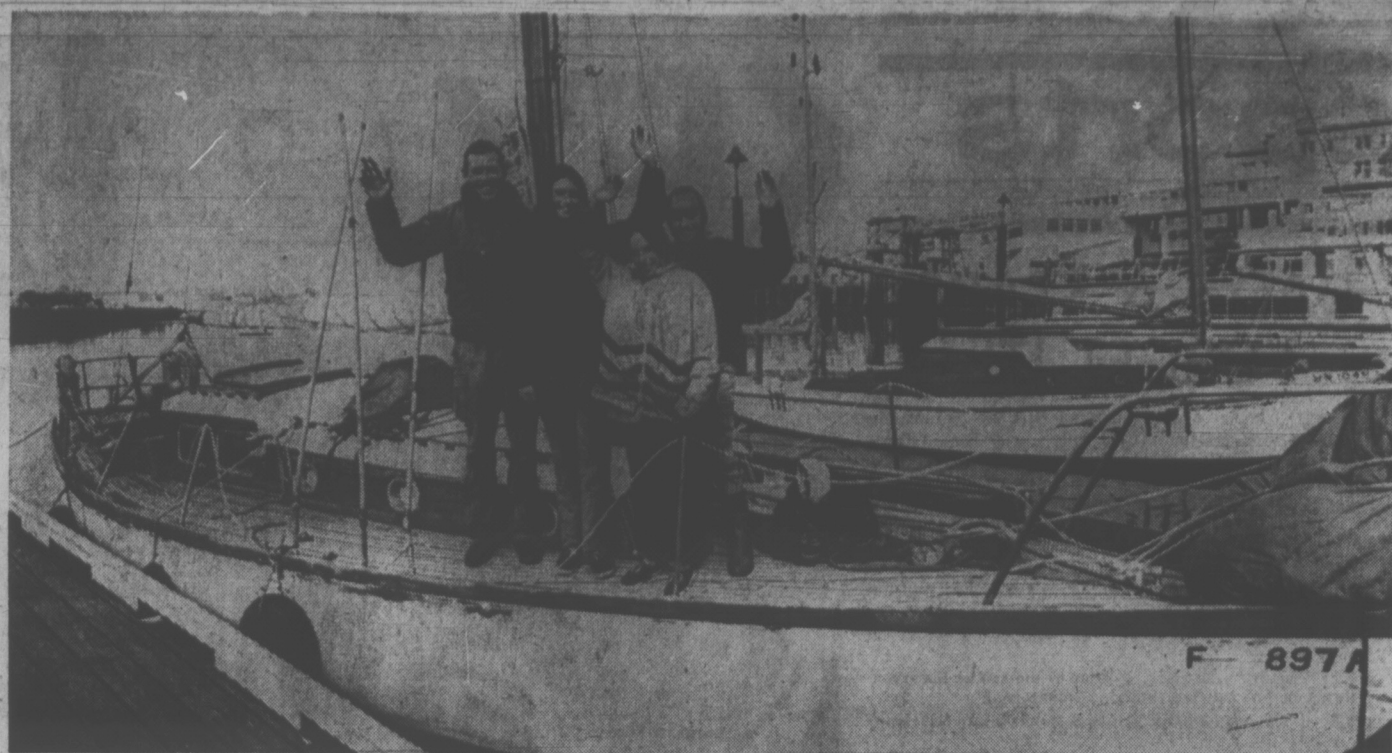

The final leg of Phoenix's odyssey was to the family home on Saturna Island where Scruggs is looking forward to sleeping in a house for the first time in 18 months.

His sailing days, however, are not over. He's now setting his sights on entering the 1974 Victoria-Mauli race.

The Scruggs' girls may make history by becoming the first all-girl crew to enter the trans-Pacific classic.

Are they willing? As they cast off lines, the answer comes loud and clear: "Sure, after we've had a rest."

Bart, Dianne, Dolores and Debbie Scruggs . . . happy homecoming

FIVE-YEAR TERM FOR ROBBERY

One of the planners of an armed robbery Aug. 26 at a house at 211 Helmcken Rd. today was sentenced to five years in the B.C. Penitentiary in New Westminster by Judge William Ostler.

Richard David Moyes, 19, of 2512 Douglas, was arrested by Colwood RCMP after five men, carrying rifles and wearing stockings over their heads, were seen walking down a driveway at the side of the house.

By coincidence, RCMP drug squad had the house under observation at the time.

Moyes pleaded guilty.

A total of nine shots were fired and the occupants of the house were robbed of $275.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said Moyes' rifle had a shell in it and "it's obvious that this young man was one of the planners."

Council Delays Causeway Ban

Operators of sightseeing vehicles based on the Causeway won't be immediately banned from parking there, city hall sources indicated today.

The ban had been recommended by the public works committee but council is not expected to give approval at its meeting Thursday.

Instead, one alderman said today, council will probably refer the matter back to committee so that the companies concerned can make representations.

The change of attitude resulted from discussion Tuesday at council's committee of the whole.

Meanwhile, the operators themselves have requested a meeting with city hall to discuss the situation and see what can be done to remove the problems which have been the subject of frequent council complaints over recent months.

For the past seven years the sightseeing firms have been allowed to use eight street parking spaces on the Causeway opposite the Empress, but recently council members have complained that the privilege has been exceeded.

The resulting congestion and "huckstering" among the competing operators should not be tolerated, says Mayor Peter Pollen.

In recommending the Causeway parking ban last week the public works committee also proposed that the operators should be allowed four parking spaces elsewhere, and left traffic engineer Dave Campbell to suggest on which street these should be permitted.

Spokesmen for some of the bus companies said today that they had not been officially approached by city hall concerning the complaints.

"It seems reasonable to expect that if any of the sightseeing operators were creating problems that they would be contacted," said Jack Thomas, manager of Grey Line tours.

Ald. Percy Frampton, chairman of the public works committee, has said several times that the Causeway problems surrounding the parked buses tend to be exaggerated.

He claims that there is little or no congestion and that touting for business is now very subdued, and nothing like the nuisance or embarrassment it was some years ago.

A desperate situation of overcrowded schools has developed in rapidly-growing parts of the Sooke school district.

As a result, the school board has cut off enrolment at two of the schools, Savory and Happy Valley Elementary.

District superintendent E. E. Hyndman describes class sizes in the schools of the Colwood-Langford area as being at a "critical level."

Much of the problem, he said, has been caused by a combination of rapid growth in the area's subdivisions and the effects of this summer's three-month construction shut-down.

The district has 18 classrooms under construction, but none of them will be ready for use before February.

During the past week, parents attempting to register their children in Savory and Happy Valley schools have had to be turned away and directed to other schools in the district.

Hyndman says some of these other schools are not that far away, but it is still an inconvenience to parents and children.

Under department of education regulations, the district is allowed to hire more staff to handle the extra students enrolled in its schools. But the problem is that there is no space to put the children in.

The superintendent said portable classrooms are being used to capacity at various schools and that activity rooms and even basement are being pressed into service rooms, considered unsatisfactory for classroom teaching, to handle the overflow of students.

Sooke district enrolment climbed about five per cent

this year over last, Hyndman said, but the Colwood-Langford area experienced a growth rate of 12 per cent.

"We put extra room in some of the schools, but it just wasn't enough," he said. "There is no way of knowing, no way of planning ahead for this kind of growth."

The Sooke school board is presenting a capital referendum to its ratepayers on Dec. 9 this year. Hyndman says about $2 million of classroom construction is involved.

With the district expected to grow by about 400 students again next year, the referendum will be of critical importance to the overcrowding situation, he said.

Until February, he said, the schools will just have to make do with the space that is available, after which the new classrooms will be used and the problem eased to some degree.

Save Christmas Hill!

Unspoiled Area Ideal
For Teaching Ecology

A proposal to save Christmas Hill as an ecological teaching area will be put to the federal government by Saanich council as part of an open space plan encompassing Swan Lake.

Up to $4 million is available to B.C. projects qualifying under the National Second Century Fund for preservation of nature conservation areas.

"We think there's a possibility there," said Saanich planner Tom Loney after presenting an outline of the proposal to council's planning committee Tuesday.

Christmas Hill is an unspoiled, prominent feature of urban Saanich lying just north of McKenzie between Patricia Bay Highway and Quadra Street.

Loney estimated between 125 and 150 acres of land would be involved in the proposal, including the area immediately surrounding Swan Lake.

The two areas would be joined across McKenzie by a narrow corridor of green belt which could have a nature trail threaded through it.

Loney said Second Century projects must be unique and stand on their own merits.

One of the species of plant life found on Christmas Hill is lupin, growing wild in quantities found no other place in the metropolitan area.

Most of the land on and around Christmas Hill is owned by a few people, which the committee was told would make its acquisition easier.

One family canvassed earlier by university and provincial botanists indicated they would be willing to give up their holdings as long as the land was to be preserved for public use.

"I think we have some responsibility for the future," said committee chairman Ald. Frank Waring regarding preservation of the hill.

Loney said the proposal fits into Saanich green belt planning, although green belt acquisition terms of reference are not aimed exclusively at nature conservation areas.

Ald. Edith Gunning asked why Loney rejected two other areas suggested for acquisition under the National Second Century Fund — Gordon Point and Mystic Springs.

Loney said Gordon Point on Gordon Head was turned down because of an access problem involving narrow streets in a developed residential area and the fact that it has no special ecological value.

Mystic Springs at Cadboro Bay also is in a built-up area and was thought to be too small for the purpose.

Planners will draw up a detailed proposal within a few weeks to enable council to make a comprehensive submission for Christmas Hill.

Highrise Gap to Close As Developers Watched

A minor amendment of Saanich zoning bylaws was recommended by the municipal planning committee Tuesday to close a gap wide enough to admit highrise apartments.

As the law stands, a developer holding C-3 (shopping centre) zoned land could build a highrise apartment on the site without further recourse to council.

The situation was drawn to the committee's attention by planner Tom Loney, who recommended reference to high-rise building in the bylaw be deleted.

Saanich has no highrise buildings and councils have consistently rebuffed attempts to have highrise zoning implemented on an exclusive basis.

Loney said recent studies by such organizations as the Urban Land Institute had found the benefits of highrise development in conjunction with shopping centres are outweighed by the disadvantages.

He suggested better control of such development, when and if it comes to Saanich, would be by land-use contract which binds an owner to certain undertakings relating to the specific structure.

Winter Has Our Number

"No Indian Summer" for Victoria is the prediction of weather officials as freezing temperatures overnight broke three cold records in the capital.

Thirty four was an optimistic guess, by above motorist however, with Victoria International Airport reporting a low of 32 overnight, making it the coldest Sept. 27 on record as well as the coldest September day ever recorded.

The frost-free season also came to an abrupt end, breaking the previous early frost record of Oct. 10 by 13 days.

Weather officials predict a warming trend over the next two days but cold, wet weather will be back by the end of the week.

Student to Seek Election As Progressive Independent

A 21-year-old Camosun College student has announced he will run in the Oct. 30 federal election as a Progressive Independent candidate in Victoria riding.

Dan Heffernan said he is running because he sees the need to bring up issues that have not been touched by party-affiliated candidates.

He said he's had a real interest in politics since he was 13, filed his nomination papers Tuesday and plans to run a tight campaign costing $200.

"Victoria needs an independent representative," he said, predicting a minority government would be elected, giving any independent politician a vital role.

Heffernan, who is married and lives at 2705 Seaview with his parents, has spent two years as a B.C. government surveyor — a job which he says has given him a bird's eye view into most of the problems facing the province.

Ask the Times

Q. Could you tell me the common and botanical names of the wild sweet-peas that grow on the cliffs near Dallas and Cook? They are a sort of cerise color. — P.W.

A. This attractive flower is called the Everlasting Pea, according to Victoria municipal horticulturalist Ron Edwards. "Actually in spite of its looks we consider this flower a bit of a weed, since it takes some containing," Edwards said. The Everlasting Pea is a member of the species Lathyrus Odoratus.

Q. Where can I get a complete copy of the Canadian regulations for non-licensed amateur broadcasters? G.D.

A. Copies can be obtained from the federal department of communications in Ottawa.

Q. How deep does the ground freeze around Prospect Lake? — P.H.

A. In the coldest weather the freeze goes about one foot deep.

DAD'S A STAR? FORGET IT!

TORONTO (CP) — While Paul Henderson was performing hockey heroics to give Canada a 4-3 victory over Russia Tuesday, his seven-year-old daughter was concentrating on printing and arithmetic.

Jennifer Henderson decided against going to the school library to watch the game on television and was trying to forget her sudden popularity with the boys since the Soviet-Canada series started.

But then the word got out. Her daddy's goal had won the game and tied the series.

"It was awful," said Jennifer. "The boys chased me all the way home."

Another daughter, Heather, 9, went to the school library to watch the game and saw her father's winning goal.

Again, it was those boys at school that miffed Heather slightly.

"They were slapping and slapping," said Heather after a rain of congratulatory hands came down on her shoulders. "I've got a sore back," she said.

As It Should Be: Final Battle Will Decide War

The two contrasting life styles of hockey are going to get the supreme test in Moscow Thursday, and right now, who's to say which is better? But hasn't it been great?

This will be game eight, and the deciding one in the trans-world Canada-Russia series. Which is as it should be, and there should be a hot time in the old Lenin Palace of Sport for this one.

Tuesday's game was wild enough, if Sunday's war didn't satisfy the antagonists. And Canada's 4-3 victory which left the tally, three for us, three for them, and one even, was done in typical Canadian style.

It was robust, hard-hitting, and very rough; and although it was to Canada's advantage to play this way—it is the popular style in the NHL—the Russians took care of themselves just as well, and very well indeed.

Sure it was chippy, with honors about even; and it was ragged, the teams appeared to be on edge; and it was tense, especially in that dramatic third period. But that's hockey, exciting hockey!

When Paul Henderson scored the winning goal with only a few minutes to play, all of Canada must have jumped for joy.

At least some 3,000 in Moscow did, and centre Phil Esposito, who scored two goals, probably said it best for the team, when he suggested:

"The Canadian fans here really boosted our morale."

As it was Canada might have been just a bit fortunate to come out of the first period with a 2-2 tie. The team wasn't playing that well. But the tempo picked up in the scoreless second frame, and from there it was a cliff-hanger, and, until Henderson scored, anybody's hockey game.

Some Spirit and Determination

But from the series, as played in Russia, a few items.

First, this is a far better Team Canada than played in Vancouver, when the Russians won, 5-3. At least there now is a determination and team spirit that was strangely lacking at home. And in retrospect, it might have been the fans' booing that cemented the club together. If the players weren't as good as they thought they were, the fans told them, and they listened.

Secondly, the finest line for Canada, game in and game out, has been the Paul Henderson—Bobby Clarke—Ron Ellis unit. They have handled the Russians' big line in a checking role, while also providing much of the Team Canada firepower—particularly Henderson. Ellis, meanwhile, has been a shadow for Valeri Kharlamov, easily the pick of the Russian forwards and, without Ellis on his back, likely the standout of the whole lot.

On defence, the nod, for a unit, must go to Pat Stapleton and Bill White. They have been the steadiest. But for occasional individual brilliance, Serg Savard gets the choice here. He has been strong, both ways, and carries the puck as well as anyone.

For spear carriers, it's a toss-up between both clubs. Oh, the Canadians aren't gentle, despite some protests, and the hitting is just as heavy as in the NHL, except perhaps that the sticks are lower. That's the basic difference.

The Russians, meanwhile, can take it, and give it, and do. The trouble is that in the NHL players retaliate when fouled, and then the battle is on. International hockey, if the penalty is missed the retaliator is the culprit, and quickly penalized. Only in the game Tuesday, did the Canadians appear to have learned the lesson. They waited.

Phil Esposito—A Leader

For one completely dominant personality for Team Canada, Phil Esposito stands head and shoulders above all the rest. He has been the team leader—right from the beginning. He has even been telling the officials how to do their job and frankly, has been getting away with more of it than he has been called for. And more power to him—for Canada's sake.

Speaking of lessons, there is one that obviously Canada must learn, or perhaps already has.

It is how to put on a real power play.

In this phase of the game, The Russians are supreme—even excellent—and even the most biased observer must marvel at their puck control. Tuesday they scored two goals while having the odd man, narrowly missed two others, and quite frankly, it's always life-and-death for Team Canada when Canada is short-handed.

Not so, the other way. Team Canada has come up dead, using the NHL style, and in the entire series has scored only one goal. This was expected to be the NHL's big advantage; or perhaps it is like coach Harry Sinden said wryly:

"The reason we have a problem with our power play is that we don't get the opportunity to practice it during games."

Analyst Howie Meeker put it more to the point: "On the Russians' power play, the NHL 'box' is useless."

Now, on Thursday, it's a biggie, for all of hockey. The winner gets it all, and as Gary Bergman has called it! The Borscht Cup.

The betting here is:

Lions Return End to Esks

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions have traded defensive end Roy Shanzko to Edmonton Eskimos in return for a second-round draft choice in the 1973 Canadian draft, the rights to a player on the Eskimos negotiation list and future considerations.

The Lions obtained Shanzko from Edmonton in a July trade which sent offensive lineman Bob Howes to the Eskimos.

Shanzko did not report to the Lions and was placed on the suspended list until traded back to Edmonton.

MOSCOW (CP) — Paul Henderson, bouncing off a Russian defenceman in the dying moments of the game, has turned the Canada-Russia hockey series into a sudden death affair.

His goal, which came with dramatic suddenness, gave Team Canada a 4-3 victory Tuesday night to tie the series at three games each with one tied. The final will be played Thursday night.

Coach Harry Sinden said later: It forced an eighth game, which might just well be the most exciting game of hockey ever played.

And coach Vsevolod Bobrov rapped one of his own players: Our defence played well, but (Gennady) Tsyganov cost us the winning goal.

Phil Esposito scored two for Canada with Rod Gilbert and Henderson getting the others, Alexander Yakushev scored two for Russia, Vladimir Petrov getting the other.

The teams were tied 2-2 at the end of the first period and there was no scoring in a somewhat slow second period.

OPENS SCORING

Esposito opened the scoring when Ron Ellis and Brad Park dug the puck out of the corner to the left of goalie Vladislav Tretiak and fed the big Boston Bruins centre right in front of the goal.

Park was the goat on the first Russian goal. Vladimir Shadrin fed a lead pass to Yakushev at the blue line and Park fell while turning, allowing the Russian to go right in on Tony Esposito and put the puck between his pads.

Defenceman Bill White was off on a penalty signalled as hooking but announced as interference, when Vladimir Vilkulov had the puck deflected onto his stick off Park's skate and fed Petrov who went in alone on Esposito, drew him and flipped the puck high into the open corner.

Just over a minute later and with less than three minutes to play in the period, Jean-Paul Parise and Serge Savard set up Esposito's second goal to tie the score.

Savard, playing with a cracked bone in one ankle, dug the puck out of the corner and fed Parise at the blueline. Parise passed weakly ahead to Esposito—standing between him and Tretiak directly in front of the net—and Esposito fired through a maze of legs.

With little more than a minute to go, Tony Esposito was felled by a hard shot that caught him under the chin. He went to the bench for minor repairs and returned.

THREE TO FOUR

During the scoreless second period, seven penalties were called and at one time Team Canada was playing three men to Russia's four.

The third period was little more than two minutes old when Dennis Hull and Jean Ratelle worked the puck out of the corner, sending it sliding behind the net to Gilbert. Gilbert swung the puck in front of Tretiak as the Russians were caught in the corner, and tucked a backhand behind the goalie.

About 90 seconds later, Gary Bergman was called for holding on Yakushev and, with 11 seconds left in his penalty, Yakushev scored the Russians' second power-play goal of the night.

'BIG M' IN BIG GAME

Times News Services

MOSCOW — Frank Mahovich will replace Bill Golds-worthy for the final hockey game against the Soviet Union because of his "big game" experience, Team Canada coach Harry Sinden said today.

Sinden also said he would not hesitate to pull goalie Ken Dryden, who will start, and put in Tony Esposito if the former does not play well.

Defencemen Pat Stapleton and Bill White were both injured in Tuesday's game, won by the Canadians 4-3. Sinden has named Dale Tallon to suit up in case either is not ready Thursday.

Star Soviet centre Valeri Kharlamov, injured in Sunday's game, was also a doubtful starter for the final Sinden said.

Alexander Yakushev, named the most valuable Soviet player in all three of the Moscow games, has assumed Kharlamov's starring role.

"He's one of the greatest left wingers I've ever seen in my life," Sinden said of Yakushev.

Meanwhile, the official Soviet News Agency has questioned whether it is feasible for Russia to play Canada again.

"The Canadian pros play too rough a game," Tass News Agency said. "The Canadians are a strong team," Tass acknowledged. Then it added, "Defenceman Gary Bergman tried to start an overt scuffle that flared into a free-for-all and another player shot a puck at goalie Tretiak's face after a whistle."

"The question arises whether it is worthwhile to meet them in the future."

The win gave Ottawa a sweep of the two games on their western swing, making them the first team in the CFL thus far this season to win both games on road trips to the other conference.

The Riders took a disputed 10-9 win over Edmonton Eskimos Saturday.

Lions Lose Another In Burst of Charity

VANCOUVER (CP) — "Hell, they got the two interceptions and that was the ball game."

Eagle Keys, who has taken on the appearance of a battered bloodhound as his British Columbia Lions absorb loss after loss in the Canadian Football League, had hit the nail on the head in describing his club's last-minute 20-17 loss to Ottawa Rough Riders in an interlocking contest Tuesday night.

RIDERS ON TOP ALONE

Don Moorhead, who had sparked up to the last five minutes of the game, was the victim of the interceptions, and together they spelled undisputed possession of first place in the Eastern Football Conference for the Riders and at least another week in last place in the West for the Lions, now 2-8 for the season.

The Riders, who ran their record to 7-2 with the victory, were in trouble until Moorhead served up the goodies.

Tom Pullen had given Ottawa a 7-0 lead in the first quarter, but touchdowns by Jim Evenson and Jim Young, and a 20-yard field goal by Ted Gersla after an Ottawa touchdown by Terry Wellesley, had given the Lions a 17-14 edge going into the last five minutes.

It was at that point that Moorhead made his first major mistake, calling a screen pass to Monroe Eley.

Defensive end Wayne Smith of the Riders smelled it out, slid along the line, and grabbed the ball with eager hands. The interception gave the Riders a first down on the Lions' 41.

The Riders couldn't convert the opportunity into points, but they had the Lions hemmed in deep.

A no-yards penalty on a subsequent kick by the Lions gave the Rough Riders the ball on the B.C. 27. Two run-

'Fat Cats' Draw Warning

Los Angeles Kings' manager Larry Regan is without major contract problems, but there are times he wishes he had some of those annual pre-season difficulties.

But for the rookies, most of the Kings had been signed to the National Hockey League contracts before the start of their Memorial Arena training camp.

"It's been a good camp," said Regan Tuesday, "but there are times when I detect a fat-cat attitude. Because they're signed, a couple of players don't appear to be putting out as much as they would if they were fighting for their jobs."

"But I've got news for them. We're down to 23 players, and that means four will have to be dropped."

The Kings, who face Minnesota North Stars in a Saturday exhibition at Memorial Arena, got down to 23 Tuesday by assigning six players to their Springfield farm in the American League.

They were goaltender Bob Vroman, defencemen Bryon Baltimore and Wayne Lachance, and forwards Normand Dube, Ross Webley and Phil Hoene.

The Coast-bound North Stars came out Tuesday to snap Vancouver's three-game winning streak by shading the Canucks, 2-1, in Bloomington, Minn., on goals by Jerry Byers and Terry Holbrook. Brian McSheffrey scored the Vancouver goal.

Elsewhere around the camps, the rookie-laden Montreal Canadiens bombed Toronto Maple Leafs 10-1; Mike Walton broke a 3-3 tie early in the third period to spark Boston Bruins to a 5-3 win over Chicago Black Hawks; Pittsburgh Penguins blanked Atlanta Flames 1-0 behind the stellar netminding of Jim Rutherford and Dennis Herron, and California Golden Seals tied Buffalo Sabres 3-3.

Lowell MacDonald, making a comeback after two years and four knee operations, scored the only goal for Pittsburgh. Herron, a 20-year-old rookie from Trois Rivières, Que., extended a personal streak to just one goal allowed in 137 minutes against NHL opposition.

Veteran Henri Richard and Guy Lafleur each scored two goals for Montreal against the Leafs, who continue to experience goaltending problems.

Young Cougars Over-Awed In Vancouver

VANCOUVER—The youthful Victoria Cougars were a little over-awed by the size of the Pacific Coliseum last night and it brought an end to their five-game winning streak in Western Canada Junior Hockey League pre-season play.

Cougars, with only four returns, got off to a slow start and wound up dropping a 5-3 decision to their WCHL rivals, Vancouver Nats, in the 16,000-seat building.

"This was the first time most of our kids played in a building that size," Cougar chief scout Bob Bristow said after the game. "They were a little over-awed. They just seemed to be gawking around for the first period."

Nats took advantage for a 2-1 lead at the end of the first and increased it to 4-1 at the end of the second.

One Cougar rookie who took it in stride was 15-year-old goaltender Danny Rogers, who went the distance and performed steadily.

"If it wasn't for him, they'd have been ahead 4-1 in the first," Bristow said. Rogers joined Cougars this year from Saanich Midgets.

The game was highlighted by a brawl that erupted with 5½ minutes to go. Vancouver defenceman Marv Lank, touched off by high-sticking Victoria forward Frank Hyndman. Both players drew major penalties.

Lank preceded Hyndman into the penalty box and as the Victoria player stepped in, Lank belted him squarely on the nose.

That touched off a free-for-all that resulted in game misconducts to six players, three from each club. Cougars drawing penalties were Cal Kitching, Dale Cook and Don Williams.

Hyndman, meanwhile, was sent to hospital with a broken nose and is a doubtful starter for tonight's scrimmage game at Richmond Arena between Cougars and Vancouver Fraser Arm, an intermediate club.

That will be Cougars' last exhibition game until they open their regular schedule a week from tomorrow night in New Westminster against the Bruins. Cougars' home opener is two nights later against Calgary Centennials at Memorial Arena.

Bill Kidd paced Vancouver with two goals while Tim Peck, Rick Winkler and Bob Sperling added singles. Williams, a rookie centre from Edmonton, scored twice for Cougars while Dave Faulkner picked up his seventh goal in three games.

In other WCHL pre-season action last night, Medicine Hat Tigers beat Swift Current Broncos, 5-1, in Medicine Hat while Edmonton Oil Kings posted a 4-3 home-ice win over Regina Pats.

Scott No Help to Sox Now

By The Associated Press
George Scott helped Boston Red Sox win a pennant in 1967 and could help them lose one in 1972.

The former Boston slugger, dealt to Milwaukee Brewers last winter, returned to haunt the Red Sox Tuesday night in the midst of their tension-filled American League East baseball race.

"If I say I'm not fired up playing here, I'd be telling a lie," Scott said after hitting a two-run homer at Fenway Park that led the Brewers to a 6-4 triumph over Boston.

The defeat cut Boston's lead in the East to a half-game over Detroit Tigers and kept the four-team race alive.

The Tigers and New York Yankees, both idle Tuesday night, gained ground on the Red Sox. The Yankees moved within 2½ games of Boston in a tie with Baltimore Orioles, who lost 3-2 to Cleveland Indians.

In the other games, Kansas City Royals stopped Chicago White Sox 2-1 and California Angels nipped Texas Rangers 2-1. Rain washed out a twin-night doubleheader between Minnesota Twins and Oakland Athletics.

The Red Sox were unable to hold a 4-0 lead built on early two-run homers by Carl Yastrzemski and pitcher Marty Pattin. The Brewers tied it by the eighth.

Brock Davis touched off Milwaukee's winning rally with a bunt single and eventually came around with the first run on Ellie Rodriguez's sacrifice fly.

Chris Chambliss and Ray Fosse hit consecutive home runs in the fourth inning to lead Cleveland over Baltimore, dealing the Orioles their 32nd one-run defeat of the year.

Chambliss drilled Mike Cuellar's pitch over the right centre field fence to break a scoreless tie. Two pitches later, Fosse hit another Cuellar delivery over the fence.

Steve Busby pitched a five-bitter and Ed Kirkpatrick slammed a home run as Kansas City beat Chicago and dropped the White Sox four games behind Oakland.

In the National League, Steve Blass, hoping to become Pittsburgh's first 20-game winner since Vernon Law managed it in 1960, won his 19th by scattering eight hits as the Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-1.

Blass is expected to have at least one more start before the NL playoff with Cincinnati Reds, who had their problems Tuesday as Atlanta Braves ripped 18-game winner Don Gullet for seven runs in six innings to hand the Redlegs a 10-9 defeat.

In other games, the New York Mets downed St. Louis Cardinals 3-1.

Chicago Cubs blanked Montreal Expos 6-0, San Francisco Giants defeated Houston Astros 5-2 and Los Angeles Dodgers beat San Diego Padres 7-3.

Pittsburgh's Roberto Clemente picked up a pair of singles against the Phillies to raise his major league hit total to 2,996, putting him just four short of a lofty mark reached by only eight other players in the history of the game.

Pittsburgh has two more games in Philadelphia before returning home to face New York and Pirates' manager Bill Virdon announced right after that game that, if Clemente reached 2,999, he'd be benched until the start of the series with the Mets.

"That's what I want," Roberto said. "I play all my life in Pittsburgh."

The Atlanta victory was powered by Dusty Baker, who hit his 17th homer, and Hank Aaron, who banged out No. 32.

Aaron's also was the 671st of his career, leaving him just 43 short of Babe Ruth's all-time record.

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Trainer Lucien Laurin said Monday that Meadow Stable's Riva Ridge, heading for United States horse-of-the-year and top three-year-old honors, will run in the Washington, D.C., International at Laurel race track on Nov. 11.

NHL Schedule Heaviest Yet

MONTREAL (CP) — The most bulky schedule in the history of the National Hockey League begins Oct. 7 with seven games that night.

The menu for the league's 56th season stretches through 624 games and contains 78 contests more than last season's schedule due to the addition of two new teams — Atlanta Flames and New York Islanders.

As in past seasons, more than half the schedule is made up of weekend games, with 168 planned for Saturdays and 147 scheduled for Sundays.

Canada's two TV networks will show a total of 49 games during the regular season of the NHL — plus a 50th game when the all-star game is seen on the CBC from New York Tuesday, Jan. 30.

Network officials said Tuesday the CBC will show 26 Saturday games from Oct. 7 through March 31 (Channels 2 and 6 in the Victoria area) while CTV will have 23 Wednesday games Oct. 11 through March 28 (Channel 8), missing two Wednesdays in November.

Seattle's Channel 5 is expected to show NBC games on Sunday mornings starting in January but has not yet released a schedule.

The fall CBC Saturday and CTV Wednesday schedules follow, with all games due to start at 5 p.m. Victoria time and subject to change without notice:

Vikings Bank On an Early Hockey Start

The early bird gets the worm, they say, and new coach Ron Maxwell is hoping the same holds true for University of Victoria's hockey Vikings this year.

Vikings, last in the Canada West Athletic Association last season, are making an early start this time, opening their pre-season schedule Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in Lake Cowichan and then meeting Ingham Buckaroos of the Stuffy McGinnis League Sunday at 3 p.m. at the new Juan de Fuca rink in Colwood.

Maxwell, a former coach of Victoria Cougars, already has run the squad through several training camp sessions and has trimmed the roster to 18 players. He'll make one more cut before the regular season starts Nov. 12.

Inexperience hurt the Vikings last year, but Maxwell has Larry Hackman back from a year's travel in Europe and that will give him an experienced forward line in Hackman, Dave Cousins and George Walton.

Maxwell also has settled on a second forward unit in Scott Munro, Don Gemmill of Powell River and Jack Richardson. The third line remains a question mark, but Maxwell can draw from Gord Palmer, Brent Kaufman, Terry Oscarson. The third line remains a Donald.

MacDonald has displayed the hardest shot on the team.

Jim Inglis, another newcomer from Vernon, has been a standout on defence. Wayne Hendry, who played for the Cougars two years ago under Maxwell, is back.

Pierre Bergeron of Powell River, Bill Collins from University of British Columbia and Greg Bush are other rearguards.

Murray Finlay, a former Cougar who has played in Chicago Black Hawks' farm system, is in goal along with Alan Hneeda, with Selkirk College in Castlegar last season.

Five U.S. Cities Want Into CFL

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The owner of a local minor league football team says he will meet Thursday with Canadian Football League Commissioner Jake Gaudaur to propose that an American division be added to the CFL in 1973.

Henry Hight said he will request that the Canadian league award franchises to five cities—San Antonio, Phoenix, Las Vegas, Seattle and Los Angeles.

Hight, owner of San Antonio Toros, said he will be accompanied at the meeting with Gaudaur in Toronto, by Phoenix Blazer owner Dr. Howard Sherman.

The San Antonio and Phoenix teams are members of the Southwestern Football League. The Toros are undefeated in eight games this season.

Sears-Tex
TEXTURED COATINGS

Simpsons-Sears proudly introduces their new product, SIMPSONS-SEARS-TEX, the modern textured exterior wall coating that is applied with heavy-duty spray equipment. SIMPSONS-SEARS-TEX textured coating is pressure-sealed to any exterior surface—stucco, brick block, stone or wood. It beautifies, insulates, protects your exterior walls for a minimum of 15 years.

• One coat of SIMPSONS-SEARS-TEX is thicker than 20 coats of ordinary house paint, yet it permits the walls to "breathe."

• SIMPSONS-SEARS-TEX seals cracks, covers flaws but does not conceal original architectural lines. It's flexible, won't chip, flake or peel... yet it's tough, because it is fortified with fiberglass combined with indestructible minerals, titanium, asbestos, mica and perlite.

• You'll love the soft-textured finish of SIMPSONS-SEARS-TEX that gives your home a lifetime of new beauty. You'll enjoy extra fire protection, extra weather-proofing, extra insulation for years to come.

• SIMPSONS-SEARS-TEX is guaranteed for 15 years against chipping or peeling.

• Your choice of many lovely decorator colours, SIMPSONS-SEARS-TEX is applied without fuss, muss or odor by specially certified trained workmen whose work is guaranteed. You will really be surprised at its low, low cost.

GUARANTEED FOR 15 YEARS

Textured coating applied to the structure is hereby guaranteed against chipping, flaking or peeling for a period of 15 years from the date of application. Buy now, no payment or carrying charges 'til Oct. 1, 1972.

Bays Reach Final By Dropping Lakers

One finalist was decided Tuesday night in the Victoria and District Soccer League's McGavin Cup competition, but the other won't be determined until Oct. 10.

Oak Bay made it to the final by downing first division rival Prospect Lake, 2-1, at Royal Athletic Park on goals by centre-forward Barry Moen and right-winger Bob Mackie. Prospect Lake's counter came in the last five minutes when inside-forward Ted King's shot bounced in off a defender.

HORSEPLAY ENDS QB's CAREER

MIAMI (AP) — A near-fatal dormitory accident has ended the college football career of University of Miami quarterback John Hornbrook.

Hornbrook severed an artery and ligament just above the elbow of his passing arm while "horsing around" Monday night with three teammates after watching a pro game on television.

"Hornbrook lost so much blood he almost died — that's what they told me," coach Fran Curci said. Hornbrook was reported in satisfactory condition today after transfusions and emergency surgery.

Eagles Coach Gets a Vote Of Confidence

PHILADELPHIA (CP-AP) — Head coach Ed Khayat of Philadelphia Eagles got a vote of confidence Monday from owner Leonard Tose in the wake of the Eagles' 0-2 record in National Football League play this year.

Tose, who remained silent through a 1-5 pre-season mark, discounted reports the club was "completely demoralized" under Khayat. The allegations were made by full-back Tom Woodeshick when he was cut by the Eagles.

"I haven't had any ball players tell me they didn't have admiration for him," Tose said of the coach he hired midway through the 1971 season to replace Jerry Williams.

Williams got a similar vote of confidence from Tose after the Eagles got off on the wrong footing.

Pirate Catcher Suffers Slump

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Manny Sanguillen is in a batting slump, the first of his free swinging major league career, but his disposition is bright as ever.

"No, I am not worried; I never worry," the grinning Pittsburgh Pirate catcher said after going 0-4 in a recent game.

Though he still has a relatively high .293 batting average, it has fallen more than 30 points since July 30.

In that period, he has managed 34 hits in 160 times at bat for a .213 average — far below normal for the .313 lifetime hitter.

Montreal Report Claims Argo Coach on Way Out

MONTREAL (CP) — Television station CFCF-TV said Tuesday night head coach Leo Cahill of Toronto Argonauts will be replaced shortly despite recent assurances from the Toronto management to the contrary.

The station said that it had learned "from reliable sources" that Cahill, whose Canadian Football League Argos have only one win in nine starts this season, will be replaced within the next two weeks by Bob Ward, former Montreal Alouette defensive coach.

Ward left the Alouettes before the regular season started, declaring he could not see eye to eye with head coach Sam Etcheverry.

The report said the Argos are negotiating with Ward, who was with Ottawa Rough Riders as an assistant before joining the Alouettes for their 1970 Grey Cup performance.

The story was denied vehemently by Argo general manager John Barrow.

"It's a total, absolute untruth," Barrow said in Toronto. "It's a lie."

Toronto owner John Bassett was out of the country and not available for comment.

"There are no moves underway to replace him."

"There is no way the guy is going to be let go."

LONDON (AP) — Bob Foster knocked out Chris Finnegan with a smashing left and right to the head in the 14th round of a slugging match for Foster's world light heavyweight championship Tuesday night.

The 33-year-old American had begun to look tired when he suddenly ended the fight at 55 seconds of the next-to-last round.

"Finnegan is the toughest boxer I have met since I became champion," said Foster, who lives in Albuquerque, N.M.

Foster weighed 174½ pounds to 173½ for the Briton. The class limit is 175.

Finnegan was more than holding his own with the 6-foot-3 champion for the first nine rounds and seemed to be taking command.

But in the 10th round Foster struck with a straight right-hand punch to the jaw that knocked Finnegan down for the first time in 27 pro fights.

In the 14th with Finnegan looked the fresher of the two Foster suddenly ended it with a left-right combination to the head.

It was Foster's 11th title defence, including fights in which he did not have World Boxing Association recognition, since he won the title by knocking out Dick Tiger in 1968.

Farmer Beaten To Death

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A 44-year-old farmer was found beaten to death Tuesday in a ditch near his Vivian Lake farm, 30 miles northwest of here.

The man, his name withheld by police, was found in a ditch beside his blood-covered pickup truck.

Police arrested another farmer in his house near the scene and were questioning him.

The dead man, father of eight, was beaten around the head and apparently crossed to the opposite side of the road before collapsing.

Body Found

SQUAMISH (CP) — The body of Kenneth Everett Valieu, 31, of Alta Lake, has been found in his car near Alta Lake, 60 hours after the car struck a horse, then plunged off Highway 99 into heavy bush. The horse was at first thought to have been hit by a car that fled from the scene.

Injunction Ignored

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — About 300 pulpmill workers at Northwood Pulp Ltd. here Tuesday rejected a suggestion from their union executive that they return to work, as ordered to by a court injunction granted the company earlier in the day. The union has charged the company with violating a long-standing agreement by allowing men who are not members of Local 603 of the United Paper Workers Union to operate equipment.

$1,500 Fine

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Robert Bruce Andrews of New Westminster Tuesday was fined $1,500 on six charges of driving without automobile insurance when he appeared in provincial court before Judge Harvey Jessop. He was also fined $10 on three charges of driving without vehicle registration papers in his possession, $10 for having no tail-light and $5 for failing to have a driver's licence.

Pollution Charge

SURREY (CP) — Tammien Pole Services Ltd. was charged Tuesday with discharging a deleterious substance into waters frequented by fish. Maximum penalty for the offence is $5,000 fine. Dead fish, including sticklebacks, coho fry and trout, were found in a half-mile stretch of a creek here last month, after the area had been sprayed with herbicide.

Suit Dismissed

KELOWNA (CP) — Mr. Justice G. F. T. Gregory of the British Columbia Supreme Court Tuesday dismissed a suit brought by Edmonton businessman Haynes Chase in which he sought a total of $450,000 from eleven men and companies headed by Okanagan land developer Harold Marshall.

Mr. Justice Gregory said Chase had not complied with several rules of the court and was not licensed to operate in B.C.

Chase sought $200,000 for alleged breach of agreement and another $250,000 as his five-per-cent commission on more than $5 million he said he had secured for the developers.

The men and companies were involved in developments in Oyama, Okanagan Centre, Kalamalka Lake and Kamloops.

Nurse Shortage

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Registered Nurses' Association of British Columbia will investigate a reported shortage of registered nurses at provincial hospitals during the last summer. President Margaret S. Neylan hopes to get the study underway soon. Inquiries will also be made as to whether any similar problems existed in other provinces and what steps, if any, have been taken to ease holiday-staffing problems during the summer.

Two-Month Term

VANCOUVER (CP) — Douglas Jack Mohr, 47, was sentenced to two months in jail and fined $250 Tuesday after pleading guilty to charges resulting from a fatal traffic accident last April 23. Keith Brooks, 16, of Surrey was killed when a car slammed into him as he stood with a group of wedding guests outside a hall. Mohr pleaded guilty to charges of dangerous driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

North Parks Urged

MORAN, Wyo. (AP) — A Canadian zoologist says it still is possible to locate large national parks in parts of Canada and Alaska that will not be affected by the development of petroleum resources.

He said the industrial speedup in the northern reaches is a threat to the polar and sub-polar regions and "there is a real urgency to establish additional in-violate areas before the landscape is seriously and widely scarred."

"The race is on, but the outcome is by no means clear," said Dr. W. A. Fuller of the department of zoology at the University of Alberta in Edmonton.

Fuller, who delivered a technical paper Sunday to the Second World Conference on National Parks, said one oil industry representative in Canada estimated that 150,000 miles of seismic lines would be required to delineate Arctic oil fields.

"The potential for esthetic despoliation of an enormous area through seismic exploration is truly horrendous," he said.

He also noted the threat of oil spills, the disposal of camp wastes and the movement of hot oil through pipelines in the fragile permafrost areas of the polar area.

"Areas so destroyed would have minimal appeal as national parks for decades or even centuries," he said.

He said producing wells would only be a small portion of the Arctic land so that would leave large areas to set aside as parks.

"The North American rubber-tired society is eager to penetrate the most remote regions," he said. "Before tourism is counted an unmitigated blessing in the north, we must determine the carrying capacity of permafrost areas for booted feet."

He said the search for and development of mineral resources as practised in Canada are "totally at odds with principles of conservation."

"Yet, because of the economic importance of extractive industries, the miners continue to wield a big stick."

Bikers Take Prizes

Dave Moore topped the open class to win the F. W. Francis Trophy and Terry Hyde reported the fastest time of the day to claim the Paul Girardau Trophy and share top honors in the Victoria Motorcycle Club's annual Mt. Douglas Hillclimb on Sunday.

Hyde raced up the Mt. Douglas course in 3.85 seconds, well off the record of 5.23.

Lloyd Bergner won the novice event while Harold Perelakin took the 350 and under category to win other honors in an event first held in 1928.

MOW'S FARM GETS $150,000

An arbitration award of more than $150,000 for expropriation of Mow's Farm property on Patricia Bay Highway has been given to the property owners.

The sum payable by the provincial highways department covers $133,300 for land and buildings, loss of business, loss of produce and water supply and 5 per cent interest since May 13, 1971, in addition to $18,200 previously agreed upon.

Highrise Planned by Church

City council has received a proposal for a 16-storey highrise building to contain senior citizens' apartments, at the corner of North Park and Quadra.

The $1.7 million project is sponsored by the First Baptist Church and will have funding from the city and provincial government, as well as Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Ald. Mike Young, chairman of the planning committee, said today the proposed highrise will house 157 suites and the complex will include a church.

Basically the plans conform with the area's C2 zoning requirements, he said, although the setback is less than that stipulated and the underground parking provided would be less than 100 per cent.

However, such infractions could be overcome by the proposal coming forward as a land-use contract and Young said this will likely happen.

Dependent on the other financing being arranged, the city has agreed in principle to meet five per cent of the cost of the project, or about $80,000, Young added.

The president of Canadian Breweries Ltd., Alan Branson, said today he had no comment on actions by the Liquor Control Board cancelling a special banquet planned by the firm and suspending sale of Kronenbrau 1308 beer.

"Presumably," he said in a prepared statement, "this is as punishment for certain illegal promotional advertising practices which our company is alleged to have been guilty of."

The company said it has sent 2,500 telegrams of apology to people who had been invited to the "social."

RCMP's Higgitt Interpol Chief

FRANKFURT, West Germany — Commissioner William Leonard Higgitt of the RCMP was elected president of Interpol during the closing session of the 41st congress of the international police organization, Higgitt, whose term of office is four years, succeeds Paul Dickopf of West Germany in the top post of the police communications and intelligence-gathering network linking 114 countries. In his acceptance speech, Higgitt singled out control of the mushrooming world drug trade as one of Interpol's most important tasks. Higgitt told the 280 delegates to the rise of crime in many countries averages seven to 10 per cent annually, and urged Interpol members to emphasize crime prevention and better training for police to control drug abuse.

that brought newsmen to the conference room of a local motor hotel. "Kitten" 24, Miss Nude Cosmopolitan, held the news conference in the buff. There was a noticeable lack of questions when Miss Nativity, 36-22-35, shrugged out of a tight floor-length dress. Was she self-conscious undressing in front of strange men? "No, men can look at me all they want," she replied. "I feel I'm doing them a favor." "Kitten," a onetime go-go dancer in Los Angeles, now is a stripper, appearing in nearby Newport, Ky.

Lemieux Lawsuit Tossed Out

MONTREAL — A provincial court judge Tuesday dismissed a damage suit by lawyer Robert Lemieux and Pierre Cloutier against the Quebec justice minister, two judges and a crown prosecutor.

Lemieux and his legal associate filed a damage suit in June for loss of reputation and salary suffered when they were imprisoned for contempt of court last May.

Lemieux was seeking bail for Jacques Rose after Rose's trial on a charge of kidnapping Pierre Laporte in October, 1970, ended in a hung jury May 11. Lemieux refused to name jurors who, he said, had revealed to him the outcome of the jury's deliberations.

Justice Alphonse Barbeau sentenced him to eight days in jail.

Cloutier was sentenced to three days for a courtroom outburst immediately following the action against Mr. Lemieux. Mr. Justice Gaston Rondeau ordered Mr. Lemieux and Mr. Cloutier to pay court costs.

WASHINGTON — Senator Edward Kennedy says it's "a cynical hoax" to try to justify an existing bloodbath in Vietnam with the threat of a future bloodbath. He commented in the Senate on statements by Nixon administration spokesmen that a Communist takeover of South Vietnam would result in a mass slaughter. "We simply can no longer allow the spectre of a highly questionable bloodbath of the future to blind us from the real bloodbath that is going on today," he said.

CHICAGO — City policemen, apparently angered by Supt. James B. Conlisk's refusal to discuss demands for collective bargaining, wrote tickets at a record breaking rate Tuesday. "I've had guys come in with eight tickets

EAST GLACIER, Mont. — A $1.5 million film production with English actress Vanessa Redgrave has been forced to move from the Blackfoot reservation to a Canadian site because the actress, an outspoken critic of U.S. foreign policy, was denied a visa, rancher William Big Spring said Tuesday. The production, which will employ 200 to 300 Indians, has been shifted to the Stoney Indian Reservation west of Calgary, said Big Spring.

LONDON — British air stewardess Sheila Sanderson said Monday she had broken the world record for the fastest round the world trip for any woman using scheduled airlines flights. Miss Sanderson, 36, arrived at London Airport Sunday 58 hours 30 minutes after leaving it and flying 24,400 miles around the globe. She said she beat the previous record set in 1953 by the American, Pamela Martin, by more than 31 hours.

MOSCOW — Boris Nikolayevich Livanov, 68, one of the leading actors at the Moscow Arts Theatre, has died, Izvestia announced Monday night. He bore the distinguished title of People's Artist of the U.S.S.R. and won six state prizes for his performances on stage and screen.

Arctic Ice Turns Back Passage Try

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Poor ice conditions east of Cambridge Bay in Canada have forced a 25-year-old British explorer to give up his attempt to sail through the Northwest Passage this summer.

Colin Irwin, in a radio-telephone conversation with a spokesman for BP Alaska Inc. in Anchorage, said he is back at Cambridge Bay where he will spend his second winter.

Irwin told Charles Towill that he had reached Gjoa Haven on King William Island where he met ice packs four to five miles across which blocked further movement to the east.

Irwin said a group of Eskimos who were heading to the mainland to hunt caribou had their boat crushed in the ice and had to be rescued by helicopter. He said he knew that "if they couldn't make it, I couldn't."

Irwin is attempting to sail single-handedly through the Northwest Passage in an 18-foot boat. He left the small Alaska village of Galena on the Yukon River in June of 1971 in his sailboat Endeavour, putting in at Cambridge Bay for the winter.

Cambridge Bay is 900 miles east of the Alaska-Canada border.

Irwin said he left Cambridge Bay Aug. 18 and took about four weeks to reach Gjoa Haven. He met bad ice conditions after leaving Cambridge, he said, and could not use a direct route.

Instead, he detoured 200 miles to the south and followed the coast line.

"I had to get out of the boat on occasions and push it through the ice," Irwin said in his call. At Ogden Bay, Irwin became stuck in an ice pack for five days.

Irwin will spend the winter with an Eskimo family.

He will attempt to make a 1,000-mile winter dog sled trip to Churchill on Hudson Bay in Manitoba, he said, hoping to prove that if Sir John Franklin and his men had been able to travel and eat like the Eskimos, they could have reached Churchill instead of perishing in the Arctic as they did on their last expedition in 1845.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 36-year-old man was sentenced to 2½ years in prison by Judge William Ostler in provincial court Tuesday for forcing a woman to bed in exchange for an unpaid $40 moving bill.

Crown prosecutor John MacIntyre said Walter B. Mander, of 1421 Taunton, entered the woman's home with another man and told her they had come to collect the debt she owed Mander for a moving job Mander's company had done.

The woman's husband was not home at the time. The men sat down and began drinking a bottle of wine they had brought with them.

The other man left and Mander, who had become intoxicated, pushed the woman on to a bed removed her nightgown and had sexual intercourse, MacIntyre said.

Before sentence was imposed, defence counsel Ken Murphy called a character witness who testified that Mander had moved belongings of several welfare recipients at no cost.

Murphy said Mander's previous convictions, which include one other indecent assault charge, resulted from crimes committed when Mander was intoxicated.

Murphy said Mander has a drinking problem and a recommendation of a probation officer for a period of incarceration would be no solution.

"This offence arose directly out of the work this man does," said MacIntyre who agreed with the probation officer's recommendation.

The offence was a serious one and could have been more serious, said Ostler.

Johannes H. A. Minten, 29, of 1318 Walnut, was sentenced to 18 months to be served concurrently with a one-year sentence he is serving for a four-count charge of possession of stolen property over $50.

A Victoria police detective testified that items worth a total of $2,331.90, stolen between Nov. 4, 1971 and May 11, 1972 were found during a search of Minten's home.

Kenneth Gordon Tucker, 19, of 1378 Lyle, who was sentenced last week to six months definite and six months indeterminate for possession of heroin, was sentenced to one month to be served concurrently for theft under $200.

He pleaded guilty to stealing a steam iron, worth $21.98, from a Saanich store Sept. 2.

***

"Do you realize how drunk you were," said Ostler to a man who was found to have a blood-alcohol reading of .28 per cent after colliding with a parked car Sept. 25.

Oliver W. Memnock, 47, of 117 Superior, was fined $400 for impaired driving.

Brian Clayton Barnett, 20, of Montreal, was fined $250 for theft under $200.

He was apprehended by Victoria police Sept. 25 after he left a downtown store wearing a suede leather coat he had put on in the store. The coat was valued at $40 and when he was stopped he was found to have $27 in cash and a $10 traveller's cheque on his person.

***

Frank P. Ellis, 54, of no fixed address, was sentenced to two months for causing a disturbance by being drunk.

MacIntyre said he was removed from a downtown hotel lobby by Victoria police Sept. 26. He said Ellis was sitting in a lounge chair and was "only able to mutter."

MacIntyre began reading the record of previous convictions for the same offence and finished by saying, "and so on and so on and so on."

"You're never out for more than a few hours," said Ostler.

In traffic court, Oscar Walters, 51, of 2618 Dowler, was sentenced to 14 days for impaired driving.

He was arrested Sept. 1 after colliding with a parked car causing $500 damage. He had a blood-alcohol reading of .17 per cent.

Saskatchewan Test for NDP

URANIUM CITY, Sask. (CP) — A heavy turnout of voters was expected today, despite unseasonably cold weather, in the third Saskatchewan byelection since the New Democratic Party scored a dramatic upset over the Liberals 15 months ago.

Standing in the legislature is NDP 45 and Liberals 15 with the one seat, the remote northern riding of Athabasca, vacant.

There are about 4,200 eligible voters in the far-flung riding and returning officer Peter Enns said Tuesday that "there is definitely a lot of interest so we are expecting a lot of people to come out and vote."

The Athabasca byelection became necessary Feb. 14 when the results of the general election June 23, 1971, were overturned by Judge A. H. Bence of Court of Queen's Bench.

Twenty-five voters were ruled ineligible because they could not meet residence requirements after Liberal Allen Guy had defeated New Democrat Robert Dalby by 12 votes, 1,770 votes to 1,758.

There are four candidates in this byelection; the two original candidates and Ray Jones of Uranium City, a field-worker for the Metis Society of Saskatchewan who is running independently, and William H. McGill, a journalist from Prince Albert who is a Progressive Conservative.

Voting was from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. CST. There are 25 polls and two hospital polls.

Two previous by-elections left house standings unchanged. A Liberal was elected in Morse to succeed former premier Ross Thatcher who died a month after his Liberals were upset, and an NDP candidate was successful in Suris-Estevan where the NDP MLA had died.

Legal Aid in North

SASKATOON (CP) — An experimental legal assistance clinic, believed the first in Canada, has commenced operation in the Duck Lake, Wakaw and Rosthern areas north of here.

Saskatoon lawyer Donald Purich, director of the Valley Legal Assistance Clinic Society, said Tuesday the clinic is a continuation and expansion of a legal service commenced during the summer at Duck Lake to provide legal service for the rural poor. The clinic, staffed by Purich and a secretary, is financed by the private Canadian Donner Foundation. About 10 law students from the University of Saskatchewan would work with the clinic on a volunteer basis.

Drilling Halted

EDMONTON (CP) — A Shell Canada Ltd., oil drilling site in the Arctic was shut down for three days last week because of damage to tundra in a bird sanctuary, a Canadian Wildlife Service spokesman said Tuesday.

Dennis Surrendi said the service shut the rig down because the firm had deviated from its permit stipulations and ground damage resulted. The rig was being set up on Kendall Island a bird sanctuary in the Mackenzie delta. Work was stopped Sept. 20 and resumed Sept. 23 following negotiations between Shell and the service.

Drop Central Police

WINNIPEG (CP) — Attorney-General Al Mackling said Tuesday the three Prairie provinces have shelved plans for a joint police training academy but will attempt to co-ordinate instruction in certain specialized areas such as handwriting and voice analysis.

Following a meeting in Regina between the three Prairie attorneys-general Mackling said he is reasonably satisfied that most police training should be on a local and community level rather than regionally oriented.

Ottawa Funds Eyed

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta plans to seek federal financial aid for farmers whose crops were snowed under early this week, Hugh Horner, the provinces' agriculture minister, said Tuesday.

Ottawa had provided aid to Quebec and Ontario and "Alberta is looking for similar aid when more concrete figures are available on the losses," Dr. Horner said in an interview.

Jury Urges Treatment For Addicts

CALGARY (CP) — Lack of facilities to treat heroin addicts was a factor in the death Sept. 15 of a woman being held in police cells, a coroner's jury found Tuesday.

The jury was investigating the death of Jeanine McKenzie, 29, who died despite three trips to General Hospital, after each of which she was returned to city cells.

After hearing that the city has virtually no facilities for treating addicts in withdrawal, the jury recommended joint action from various levels of government to meet the need.

The jury attached no blame in the death.

What's so special about B.C. MILK?

The lush pasturelands of the Fraser Valley . . . the green rolling meadows of Vancouver Island, the Okanagan and other interior regions. Add the finest dairy herds to these rich grazing lands and you have the reason why every part of British Columbia enjoys a continuous supply of farm-fresh milk and other dairy products. In the warm weather months, we have a tendency to consume a wider variety of artificially flavored drinks . . . but there really isn't any substitute for the nourishing goodness of real fresh milk. Make sure you and your family enjoy a cold glassful next mealtime. Also enjoy the delightful flavor of B.C.-produced cottage cheese, yoghurt and ice cream. They come to you fresh from some of the finest dairy regions in North America.

A collection of recipes using B.C. dairy products is yours for the asking. Just write:

Food Cost Down In Month

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

It seems too good to be true!
Victoria's food prices have actually dropped in the past month, according to a food price survey done this week by the Times.

The survey of three local supermarkets shows a total food bill of $25.46 this week, compared with a $25.66 bill for the same food items at the same stores a month ago.

A local food price expert, who does monthly price checks in Victoria for Statistics Canada's Consumer Price Index, said she wasn't surprised that the survey showed a 20-cent price drop.

"Because of our competition here in Victoria, we have a lot of fluctuation, more than any other city in Canada," she said.

All stores have had a lot of specials on vegetables this month, she said.

The survey doesn't prove that local food prices have dropped permanently, the expert said. But it does show that "smart shoppers can beat the cost-of-living index if they watch their bargains," she said.

"This time of year vegetables are going to go down," said Mrs. John Mace, research and grievance chairman of the local branch of the Consumers Association of Canada. The survey showed that the lowest price for potatoes in the three stores has dropped five cents.

Some meat prices also seem to have dropped. All three supermarkets were offering sirloin steak for $1.75 a pound, four cents less than the lowest price in August.

And although bacon was the same or higher in two stores, the third store had marked one brand of bacon down from $1.15 to 99 cents a pound.

However, Mrs. Mace doesn't think food prices are really dropping.

"I've had a lot of calls about prices lately," she said. People ask her which store has the lowest prices, and she tells them she doesn't know.

"What we do is educate people to shop wisely, not to buy more than they need," she said.

The survey used the same 29 items that were included in the August survey. One item, fresh pineapple, was omitted because it wasn't on sale in any of the supermarkets this week.

Child's Book Takes Fear Out of Asthma

TORONTO (CP) -- Willy and the Wheeze is a booklet written to take some of the fear out of asthma. It is written for children age four to 10, to try to help them understand what happens when they have an asthma attack.

It was written by Helen Barron, a former English teacher and now a part time program co-ordinator with the York-Toronto Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Mrs. Barron said the idea occurred to her when she was watching a television program on asthma.

"No one in my family has asthma. Before I took this job, I really didn't know anything about it."

"I was watching a TV program and heard a doctor say you should understand what's going on when you have an asthma attack. It's affected by fear and tension. It's like having a baby and if you understand that, it's not nearly as frightening."

"I took some notes to two doctors, who like the idea."

Dr. Cecil Collins-Williams and Dr. Peter Turner, both of the Hospital for Sick Children checked the text, and Peter Meisner's illustrations.

The pictures are attractive, simple drawing intended to help younger children understand.

"The copy is a little more mature. I tried not to talk down. I think a 10-year-old could read it and not be embarrassed."

The booklet discusses the causes of asthma. It described what happens physically during an attack. It talks about treatment, including shots and the child's responsibility to look after himself and avoid the things that might bring on an attack.

Mrs. Barron says another booklet is being prepared for teachers, to explain to them what is happening to any of their pupils who are afflicted.

The booklets are available, free of charge, through local branches of the Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Housewives Break To Relax, Learn

Oak Bay's Women's Discussion Group has kicked off its second year with a call to other women in the city to start their own discussion groups.

"All of us would be perfectly willing to help them," said Barbara Huntley, organizer and driving force behind the Oak Bay group, at its first fall meeting Tuesday in Windsor Park Pavilion.

Mothers in Saanich and Esquimalt have shown interest in the discussion group, said Mrs. Huntley, but it's a long way for them to come every week. She would like women in Saanich and Esquimalt to form their own groups, modelled after the one in Oak Bay.

"I don't want to extend this group any more," Mrs. Huntley told the 12 members attending the morning meeting. If 16 of the group's 25 members turn up for each meeting, that's a good number for a discussion group, she said.

The Women's Discussion Group was born last February — out of boredom.

Bored at Home

Mr. Huntley, bored with spending every day in the house, decided to get together with other women interested in spending a few hours each week away from their children and broadening their horizons. With the help of Isabel Craig, recreation director for Oak Bay, she formed the discussion group.

"I thought a discussion group was the best format," Mrs. Huntley said. A program is planned for each week — either a guest speaker, a tour, or a topic to be discussed by the members themselves.

Some of this fall's topics include drugs, the psychology of children, yoga, the Women's Centre — a program designed specifically for women and set up under an Opportunities for Youth grant this summer, the Volunteer Bureau, and consumers affairs. The group will also tour the Provincial Museum, the legislative buildings and the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

The 50-cent weekly fee ($1.75 for four weeks) pays for gifts for guest speakers and two babysitters who care for children between age 2 and 5 while their mothers are meeting upstairs in the pavilion.

Break from Tots

Having the mothers and children "absolutely separate" is essential, said Mrs. Huntley. The meetings are sponsored to give mothers a complete break from their children, a chance to talk and relax and learn.

"When you get a babysitter that the mothers can trust... everything just works out perfectly," she said. Mrs. Huntley thinks it's important that the same babysitters are used every week, so the children build up trust in them.

Group members expressed concern at Tuesday's meeting that mothers with children under age 2 may be excluded from the group because the free babysitting isn't available to them. However, they decided that providing babysitters for children under 2 would be impractical.

Anyone interested in forming a women's discussion group in her area can call Mrs. Huntley at 598-1365.

Interested women are also invited to attend next week's meeting, Tuesday, Oct. 3, at 9:45 a.m., in Windsor Park Pavilion. Mrs. John Mace, of the Victoria branch of the Consumers Association of Canada, will talk about the grading of meats.

dear abby

Some Night Out

DEAR ABBY: For 18 years I've tried to get this point across to my husband, but he doesn't listen. He follows your advice to the letter, and if he reads this with your comments it will help our marriage.

We seldom go out socially, and when I mention a night out, he says, "Okay, Honey, let's go! You order theatre tickets to whatever you want to see, and you make reservations for dinner wherever you want to eat. Press my such-a-color shirt and pick up my suit, and be sure the gas tank is filled so we won't have to stop for gas."

Abby, by the time I have done all that and have fed the kids, my evening out is no longer special. Then he gets disgusted because I'm not bubbling over with enthusiasm when we go out the door. The last six months I have told him I have changed my mind, and don't feel like going, and that makes him angry.

Please tell him to once come home and say, "I have tickets to a play on this or that night, also reservations to dine at this restaurant, let the kids eat peanut butter, just pretty yourself up and let's go."

Maybe then I could generate some enthusiasm. Thanks. —Dull Luster.

DEAR DULL: Are you feeling well, dear? Maybe you need a checkup. As I see it, ordering tickets to a play of your choice, and making dinner reservations at your favorite restaurant, and pressing a shirt and picking up a suit and filling a gas tank isn't all that much work. Now, what's really bothering you?

Scientist Outlines 'Rural Society'

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — A noted scientist said Tuesday the crowding of 184 million Americans into less than 10 per cent of the nation's land area is nurturing "vicious problems" that will become completely insolvable.

But Dr. Peter C. Goldmark said society has the knowledge to move 100 million people from the great urban centres to underpopulated rural areas, creating "an informed and well-cared-for people in a living and eternal testimonial to the validity of the American dream."

He said the secret is to make use of advanced communications techniques.

Goldmark is an inventor known for creating the long-playing phonograph record, the first practical color television system and the video cassette. He now is president of Goldmark Communications Corporation, and he outlined his dream of a "new rural society" to the Federation of Rocky Mountain States.

Goldmark said the United States cannot continue the process of crowding the bulk of its population into urban areas.

"If we allow high-density living to continue unchecked, the vicious problems of crime, narcotics, illiteracy, poverty and pollution will become completely insolvable," he said. "At the same time, solutions to controllable traffic, adequate housing and enjoyable living for millions will become insolvable."

He said the migration from rural areas is due to three reasons:

—Lack of suitable employment opportunities.
—Inadequate educational and health services.

—Lack of social, cultural and recreational pursuits.

Use of new communications technology can be used in each of these areas to "improve conditions considerably," Goldmark said.

He said the imaginative application of telecommunications would enable business and government units, separated over wide distances, to function effectively although they are located in rural areas.

Goldmark said the same techniques can be used to improve medical service and educational opportunities in rural areas, linking local hospitals to large medical centres by video circuits, and using similar circuits to link local campuses to central universities.

Improved communications also could be used, he said, to relay "live performances from Broadway theatres, from operas, concerts, sports events, political, religious and educational meetings" to all cities and towns in America.

"We need only to turn to science and technology and its already developed techniques and facilities and put them to work," Goldmark said.

Bachelors entertain with wine and candlelight lunch

FOUR 'BEAUTS' ONCE A WEEK

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For 23 years, a never-changing group of swinging bachelors called the Tuesday Down town Operators and Observers have been inviting the city's most beautiful girls to wine and candlelight lunch under terms no girl could refuse.

Even in these days of women's liberation, it's tough to turn down a chance to be one of three or four girls at lunch with 16 of the city's most eligible men.

The TDOs, as they are commonly known, are a strictly social group of successful professional men between the ages of 24 and 38 headed by a "Dean of Women" and a "Vice Dean," who is the chief girl scout.

They pride themselves on camaraderie, good times and creative parties.

Since March 29, 1949, when the first TDO luncheon was held in the now demolished St. Julien's Restaurant, "Dean of Women" Ed Madigan estimated that about 3,000 women have been invited.

"We've been going since 1949," Madigan said. "The parties we have are super. I think we get the cream of the crop of San Francisco bachelors."

Volunteer Work... Well Done

This is a story about a group of Victoria doctors who donated a part of their holiday time this past summer to give medical care to the people of the Mackenzie district.

It also tells of the problems that arose to plague this volunteer effort and of the rewarding results that finally came out of it.

I've no doubt many of you remember a press story early in the year announcing departure of two doctors who had served the Mackenzie district for some years. They were coming out, as I remember the item, for further study and post-graduate work.

Another doctor had been procured but he could not go elizabeth forbes

north immediately. So an appeal went out asking for someone to fill in until the new man arrived.

Victoria's Dr. Frank Gouws volunteered. He stayed up there for several weeks last spring until the people of Mackenzie again had their own doctor.

Doctor Left

Trouble was that after a month in the district, the new doctor decided the appointment was not his cup of tea. He packed up and left.

When this happened someone up there immediately got in touch with Dr. Gouws suggesting he go back for the summer — again to fill in until another doctor could be found.

By then his plans were such that he could not take on this new stint of work. So, he passed the request on to Dr. Gordon Lott, president of the Victoria Medical Society.

In turn Dr. Lott circularized his membership, asking if anyone would be interested in using part of their holiday time to care for the medical needs of the Mackenzie district.

Quite a few members volunteered. Dr. Lott called them together and a roster was made up that would see two doctors at a time (if possible a general practitioner and one with surgeon's experience) going north for a two week period. Two more would then relieve them.

This would be kept up, on a rotating basis if necessary, until the end of summer — or until a permanent replacement was found.

According to Dr. Lott, no sooner was the schedule neatly packaged up and all arrangements made, than the project ran into difficulties.

Word came from the north that a doctor had been found and was going in at once.

Made Plans

Then, a little over a week later, when some of the volunteers had made other plans, word again came from Mackenzie.

This time to say the new doctor had been delayed and would not be in until the summer was over. Also to request that arrangements as completed by Dr. Lott, be re-activated.

Twelve or 14 doctors were still available to volunteer.

And, two at a time, they travelled to Prince George — using their own means of transportation.

There they picked up an automobile provided by Victoria Medical Society to drive to Mackenzie. At the end of their two-week stint, they turned the car over — again at Prince George — to the next team.

The whole operation (now in process of being wrapped up), has proved so worthwhile and the enthusiasm among doctors concerned has been so great, Dr. Lott believes teams of this kind could be organized to go anywhere "as long as there was adequate warning of the need."

Not Selfish

What pleases him even more is the fact that news of the unselfish shuttling back and forth to the north country by the doctor volunteers and that, in every instance, a part of their summer vacation was volunteered has become of interest (and no little price), throughout the profession.

Now other medical groups are becoming eager to explore the idea. Last week Dr. Lott had a call from the president of the Vancouver Medical Society who wished to know all about the project and how it was planned and organized.

All this, coupled with the fact that the people of Mackenzie received excellent medical care during the time they had no doctor in residence, has produced "very rewarding results."

I'm sure you will also agree it also adds up to a piece of volunteer work, extremely well done.

Vegetable Dish

In French Program

By MARY MOORE

The hotel dining rooms and restaurants and airline chefs are away ahead of us housewives in using tomatoes to brighten up our vegetable service.

Before the tomato season is over I urge you to try today's recipe for herbed tomatoes. They make a beautiful addition to a vegetable plate or as a bright border on your meat platter. They are cooked in a frying pan.

Wash but do not peel tomatoes. With sharp paring knife remove centre core to depth of 1". No more. In frying pan melt margarine and add the salt, pepper and sugar. Place tomatoes in pan, cored side down.

Cover and simmer 5 minutes. Carefully turn tomatoes over and spoon butter mixture into them. Add celery, chives and oregano to pan, cover and continue simmering for 5 to 8 minutes longer until tomatoes and celery are heated through and a little bit cooked.

Carefully lift tomatoes to serving dish and spoon remaining mixture in pan over them.

Because we were having a September apple pie with cheese for dessert we served a vegetable plate as a main course with herbed tomatoes, glazed whole carrots, broccoli spears and marble potatoes.

A diploma program in the French language will be offered to Victoria adults for the second time at the University of Victoria this fall.

Offered first last fall, the course attracted 76 persons. This year, more than 100 have already registered.

The program is designed to develop "a high level of competence" in spoken French, the first program of its type to be offered in a post-secondary institution in B.C.

HERBED TOMATOES

6 medium-sized ripe but firm tomatoes

4 tbsp. (1/2 c.) margarine (or butter)

1/4 tsp. salt

1/4 tsp. pepper

2 tsp. brown sugar

1 c. finely chopped celery and leaves

1/4 c. chopped chives or green onion

1/2 tsp. oregano

PERSIAN RUGS

The Immortal Art which comes in the Immortal Persian Carpets

Few possessions so proclaim one's position and importance in the world as a Persian rug. Weaving is one of the most ancient of the arts. Its essence began in 700 B.C. At that time shepherds actively were engaged in raising lambs and goats. They distributed the raw materials (wool) to the homes of different families in small villages of Iran. Each family sat and wove their own individual pieces resulting in different stories, ideas, abstract patterns and linear designs being conveyed into the carpets. You could get your rug from a collection of over 400 pieces at the

Death Stills Radio's Andy

CHICAGO (AP) — "Howdy Amos... Howdy Andy" — for 32 years those familiar words opened a radio show that captivated millions of Canadians and Americans.

For addicts of the Amos 'n' Andy Show, there also were the Kingfish, and Sapphire and Madam Queen. And there were the Beauty Parlor and the Fresh Air Taxicab Co.

But it was the Negro dialect of two white men, Charles Correll and Freeman Gosden, which drew North Americans to their sets week in and week out after the show went on network radio in 1929.

On Tuesday, the deep voice of Correll was silenced by death. Four days after he entered hospital in the wake of a heart attack, Correll died. He was 82.

Born in Peoria, Ill., Correll retired in 1960 and lived in Beverly Hills, Calif., a few blocks from Gosden, now 67.

Correll and Gosden met in 1919 as fellow members of an amateur theatrical group touring the South.

They formed a two-man team and toured tent shows in the South, sometimes singing duets.

In 1926, Correll and Gosden started a blackface minstrel show on Chicago's WGN which they called "Sam 'n' Henry."

When they changed stations in 1928 they had to find a new name for their act because of the WGN contract.

On an elevator ride to their first broadcast they overheard a man greet two other men as "Handy Andy" and "Famous Amos." Their search for a new name ended.

The show went coast-to-coast on Aug. 18, 1929, and the Amos 'n' Andy Show soon became the most popular in the country.

Correll is survived by his wife, Alyce and four children.

Nixon Pleads for Time To 'Change the World'

NEW YORK (Reuter) — President Nixon said Tuesday night his overtures to China and the Soviet Union have changed the world and he needs another four years in the White House to finish the task of building a durable world peace.

The president, elected by a majority of only 500,000 votes in 1968, told 1,500 cheering Republicans at a fund-raising dinner he wanted a huge majority over Democrat George McGovern in the November election so that he could have an uncontested mandate in foreign and domestic affairs.

Speaking at the end of the first day of a three-day campaign swing in New York and California, Nixon suggested that McGovern's proposals—including a slash of more than $30 million in the defence budget—would undo all he has achieved since he entered the White House in 1969.

And the president made it clear he was determined to build on the successes of his Moscow summit last May by seeking peaceful coexistence with the Soviet Union even at the risk of alienating Jewish voters demanding action to force the Kremlin to rescind the heavy exit visa fees it has imposed on Russian Jews wanting to emigrate to Israel.

PLEA TO JEWS

Before going to the Republican dinner—at which he spoke by closed-circuit television to fund-raising dinners in 30 other cities—Nixon urged U.S. Jews enraged over Soviet policy not to push him into a confrontation with the Soviet Union.

His appeal also appeared to be directed at McGovern, who has endorsed moves in Congress to withhold most-favored nation tariff treatment, part of a proposed big trade package, from the Soviet Union until the Kremlin permits Russian Jews to leave for Israel without paying the exit visa fee.

Nixon, who hopes to capture a major slice of the normally Democratic Jewish vote in key states including New York, told a group of Jewish leaders supporting his re-election campaign that "it serves no purpose to politicize or demagogue about this matter."

He reiterated his administration's commitment to Israel's survival and to supplying the weapons required for its defence.

Embezzler Sentenced

MONROVIA, Liberia (Reuter) — James Bestman, former security officer of the late President William Tubman who has been found guilty of embezzling more than $250,000, was sentenced to two months' imprisonment. If restitution cannot be paid in cash Bestman will serve a term of one month for every $50 stolen. This could be equal to a further prison term of more than 400 years.

Churches To Host N. Viets

MONTREAL (CP) — A delegation from North Vietnam will attend an International assembly of Christian solidarity with the peoples of Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos near Quebec City next month, it was announced here Tuesday.

Marianna Hamilton of Minneapolis, who arrived at Montreal International Airport on her way home from Hanoi, told reporters the delegation of seven will include three North Vietnamese priests. The assembly in Quebec will be Oct. 6-9.

Mrs. Hamilton spent several days touring North Vietnam with Rev. Harry Barry, of Ohio.

She said she and Father Barry visited North Vietnamese Roman Catholics in the Phat Dem region and saw houses, churches and hospitals damaged by American bombing.

They also visited Monsignor Trinh Nhu Khue, archbishop of Hanoi.

MAN AND HIS WORLD NOT SO FAR IN RED

MONTREAL (CP) — The 1972 version of Man and His World rang up a deficit of about $9 million, an estimated $3 million less than last year, Gerard Niding, executive committee chairman said Tuesday.

Niding said he was "confident" the deficit would cost the city no more than $4.5 million, about $2.5 million less than last year. The balance will come from the provincial government which has promised to pay $4.5 million towards the fair's deficit.

Opening of the fair, successor to the 1967 Montreal world's fair Expo '67, was delayed for five weeks because of a strike by the city's blue collar workers and ran only six weeks from July 20 to Sept. 4.

Defections Send CNTU Reeling

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's union movement, which struggled for life under authoritarian rule and then flowered in the Quiet Revolution of the early 1960s, now is suffering from self-inflicted wounds.

A vote by the 28,000-member Quebec Provincial Civil Servants Union to bolt the Confederation of National Trade Unions—is the latest blow. Results of a referendum were announced early Tuesday.

"The CNTU is badly wounded," commented Abbe Gerard Dion, veteran labor expert and social reformer, in a telephone interview from his office at Laval University in Quebec.

Several shocks have hit the CNTU since a common front of Quebec labor federations staged a strike last spring, but Dion singled out a recent disaffiliation vote by workers at Asbestos, in the Eastern Townships.

Some 2,500 plant employees at Canadian Johns-Manville in Asbestos decided in a majority vote on the weekend of Sept. 16 to bolt the CNTU and they are expected to vote again soon on whether to join the newly-formed, breakaway Centrale des Syndicate Democratiques.

"The Asbestos workers are the people who put the CNTU on the map, after all," said

Dion, 59, labor professor at Laval and editor of a labor quarterly for many years.

He was referring to a violent five-month strike staged in 1949 by asbestos miners which was finally settled on terms broadly favorable to the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor—now the CNTU.

Repressive labor legislation and governmental attitudes of that period were replaced in the 1960s when the new Liberal regime of Jean Lesage opened up Quebec society.

Dion predicted a year ago, however, that splits lay ahead for the union movement because of political and radical trends advocated by union strategists.

He estimated Tuesday the CNTU has lost 60,000 of its former membership roll of 225,000 and he predicted that "the movement for disaffiliation will keep on increasing."

Saving For Sight

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Teen-age country singer Jackie Stueffert had just belted out Pen in Hand at a Tampa night club when a man near the stage hollered, "Hey, honey, open your eyes so you can see me."

The blonde, 17-year-old performer hesitated a moment, then said into the microphone, "I wish I could."

Jackie has been blind since birth.

"I don't want people to feel sorry for me," the teen-ager said after the performance. "It's not really much of a handicap."

She's saving for an operation at Johns Hopkins University Hospital in Baltimore. Doctors say the operation could give her sight for the first time.

Treatment Takes Seconds, Cures Form of Blindness

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A Cuban refugee has told fellow ophthalmologists he has developed a new treatment using heat which restored near-perfect vision to 10 persons declared legally blind.

At the same time, Dr. Antonio Gasset was making his announcement to the convention of the American Academy of Ophthalmologists and Otolaryngologists in Dallas on Tuesday, the University of Florida released its researcher's findings on the Gainesville campus.

Dr. Gasset said he and his research team have had "promising preliminary results" in experimental treatment of keratoconus, a condition causing the cornea to become thin and bulge almost to cone shape.

The researcher also suggested that his team's new treatment which takes less than one minute, may have potential for correcting extreme near-sightedness caused by irregularity in the curvature of the cornea.

The Florida team's procedure involves heating a pencil-slim probe to about 322½ degrees Fahrenheit and swiftly applying it to the protruding cornea.

Ten patients volunteered for the heat treatment instead of the more complex corneal transplant. All were previously declared legally blind, Dr. Gasset said. Half of them could not tolerate contact lenses because of their misshapen corneas.

Over a period of several months following application, the team reported, the corneas gradually flattened with little or no scarring.

Dr. Gasset said that as their corneas flattened, patients experienced a decrease in the degree of myopia (near-sightedness) and cor-neal astigmatism, a common defect caused by irregularities in the curvature of the cornea.

Marcos Swoops on Government Foes

MANILA (AP) — Two provincial mayors, two councilors and the son of a man who wants the Philippines to become a United States state were among persons apprehended today as Philippine armed forces continued their sweep against persons said to be subversives, Information Secretary Francisco Tatad said.

At least seven more persons have been detained, including Amando Doronilla, editor of the Manila Chronicle, and one of the paper's columnists, Ernesto Granada.

As of Tuesday, 92 persons were in custody under the sweeping order that President Ferdinand Marcos issued in assuming the power to arrest criminals and anyone declared a subversive.

Those arrested included Antonio Rufino Jr., whose father is leader of the movement that wants the Philippines to become the 51st American state.

The young Rufino was accused of being a gang leader and warlord.

The mayor of Caloocan City and two of his councilors were arrested, as was the mayor of Marikina City, who was accused of smuggling, Tatad said.

Tatad said the army's drive against warlords was intensifying. Raids have been made on the homes of former

Gov. Carmeling Crisologo of Ilocos Sur and his son. Thirty-nine firearms and a large quantity of ammunition were seized in their homes, he said.

To date, the army's drive to disarm Filipinos has netted 2,300 firearms of various kinds and 2,500 rounds of ammunition.

As part of a drive against privilege, congressmen, governors, senators and all political leaders have been stripped of their official bodyguards.

Al Bailey says:

• Some poultry meat is pink in color, even though thoroughly cooked.

WHY?

• BECAUSE — cooking gases which form in any oven when food is baked, tend to penetrate the skin and fat of young poultry in a manner producing a condition similar to the pinkish tinge that is acquired when a ham is smoked.

• The pink color is usually produced only with the young broiler chickens and turkeys as their skin and fat surface are generally thinner than on more mature birds.

Cedar Hill Golf Course to Raise Fees

Cedar Hill golf course management committee Tuesday recommended major fee increases and took steps toward eliminating the scale favoring female members.

The Saanich-owned 18-hole course, only municipal course on Vancouver Island, is engaged in a program of capital improvements including the first phase of underground irrigation.

Annual public memberships would rise from $90 for men and $75 for women, unrestricted, to $110 for men and $100 for women, unrestricted, effective in January, 1973.

There would be no change in the fee for juniors, which was raised last year to $50.

Green fees would rise from $2.25 to $3 weekdays and from $3 to $4 Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Restricted memberships would disappear, but a new category for persons 65 or over would have an annual fee of $85.

Committee chairman Ald. William Noel said the changes are consistent with fees charged by publicly-owned golf courses on the mainland.

The committee accepted a proposal by Terra Irrigation to install $10,000 worth of equipment to serve nine greens and provide a new lateral water main on the course. No fairways are to be served by the system in its initial phase.

"It is most urgent to get the greens watered automatically. We can pick up the fairways with our aluminum pipe (portable)," said parks administrator Bert Riechman.

Noel said it was expected future councils would carry the program further, spending an estimated $69,000 total for a complete irrigation system.

In view of that I feel the fee structure of the golf course should be reviewed," he said, recommending an across the board increase of $15 for both restricted and unrestricted annual passes.

Mayor Hugh Curtis, Ald. Ed Lum and Ald. Leslie Passmore agreed the fee structure should be raised.

"It is important that the course be as available as possible to as many people who want to use it," Curtis said. But he pointed out that many more people — taxpayers in general — support the course through taxes and that recommendations for increases be adhered to notwithstanding the "wrath of golfers."

"A lot of people support Cedar Hill golf course who have never moved a golf club one inch. They should be considered, too," Curtis said.

At present female members pay $15 less for their annual passes than male members.

"Why do women get a cheaper pass?" Curtis asked. "They don't get into a movie cheaper, or on the ferry. We're into women's lib... I can't support a cheaper rate for women golfers," he said, urging a $35 increase to the maximum male rate.

Noel said such a severe jump for women is premature.

But he insisted the golf course should be a money-maker in the face of increasing costs.

The committee recommended annual fees be payable on a semi-annual basis rather than quarterly and that in 1973 the differential between men and women's fees be eliminated.

"This is the trend... on public golf courses," Noel said.

The committee authorized Cedar Hill Golf Club (a private group of Cedar Hill golf course members) to install a color television set in the clubhouse on a trial basis. Recreation administrator Bill Young said he did not want to see the clubhouse become a "pub" for a few people who would settle in before the set to drink beer."

EMERGENCY DOUBTED

Liberal leader David Anderson said Tuesday he does not believe there is an "emergency" need for a fall session of the legislature to raise old age pensions in B.C.

Anderson said the pensions could be raised without a special session, and he could not recall Premier Barrett calling for such an "emergency" before the Aug. 30 election.

But he said he was not opposed to the session itself.

Anderson said also he intends to ask soon in the session, scheduled for Oct. 17, for a question period in the house.

He said the government has only proposed to study this and other parliamentary rules changes, but a question period can be simply instituted by a vote of the house.

The Liberal leader said he had talked with Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall on the phone and has concluded that the salaries offered for the Liberal research staffer and secretary will be insufficient.

The salaries quoted by Hall were $9,800 for the researcher and $4,830 for the secretary.

Premier Barrett earlier promised adequate staff for the opposition members. Under the Bennett government there was no permanent research staff for other than the official opposition party.

Symposium Rescued

A symposium for high school students at the University of Victoria will be able to be continued due to a $7,500 grant from an anonymous donor.

There was a possibility the symposium might have been curtailed because of costs, said Uvic president Hugh Farquhar, but "continuance of this unique and valuable undertaking of the university is now assured through this contribution."

Each year, 25 top students are selected and invited, along with their sponsor teachers, to present their work before senior academics at Uvic. Academic papers are given on a wide range of topics.

Fifty other students are invited to attend as observers. For the 1972 symposium in April, more than 150 entries were submitted from 66 B.C. high schools.

Home Recipe Plan Takes Off Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. # CRTC Head Justifies Costly Broadcasting

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's broadcasting policies have created a costly system, Pierre Juneau told an international symposium on cultural and linguistic diversity Tuesday. But it is a necessary means of coping with "a social reality with which broadcasting systems must deal."

Juneau, chairman of the Canadian Radio Television Commission, was elaborating on a paper he had prepared for the symposium attended by more than 75 government and academic experts from 25 countries.

"Even in very wealthy countries, there are very few systems like this," he said, pointing out that Canada has a high number of available broadcasting outlets per capita in comparison to most developed countries.

"In Canada, the effects of the electronic media pull in the directions of both homogenization and fragmentation. The problem for the executives of national broadcast policy is to steer a course between both forces."

"The culturally homogeneous state is almost an aberrant form... Cultural heterogeneity may be a desirable reality, not a cross to be borne bitterly. Individuals grow and cultures mature in the process of challenge and response with other cultures."

"The idea is that each group should make a concrete cultural contribution to the national broadcasting system, so that all groups may benefit from the encounter. But the success of a society in achieving this goal will be as much a measure of its will and imagination as of the technologies at its command."

Juneau directed many of his remarks toward a statement by Dr. Y. V. L. Rao, a communications specialist from

Singapore, who said fostering and encouraging diversity within a country was a luxury poorer countries could not afford as it would impede development.

Posties' Demands 'Would Hike Tax'

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal government would have to raise personal income tax rates or first class mail rates if the post office accepted current contract requests by the 28,000-member Postal Workers' Union, Postmaster General Jean Pierre Cote said Tuesday.

Speaking at the opening of a $1 million mail processing plant in nearby Laval, Mr. Cote said the union's demands would cost $120 million a year and this, added to the current annual deficit of $80 million, would result in a total annual deficit of $200 million.

Cote said such a deficit is unacceptable and erasing it would require raising personal income tax by two per cent or increasing first class mail rates from eight to 13 cents.

Increases would follow in other classes of mail and there would be a loss of large volume customers he added.

Cote also criticized union leaders for allowing "the rumor of a possible strike at the post office to spread" and said they must learn the public is losing patience with strikes.

Negotiations with the union are at the conciliation stage. A strike could come before the Oct. 30 federal election.

Comox Ferry Schedule Increased

Highways Minister Robert Strachan announced Tuesday an increase in winter ferry service between Comox and Powell River.

Strachan said the round trips will be increased to four from three. The new schedule will add a sailing from Comox at 7 p.m. and from Powell River at 8:45 p.m.

The new service will begin Oct. 1, he said.

The four-trip schedule has been in effect on Fridays and Sundays and some holidays. It will now be used seven days a week.

ROME NEEDS FACELIFT

ROME (AP)—Rome's chief archaeologist has recommended a $5 million facelift for the Colosseum and the city's other great monuments neglected for years by government indifference.

Romans were shocked at the news Tuesday that the Colosseum, greatest monument of Rome's imperial past, would be fenced off and closed to the public because of the danger of falling masonry.

But, observers said the move might finally spur the government to save Rome's treasures.

Tanfilippo Carettoni, superintendent of antiquities in Rome, said the government must be prepared to spend $516,000 to make the Colosseum safe for visitors.

"But it's not only the Colosseum that needs repairs," he added. "All of Rome's monuments need urgent work that will require appropriating a billion lire."

That's $5.1 million, or more than 10 times what the government earmarks annually to pay for the personnel and the maintenance of many monuments in and around Rome.

Norway in ECM: A Grass-Roots 'Nei'

By BERNARD NOSSITER
The Washington Post

OSLO—Arne Haugestad, a stubborn, intense 37-year-old lawyer, is Norway's Ralph Nader, Eugene McCarthy and George McGovern all rolled into one. He got up late Tuesday morning to find that his Peoples Popular Movement against the Common Market had defeated every consequential vested interest in Norway.

"Some very important people in this country woke up with a headache," he said with a thin smile. This was a historic victory for ordinary citizens against the state.

Some 54 per cent of the country voted to keep Norway out of the Common Market, he is convinced, because citizens feel that decisions are made over their heads of things they are concerned about.

Whatever the cause, this was an astonishing triumph of what Haugestad, whose English is excellent, calls the grass roots. Arrayed against him were Norway's two major political parties, the trade union leaders and their 30,000 door-to-door canvassers, businessmen big and small, this welfare state's civil service, the state television, and newspapers reaching 9 of every 10 readers.

For them, Common Market entry meant modernization, protecting and expanding Norway's high living standards, industrial development of untapped resources, closer western ties against a Soviet Union with whom Norway shares a 120-mile border in the far north. But the people, or at least more than half of them, were not having any of this, largely due to Haugestad and his organization.

YOUNG AT HEART

Haugestad is a burly man with thick, tousled, light brown hair and olive eyes that peer out from behind thick glasses. In a bare loft office, surrounded with "Nei" posters emblazoned with the Norwegian flag, he talked of how he did it.

At the heart of his movement were about 3,500 young people. "They shaved their beards, the same as the McCarthy movement, the second one, in the U.S., and went out looking like ordinary people to talk."

Haugestad enlisted 130,000

"members" at 10 kroner or $1.60 a head, and about 50,000 of these became proselytizing activists. He lined up local opinion leaders in small towns, and a typical headline in one of his broadsheets reads: Twelve Leaders of Rogaland Say No.

He exploited what he calls "the underdog advantage," making much of the fact that government information subsidies of $2 million went 80 per cent to "yes" groups and only 20 per cent to "no" forces. He hit the trade unions for using members' money to pay for propaganda many did not want to hear.

Haugestad got what he calls "the necessary minimum of respectability" by winning 17 members of parliament to his movement. Above all, he had the financial support of the farmers who had first hired him to see if they could survive in the Common Market. They account for only 10 per cent of the work force, but they poured more than $1 million into Haugestad's two-year effort.

Haugestad is defensive about the obviously nationalist appeal of his movement, its reliance on the flag and its play on emotions that amounted to a scarcely-disguised anti-German and anti-Italian feeling in some segments.

TIED TOGETHER

"You will find we had some groups that were negative in a nationalistic sense," he acknowledges. "I disagree with them. We used the flag because it ties together all groups, because it symbolizes the independence of Norway. The main point is who is going to rule, Brussels or the Norwegian people?"

He is a moderately successful barrister here, a man who argues cases in court. His greatest joy, he says, is serving on a panel of ombudsmen, lawyers defending citizens against the impersonal whims of the bureaucratic state.

'Home Sweet Jail' Experiment Under Way

OIL FIRMS JOIN 'SPILL CO-OP'

By CHERYL HAWKES

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials at the new Ottawa-Carleton detention centre are hoping that their $4-million jail with its country-club setting, color-coordinated dormitories, lounges and library will be the kind of place prisoners won't mind calling home.

Several University of Ottawa criminology students will share a large part of the responsibility for making the physical amenities of the jail, termed the most modern of its kind in Ontario, work in human terms.

Under the direction of John Miller, Ontario's youngest jail superintendent at 32, the university's department of criminology will be responsible for social service programs in the new detention centre, opened this fall.

Each student will spend two days a week at the jail as part of his field-work requirement for a masters degree in applied criminology.

The reforms include a temporary absence program which will allow prisoners to spend their days working or attending school in the community and return to the detention centre in the evening.

Another is a program of increased community involvement within the jail. Ottawa-Carleton's Citizens Advisory Committee was established last November to enable average citizens to examine penal methods and suggest innovations in jail programs or facilities.

CONDITIONS IMPROVED

A major complaint has been that the location of the new detention centre, on the far outskirts of Ottawa, will create problems in the temporary absence program.

But prisoners are likely to be more eager to return to the new jail than they might to the city jail that has served

Ottawa for more than 120 years.

Cells in the old jail measure three feet by eight feet; the cots inside them are three by six, with a chamber pot occupying much of the remaining space. Prisoners were locked in their cells from 9 p.m. until 7 a.m. and then allowed out into a common narrow corridor.

Corridors in the new building are spacious and airy; bars, where they exist, are pastel-colored. The minimum security section has six dormitories, housing 12 prisoners each. Medium and maximum security cells are furnished with colored beds and desks. Residents can read, watch television and eat their meals in color co-ordinated and carpeted lounges.

NO COMPULSION

We're going to have to be inventive," said Robert Barrington, an Ottawa criminology professor who is one of the field work co-ordinators.

Anyone in a penitentiary is there for at least two years. Social service programs, such as continuing education, re-training and counselling are more easily organized there. In a jail, you're dealing with a more transient population."

Jails are where the need for social services is most crucial, he emphasized. Yet the jail was the most neglected element of the entire corrections system.

A short period spent inside a jail can have a significant impact on an offender's attitude towards the judicial process.

A large number of people inside most jails are either awaiting sentencing or in the process of appealing a sentence. The young or new offender can witness a lot of cynicism and bitterness towards the law."

TORONTO (CP) — Co-operative plans for containing and cleaning up accidental oil spills were announced Tuesday by seven major oil companies operating in Ontario.

The program calls for 10 mobile units with trained crews to be placed at strategic locations in the province by the end of the year.

They will supplement 23 "environmental co-operatives" which the seven companies and others have established across the province from Thunder Bay in the northwest to Windsor and Cornwall in the southern ex-termities. In the co-operatives the companies have pooled manpower and equipment to handle spills and also to stress prevention of oil pollution.

The companies setting up the units are Imperial, British Petroleum, Gulf, Petrofina, Shell, Sun and Texaco.

Chinese Scientists Agree to Visit

Special to the Times

PEKING — Relations between China and the United States will take another step forward next month when a group of Chinese scientists departs Peking for a tour of the United States and Canada.

Reliable sources in the Chinese capital report that agreement on the U.S. part of the tour has finally been reached after months of negotiations between visiting U.S. academics and officials of the Chinese Academy of Sciences.

The Chinese group will have about 15 members including chemists, physicists and biologists.

It will not be the first visit to Canada by members of the Chinese scientific community, which sent a team of physicists to the annual congress of the Canadian Association of Physicists earlier this year. However, no Chinese scientists have visited the United States since 1949.

Observers here consider the tour a major breakthrough for the Americans, who have been urging the Chinese to act upon the understanding embodied in the Shanghai Communiqué issued at the conclusion of President Richard Nixon's visit here in February.

In the communiqué, the president and Premier Chou En-lai pledged to facilitate the development of exchanges between the two countries in the fields of science, technology, culture, sports and journalism.

In the months since, dozens of U.S. delegations have visited China, but only one Chinese group — a table tennis team — has been to the United States.

In agreeing to the tour of the scientists, now, the Chinese are thought to be signalling their determination to advance the development of their relations with the United States despite the persistence of disagreements on Vietnam and other issues.

One American who has had high-level contact with the Chinese in the past few days said he came away with the impression that "they are quite happy with the way things are going" between the two countries, even though they continue to be vexed by Mr. Nixon's Vietnam policy.

In sending a scientific delegation, the Chinese are also pursuing their avowed interest in U.S. technology, which has so far been available to them only indirectly, or through talks with U.S. scientists visiting Peking.

The contacts between the scientific communities in the two countries in the past several months represent a resumption of a relationship that was interrupted for more than two decades after 1949.

The relationship sprang up between the First and Second World Wars, when large numbers of Chinese enrolled in U.S. universities, gaining special distinction in the sciences.

Observers here think it quite possible that the delegation that leaves here next month will include men who studied in the United States, returning to China when the Communists took power.

U.S. academics visiting Peking have already had some success in contacting Chinese professors who once studied or worked alongside them in the United States, and the hope is that at least some of these men will be included in the delegation that is going to the United States.

One of the first direct contacts between the Chinese and American scientific communities after the thaw in Sino-American relations last year came with the visit to Peking of Dr. Paul Dudley White, the octogenarian cardiologist, who carried a letter to the Chinese academy from the U.S. Academy of Sciences.

Last week, exchanges were among the subjects discussed at a meeting between three visiting U.S. economists, John Kenneth Galbraith and Wassily Leontief of Harvard and James Tobin of Yale University, with Kuo Mo-jo, the 81-year-old president of the Chinese academy.

Having received instructions from Mrs. A. F. Nation, we are pleased to offer

Auction Saturday

Exhibition Starts at 11 a.m.

Auction Starts at 2 p.m.

Free exhibition of Ancient Art Form at

THE EMPRESS HOTEL
Victoria, B.C.

by Nader Ghermezian

IRANIAN BROTHERHOOD OF RUGWEAVERS

Iran: An exhibition of more than 400 examples of unconditionally guaranteed first-class, but also all new and only the highest grades and qualities of authentic Oriental and Persian Rugs will be held free to the public Saturday, Sept. 30 from 11 a.m. at The Empress Hotel, followed at 2 p.m. by an auction and a brief talk on the historical significance of this rare art form. Each rug purchased at this auction comes with a two year warranty which permits the buyer to exchange the rug for any other of comparable value.

Often called "Tomorrow's antiques" by collectors, Persian rugs, including the wools, silks, and vegetable dyes which go into them, are still being made according to craft techniques handed from father to son for many generations in Iran (Persia).

It is one of the sadder notes of progress, however, that the gradual industrialization of the rug weavers' home territory, and mandatory public schooling threaten extinction to the art even at a time when demand for Persian rugs increases approximately 20 per cent each year and values increase 12 to 15 per cent each year, according to economists in the United States and Canada.

There is a real contrast between the prices genuine Persian rugs draw in the marketplace and that gained by the rug weaver for his labor. The years that pass between the day the sheep, goats, and camels are sheared or silk is gathered and the day the finished rug comes from the loom, that could normally be traded for a few head of cattle and sheep (or a couple of good mules plus a few dozen live chickens and piece of arable land or even a house or barn), it only adds up to about 30 cents a day for the villager, a fact which is enough to turn today's son's faces from the loom toward mechanized industry.

As a counter-measure, the Iranian Brotherhood of Rug Weavers, sponsors of Saturday's exhibit and auction, is dedicated to the preservation of this ancient art form and to upgrading the life pattern of the traditional rug weaving family in their home country.

To this end, educational exhibits and auctions are held throughout the United States and Canada with the co-operation of Iranian students studying in these countries who are knowledgeable in the art of their ancestors.

In order to insure the best possible reputation of the products from the Iranian looms, each rug in the exhibit has faced government inspection prior to its exportation.

Rugs exhibited and then placed on the auction block Saturday will be from major weaving areas such as Kashan, Kerman, Quom, Bokara, Sarouk, etc., etc., plus a collection of collectors items and unique silk rugs, representative of many designs including prayer rugs (recoined from the "Mibrab" traditional form of altar of the mosque), "Garden of Flowers," and rugs with unique stories, most of which are known to the exhibitors, woven into the design.

The day on which a carpet is completed is considered an occasion for merry-making. The handiwork is displayed with great joy for all to see, and in certain regions traditional rites are performed. On such occasions the master of the work is expected to give a reception for his friends, giving them drinks of sherbet perfumed with rose water.

Persian rugs are generally as easy to care for as any woolen item. They are very easily spot-cleaned at home with cold water and wash cloths; they should be vacuumed every 2 or 3 weeks then professional cleaning by someone experienced is advisable every 5 to 6 years. It is not necessary to use pads, flat rubber sheeting, however, can be used to prevent slipping.

For investors of less sentimental turn of mind Persian rugs can prove to be "The Magic Carpet" of folklore. The rugs become not only a beauty accent to the home but safeguard the family's future and continuously appreciate in value as they become older. Also, most banks accept Persian rugs as security loans.

Too, as in the case of fine paintings, crystal and silver, the Persian rug is made to last through many generations.

Most modern rugs, for instance are made with the nap of a 90 degree angle so that the nap is worn with the ordinary pressure of footstep. Persian rugs, however, are made with the nap on a 45 degree angle (due to special handwoven weaving process), so that construction actually improves and color and deters deterioration.

Residents of the Greater Victoria area are urged to visit Saturday's exhibition and auction and evaluate the beauty and craftsmanship of these Persian rugs immediately available to add to or begin their collection of this ancient art form which is destined to grow more valuable as it becomes ever rarer.

Sesame Street...Road to Mecca or Not?

By JEAN SHARP
TORONTO (CP) — Sesame Street's Susan says she thinks the schools will start changing because kids have already changed.

"Schools are going to have to change, the children are going to be able to change them faster than the adults." "The energy and desire to learn they have is great."

They're just like little sponges. "For the most part teachers are happy for the help Sesame Street gives them. They tell us the children have so many concepts they don't have to concentrate on that they're wondering what to do with the non-Sesame watchers."

Susan, who is Loretta Long in private life, was in Toronto with Happy Time '72 at the Canadian National Exhibition.

She said in an interview she believes the children's television show changes steadily, but the criticisms of it stay the same.

"I'm asked about the same criticisms all the time. The criticisms travel like dirty jokes, and they aren't even valid."

"We hope that we grow and change, but it's nothing that puts me uptight. I'm proud of the Workshop, proud to work for it."

The Children's Television Workshop produces Sesame Street.

KIDS ENJOY LEARNING
Mrs. Long has been a teacher and is working for her doctorate in urban education at the University of Massachusetts.

She dismissed the charge that Sesame teaches by rote and doesn't help its audience

... thinks it is of pre-schoolers to comprehend what it learns.

"It's kind of heady stuff when three-year-olds learn the alphabet and numbers."

"I take my rough test from parents who come up and say their kids are learning and enjoying it, and not just three to five years old, they're as young as 18 months."

"Whether they comprehend is kind of a superficial argument. Some people feel there's only one road to Mecca."

She said she feels the same way about the charge that the show is sexist, that she always appears in the kitchen and the men have all the answers.

"The first year we did trade kind of heavy in the milk and cookies syndrome, but that's changed."

"Besides, it's kind of funny to pick on Sesame Street."

Its originator is a woman, the corporation has a woman lawyer.

"Now on the show the roles of the adults are interchangeable. The kids are just as likely to see me playing basketball."

She said people can always see what they're looking for.

PICKED BY CHILDREN

Mrs. Long said a group of feminists put on a seminar for the Sesame crew, and showed them that sex discrimination may sometimes be unconscious.

"That straightened our writers out."

One of the original cast, she began her association with the show partly because one of its set designers knew her.

"I'd been a teacher, and at the time I had my own local television show."

"Our auditions were taped and taken to child care centres, and the children picked us."

Her husband, who was her manager before he was her husband, encouraged her to try show business.

"While I was teaching, I was giving all my money to other teachers for drama and singing lessons."

Her husband is still her manager, he works with the Workshop, and is beginning his own business as a program package consultant for cable television.

"We have a great deal in common. He knows I work hard, and it isn't all glamor."

"It's good, and it's bad sometimes, when husbands and wives work together."

"IT LOOKS APPETIZING AND TASTES GOOD!"

And the children like its overall taste and especially the nice even pieces of meat and the taste of the gravy."

Ex-Mayor Runs Again

VANCOUVER (CP) — Former Vancouver Mayor Tom Alsbury has announced he will be a candidate for city council in the December civic elections.

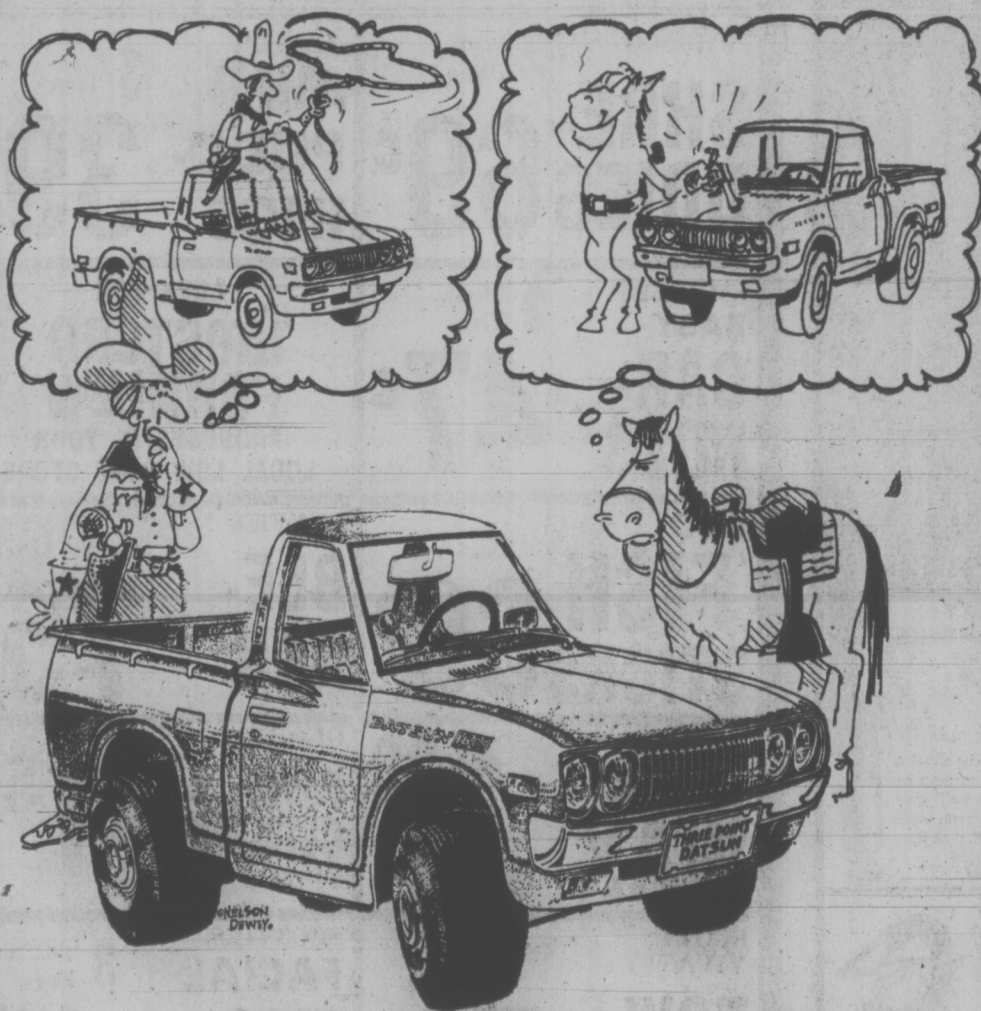

Alsbury, 68, will seek the support of the Electors Action Movement at a meeting next month, but will run whether or not he receives team support.

He served two terms as mayor of Vancouver — from 1958 to 1962 — and three terms as alderman.

Alsbury is chairman of Pensioners for Action Now.

Victoriana, or What-Have-You...

LONDON (CP) — Inside almost every Englishman and woman, it seems, there's a collector struggling to get out.

The collecting habit is sweeping the country, causing at one end of the financial scale record turnovers in London's smart auction houses and at the other end, a boom guarded as junk.

You name it — somewhere, there's undoubtedly a collector for it. Trade is brisk in such things as railway relics, old photographs, early sewing machines and typewriters and Victorian china figurines, those gaudy groups of china figures that used to go as prizes at country fairs.

The record price for one of the china groups now stands at £231 about $575. As for old photographs, an album of 32 early snapshots by a pioneer cameraman of the 1840s recently made a staggering $4,800 (about $12,000) at Sotheby's special saleroom devoted to Victoriana.

Antiques dealers have sprouted like new grass after rain to cater for the huge new market, which is chiefly encouraged by fear of inflation and loss of confidence in money values.

An official of the British Antique Dealers Association estimated there might be as many as 50,000 dealers in Britain, though only 500 are members of his organization.

Antique supermarkets, providing a low-rented base for a number of dealers, now are an established part of the London scene. There is even an Antique Hypermarket in fashionable Kensington, catering to a wealthier clientele. At the other end of the scale is Junk City in northwest Marylebone, where second-hand furniture changes hands at knockdown prices.

The famous street markets, Portobello Road and Camden Passage, now attract more tourists than locals, who go instead to a sleazier one off the Edgware Road or get up early Fridays and penetrate the wilds of east London to the New Caledonian dealers' market in Bermondsey.

Britain's export and import trade in antiques and works of art now is running at more than £113.5 million, the two sides being almost evenly balanced, with a slight edge for exports. Dealers say the volume of internal trade is impossible to measure.

Dozens of newspapers and magazines now have their regular column on collecting.

Lord Thomson's Sunday Times is running an antiques encyclopedia in weekly instalments in its magazine section, and 967 new books on art and antiques were published in 1971, along with 217 reprints.

A BBC television series called Going For A Song, in which amateur collectors meet experts and try to guess the saleroom value of objects, is as much a part of the British Sunday lunchtime as roast beef.

In seven years the program has spawned two best-selling books and made a national pundit out of Arthur Negus, a ruddy-faced country auctioneer with a soft West Country accent and a shock of white hair. Negus, the program's resident expert, is also much in demand for weekend "antiques teachings," organized throughout the autumn and early winter by an enterprising company in Kent.

The idea of learning about antiques in a cosy special gathering surfaced in 1967 as the brainchild of a businessman named Roy Victor Stockton.

He planned it as a "one-off" operation but it proved so successful that the paying guests were booked up for the next as they left.

The business now has almost reached "saturation point," says Stockton's partner, Judy Watts. Next spring they are arranging a 2½-week tour in France and England for a group of Canadian antiques buffs led by Mary Sutherland of Toronto.

The Canadians will spend a week in Paris and the Loire chateau country and the rest of the time looking at English stately homes, attending informal lectures and visiting such institutions as the Stuart crystal works.

How long the collecting boom will continue is anyone's guess, but inflation shows no sign of slackening and neither does the urge to find a hedge against it — tangible assets that may hold their value better than shares. The capital gains tax introduced by the Labor government in 1965 on profits over £1,000 did much to send the cheaper end of the art market soaring.

Shakespeare's Autolycus described himself in The Winter's Tale as "a snapper-up of unconsidered trifles." Today, in the eye of the British collector, there is no such thing as an unconsidered trifle.

Tory Goliath 'Vulnerable'

HALIFAX (CP) — Why would a young economist and a young American-born social worker battle for public office against a seasoned political veteran who, since 1948 has had an unbroken string of personal successes at the polls?

Terry McGrath and Martin Dolin, both articulate and well-educated, have put themselves in that situation.

The man they battle with is Robert L. Stanfield, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party. The field of political combat is Halifax City riding with an estimated 50,000 eligible voters.

Although Mr. Stanfield, a native son of Nova Scotia, will be in the national eye throughout the federal election campaign, his opponents in Halifax don't see this as any great advantage.

Instead, they intend to make their views known on local issues and seek local support while the national leader travels across the country looking for support for his national party.

HE'S NO LAMB

Mr. McGrath, 33, holder of a doctorate in economics and the Liberals' choice for Halifax City, says he doesn't consider himself a sacrificial lamb.

"I think there's just as good a chance in this seat for a Liberal candidate as in any seat in Nova Scotia... in a way they're all tough," the newcomer to politics says.

Not since the federal election of 1953 have the Liberals had any marked success in the province. The closest they came to the PCs since then was in 1963 when they won five of the province's 12 seats.

Mr. Dolin, also 33 and holder of a masters degree in social work, is the New Democrats' choice for Halifax riding.

"I think the Liberals and the Tories are like twiddle dum and twiddle dee," Mr. Dolin says. Mr. Stanfield's program was the same as Prime Minister Trudeau's except the PC leader is saying "we'll do it better."

Both candidates admit they will have to fight hard to win.

The man they have to beat has been a major political force in the province since 1948, the day he was elected leader of the provincial PC opposition party.

Eight years later he formed the first PC government in Nova Scotia in 23 years and at 42 was Canada's youngest premier.

Mr. Stanfield led his provincial party from one victory to another until he entered the federal arena in 1967, replacing John Diefenbaker as Conservative leader.

POET IN WOODWORK

OTTAWA (CP) — Folksy verses and wood work have been Norval Kilgour's life.

And at 82, the old Ottawan continues to do his work, though on a smaller scale than before he retired as carpenter and cabinetmaker of the National Museum.

He bends his bald head and wise old eyes over sleek trays, chunky flower pots and other household objects and moulds them all with alternate blonde and brown-wood strips—his personal stamp.

Mr. Kilgour does this by gluing with painstaking care the contrasting woods and polishing them to a soft satiny sheen.

"Very early in life I had a fondness for wood-working, and I inherited the ability to do the work from both sides of the family."

"I was raised on the farm and, when work wasn't too pressing, I went to my uncle's at Smiths Falls, Ont. He was a fine wheelwright."

"I ended up a cabinet maker, although I was a carpenter for years."

Crammed in his huge old roll-top desk, however, are scraps of another love; that of writing simple, unassuming poems full of quiet country humor.

"I got my wife in Shawville town, She measures just two feet around;

She is the kind you like to pie treasures meet."

She knits my socks to fit my feet. She knits them with white toes and heels,

It makes them have a cosy feel; And if there ever comes a hole,

She darns them and she never scolds."

But mainly it's the wood that Norval Kilgour loves and spends his days with, making his sim-

"If my hands didn't shake, so much I'd be all right, but then every old person has something, don't they," he mused.

THE WORD ON THE WEATHER . . .

Dish antenna at the earth station near Lake Cowichan gathers signals from satellite as new link in international communications link opened Tuesday.

Communications Minister Robert Stanbury put through first call and chatted with Ralph Hunt, Australian Minister of the interior.

Space Age Small Talk 'How's the Weather?'

LAKE COWICHAN — A Canadian politician near Lake Cowichan chatted with an Australian politician Tuesday through a communications satellite soaring 22,000 miles above the Pacific Ocean.

The topic? What else but the weather.

Occasion was official opening of Canada's west coast Earth Station, a $10 million addition to the international links of the Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Corporation.

For federal Communications Minister Robert Stanbury, the historic phone call was no hardship, the link coming through about 1 p.m. Pacific time. But for Australian Minister of the Interior Robert Hunt on the other end of the line, it was 5:30 a.m.

The earth station is located on the north side of Lake Cowichan, about a mile off the road to Youbou. About 250 guests were on hand for the ceremony, including MP Tommy Douglas from Nanaimo-Cowichan and the Islands and J. C. Delorme, COTC president and general manager.

Stanbury made the first call through the new station by activating a switch which projected a film from Canberra, Australia, and brought the voice of Hunt to the room.

During the short exchange the two ministers discussed the weather. Stanbury read a telegram from Prime Minister Trudeau relaying greetings through Hunt to the Australian prime minister.

Voice signals travelled more than 45,000 miles through space, being relayed through the communications satellite which is in an orbit matching earth's rotation and therefore "hovering" over the Pacific.

Later in the program a voice and visual hookup was established with Hong Kong and a 20-minute film presentation originating in Hawaii was viewed by the guests.

The earth station includes a giant dish antenna, 100 feet across. It can handle both color transmission of television and provides more than 1,200 voice channels to Pacific rim countries.

The system will link with China and New Zealand early next year. Initially the station will be working with Australia, Hong Kong, Japan and the Philippines.

Alongside the earth station at Lake Cowichan is another station belonging to Telesat, the first domestic communications system in the world which will use a hovering satellite.

Motor Stolen

A 9½-horsepower outboard motor valued at $375 was stolen from the transom of a small boat in the third-level parking area of a View Street parking garage between Sept. 7 and 14.

Victoria police said the owner of the engine is John McLeod, 1147 Quadra.

Plant's Pot Size Based On Its Native Home

If carrying of one kind or another were not filled with surprises, it is doubtful whether it would attract so many devotees.

In the world of potted plants I find interest in the fact that large leaved philodendrons, dieffenbachias and the Rubberplants (Ficus) grow most successfully in pots seemingly out of proportion to the spread or height of the plant.

Palms and cacti share this peculiarity of liking small pots; pointing up once again the need of our knowing the name of every plant we strive to grow.

Sometimes we can learn the reason for their needs by visualizing the kind of soil, climate and indeed the total environment of the plant in its native home.

Philodendrons grow in warm steamy jungles, as do the dieffenbachias. Their soil is rich in loose organic matter deposited by the jungle trees, the birds and animals. The material lies on the surface; the plants require no deep or extensive roots to find nutrients or to act as anchors against gales because the jungle growth shelters each component plant by the density of the whole community.

Thus we bring a normally shallow rooting plant into our homes and try to make it conform to the habit of our temperate plants by giving it the same size of pot. The root systems of philodendrons and dieffenbachias are small in comparison to the top growth so fit the size of pot to the rootball, without crushing or crowding.

The soil mixture is made up of screened leafmould, screened soil from compost heap and some rather coarse sand for drainage. Pot firmly to get slower strong growth instead of fast, spindly, long shoots.

Palms and most larger cacti have deeply penetrating roots because they must go down in their search for moisture and traces of nutrients, to the water supply far below the dry surface of the areas where we find them growing naturally. Desert palms and jungle palms will be found to have the two differing types of root systems mentioned.

If we are wise, we provide pots which are much deeper than wide, palm pots they are called. In these, the deep roots may find their moisture among the soil particles between the stones we provide at the bottom for drainage.

We should not keep the surface soil of these plants constantly wet. An occasional complete watering suffices for many days. The deeper roots tolerate moisture better than do the surface roots and the stems at soil level. They soon rot in a damp soil.

Too large a pot for any of these plants results in a volume of soil containing no roots. Unused soil remains either soggy or dry as dust — both are inactive and undesirable as an environment for adjacent live roots.

Indoor gardeners tend to repot into large pots solely to overcome the topheavy condition of a tall plant in a small pot. This situation is easily adjusted by placing the pot inside a larger pot with a broader base; fill the space between, and beneath if necessary, with enough stones for balancing the weight of the top growth.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal, our South declarer overlooked a simple solution in his play of a game contract, and as a result he went down a trick. Can you find South's misplay and bring it to light?

East-West vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ 3 ♥
4 ♠ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♣.

Had West guessed to open a diamond, the contract might well have been defeated at the completion of trick four. East would have ruffed this lead, after which he would have cashed his club king. West signalling interest in a club continuation by playing the ten, if East now underled his ace to West's (presumed) queen, West would then have led another diamond for East to ruff.

But West elected to open the heart queen, his partner's bid suit, south ruffing the trick. The queen, king, and ace of trumps then gathered in the adversely-held pieces. Next came a low diamond to dummy's queen — as East discarded a heart. When play had ended, declarer had lost two diamonds and two clubs. What was his error?

Since South had two sure club losers in his hand, he should have set his sights on the best way of playing the diamond suit to avoid losing two tricks in it. When, after drawing trumps, he led the diamond deuce and West followed suit with the four-spot, declarer should have inserted dummy's nine. With the nine winning the trick, declarer would now have a fulfilled contract: six trump tricks and four diamonds.

Suppose, hypothetically, that East had captured the nine-spot with, let us say, the singleton ten. In this case, West would have started with the J-x-x originally, and would now have the tripleton J-x-x remaining. Upon regaining the lead, declarer would cash the queen, king, and ace of diamonds, felling West's three remaining pieces. South's fifth diamond would now become his game-going trick.

South's insertion of the diamond nine would have been a safety-play, designed to guard against West's possession of the five adversely-held diamonds. Admittedly, West certainly didn't rate to have the five missing diamonds. But South — had he thought of it — should have been perfectly willing to pay the premium of a potential overtrick in order to safeguard his game contract.

Harry noted the number in his little book. "It's easy to remember," he said. "I'll drop in on you one of these days after you've settled in."

"Do that. We'll be glad to see you," Greg told him. "But what's the gimmick about our number?"

"Simple," Harry smiled. "It's exactly eleven times the total of its digits."

"You figure it out!"

Local Girl Makes Good... Really Good!

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — In the highly competitive, intense world of ballet, it's rare to find a dancer so relaxed and detached about her work as Heather McCubbin, the latest ballet aspirant to make the long journey from Canada's West Coast to the London stage.

Ballet isn't everything — one doesn't want to be too dedicated," says petite, brown-haired Heather, now beginning her fifth year with the London Festival Ballet, Britain's second biggest dance company after the Royal Ballet.

After all, you can't go on dancing for ever. Ballet dancers usually reach their peak at 35."

Now 24, Heather has been training for ballet since she was six, studying in Liverpool — where she was born — Victoria and Vancouver, where her father is an insurance adjuster. But she seems happy enough as a senior member of the corps de ballet, with occasional solo spots, without striving ambitiously for the stardom of fellow British Columbian Lynn Seymour and Jennifer Penney.

KNOWS LIMITATIONS

Every dancer has her limitations and I know mine," said Heather in an interview. She has danced in a wide range of ballets — the Festival Ballet does more modern works than the Royal or Sadler's Wells — but prefers a demi-character role, something with a bit of acting in it.

'But It's Not World'

I just take life as it comes, don't think too far ahead," she smiled when asked how she sees her career shaping.

There are lots of things I'd like to do one day — I have lots of crazy schemes in my head." She is attracted by the thought of television acting and one day would like the time to take a cordon blue cookery course.

Meanwhile, her days are totally dominated by work — all-day rehearsals, currently eight performances a week in Swan Lake at the Royal Festival Hall, and only Sundays off.

A typical day at the huge hall on the south bank of the Thames starts at 9:30 a.m. or 10 a.m. with a warm-up session at the barre, followed by rehearsals until 6 p.m. with an hour's break for lunch.

Then there is just 90 minutes before the three-hour performance, and Heather finally gets home to suburban Golders Green by 11:30 p.m.

IS HARD WORK

She says it's harder work than the Royal Ballet school, for which she was accepted at an audition when the Royal Ballet visited Vancouver seven years ago on the last leg of a North American tour.

But the Vancouver girl finds time for friends and interests outside the tight-knit society of ballet, which she says can be narrowing in its effect. She reads voraciously in spare half-hours on the subway or snatched between rehearsals, believing the important thing is to keep your mind busy."

Most of all, she enjoys the travelling entailed in working for Britain's biggest touring ballet company. It usually spends five or six weeks a year touring in continental Europe and recent appearances abroad have taken it as far afield as Japan, Singapore, Korea and Kuala Lumpur in Malaysia.

Company officials hope the Festival Ballet may make its first Canadian tour in the next couple of years.

Heather looks forward to that, but has no idea how long she will continue in ballet.

I'll go on dancing just as long as I enjoy it," she says firmly, and no longer."

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

On Avoiding Loneliness

As a physician, I see many people who would be immensely happier, and actually would feel more healthy and have fewer aches and pains and miseries, if they could only get rid of some of their loneliness. If I, as their physician, am to help them, I must try to help them find ways of going out of their lonely rooms, into the company of people who will help them forget about themselves and their distresses.

Sometimes I can help them simply by talking to them, and telling them that they must stop thinking only of themselves. The best way to do this is to help others and live for others. Too many people, when they grow old, make no effort to maintain old friendships or to find new ones.

I sometimes tell them how I have managed to keep happy and healthy in my later years; I am happy to keep making new friends, and I like young friends. I particularly love to keep close to my children and their families, and to my brothers and sisters. I make a special effort to write and telephone them frequently, and to visit with them whenever possible.

Also, when I am asked what I got out of the 17 years I spent working in research laboratories, I say that I got some "wonderful friendships." My researches brought me the friendships of remarkable men who were doing good work that interested me. After my researches were over, the friendships remained.

For many years, whenever I heard of a scientist who had made a fine discovery, I would make a pilgrimage to see him and to get to know him, and my life has been much enriched by this.

Some people I see in my office make themselves lonely because of their tendency to indulge in certain bad habits, such as sarcasm. I point out that this is a most dangerous trait to have, and any young person finding that he has it should try at once to root it out. It may be fun to be able to say something clever or brilliant or biting, but if this has to be said at the expense of someone else, it may put a wound in that person's soul that will never quite heal. Often, it earns the speaker a life-long enemy.

I marvel how those many confirmed "kidders" in our midst can keep their friends. Often, as I watch the person they are teasing, I see that although he seems to be a good sport, he really is being hurt. I also wonder whether nicknames like "Shorty" or "Skinny" or "Pee-wee" may not hurt the person to whom they are attached. I prefer never to call a person by such a nickname, and I think we all would be wise to avoid them.

Some people may wonder why it is important to be friendly and to be of use in this world - and I can only say that I have seen many a person become ill and even occasionally die, simply because he or she had no friends and no purpose in life.

U.K. Labor Turns Down Price Freeze

LONDON (AP) — The high command of Britain's labor unions rejected today Prime Minister Heath's proposal for a voluntary year-long hold-down of wages and prices but offered to keep talks open.

The general council of the Trades Union Congress, representing 10 million organized workers, said it will draw up alternative proposals to put to the government at a future meeting, to be arranged.

The TUC's rejection came as no surprise. So far, Heath has sought to introduce a wages-and-prices policy on a voluntary basis but the government would introduce a compulsory freeze as a last resort, informed sources said.

Heath asked TUC leaders to keep wage demands down to £2 a week for the next year. He proposed that no labor union should get more than one pay raise in that time.

He also called on the Confederation of British Industries, which represents 12,000 companies, to limit price increases to five per cent for the same period.

In return, he pledged an annual growth rate of five per cent for Britain's limping economy for the next two years.

Heath clamped an immediate halt on wage claims in the public sector, a move seen by industrialists as a stopgap effort to stall the hefty pay claims coming from key industries.

Arctic Talks 'Exploratory'

Times News Services
OTTAWA — In a carefully-worded statement Tuesday, Jean Chretien, minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, described as "exploratory" the discussions that have taken place to date between Canadian officials and German representatives about proposed resource development and shipping in the eastern Arctic using ice-breaker freighters.

At the same time, sources in government said they expect official negotiations between Canada and West Germany on the shipping scheme to take place sometime this fall.

Chretien noted in his statement that "no commitments of any kind have been made."

"It is understood that the Germans may submit a proposal for co-operation with Canada in the research and development of an ice-breaking cargo ship."

Chretien added that no such proposal has been received.

In Vancouver Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield Tuesday called for a full disclosure of the shipping plan.

"The nature of the whole transaction should be made public by the prime minister," said Stanfield. "We should not be left in the dark."

Stanfield said the government should take every opportunity to develop Canadian resources, but he said they should also ensure that they are processed as far as possible in Canada and not shipped out "holus-bolus."

Ottawa 'Cop-Out' Slammed by NDP

Greater Victoria NDP candidates hammered out their party's environmental and taxation platforms Tuesday in Sidney and at the University of Victoria.

Victoria New Democrat Flemming Hansen told an audience of about 30 students that the federal government's department of the environment "is a deliberate attempt to mislead the public into believing that they are dealing with the environmental crisis."

"In fact," Hansen said, "it amounts to little more than a name change for the old department of fisheries."

The new department has virtually the same responsibilities and budget as the fisheries department had, he said.

"Also the Liberal government has responded to criticism by saying that environmental problems are basically under provincial jurisdiction. But is this merely a cop-out?"

"The federal government does in fact have sweeping powers under the constitution if it chose to apply them. It could enact paramount environmental legislation under the Seacoast and Inland Fisheries Act, Seaway Navigation Act, under the regulation of trade and commerce, and most important, the Criminal Code of Canada."

Hansen added that an amendment to the Criminal Code making pollution a criminal offence would not only discourage pollution, but would establish federal supremacy. Thus the federal government could set national minimum standards preventing some provinces from becoming pollution havens for irresponsible industries.

Esquimalt-Saanich candidate Roger Smith told Sidney Kinsmen that "as one sheep currently being fleeced" it was comforting to be able to speak to so many other sheep who were in the same situation.

The fleecing involved "handouts and charity" being paid to rich individuals and large corporations out of tax money paid by lower and middle income groups, Smith said.

"This happens because the rich can organize themselves into successful protest groups while the poor lack clout; and it happens because the economic dice are loaded to make the rich richer and the poor certainly no better off and in some ways even poorer."

Reviewing the consequences of the 1972 federal budget, Smith said the "corporate giveaways" in the budget would not guarantee that more jobs would be created.

"Corporate profits will increase," he said. "And we all know that corporate profits are soaring while their tax burdens are falling."

Smith said the New Democratic Party wanted to give personal allowances of $2,000 to single people and $4,000 to families so that their added purchasing power could stimulate the economy directly. He said it was no good to hope that corporations would allow their "welfare payments" to trickle down to the bottom to those who need the help.

Finances In Tune For Symphony

The financial situation of Victoria Symphony Society is now stabilized, according to a report presented at a board meeting Tuesday.

Guarded optimism colored the report in which acting finance committee chairman, A. Douglas Turnbull suggested that if support from all sources continued at its present level or improved, the end-of-season picture would be most favorable.

Sale of tickets for the season which opens this weekend has been exceptionally heavy and is expected to set a record in the society's 32-year history.

The official opening Monday at the Royal Theatre will have TV and radio coverage and will be complete with red carpet, flags and floodlights.

In memory of a symphony benefactor of many years, the late Dr. Leon Koerner who died this week, dedication will be made of the upcoming program's Tchaikovsky Pathétique Symphony.

Arrangements are in hand to make blocks of seats available to residents of Rose Manor and other senior citizens organizations who would like to attend final Royal Theatre dress rehearsals of symphony concerts.

The Symphony Society will ask for representatives from the Victoria Conservatory of Music and UVic music department to attend future board meetings.

But it's a happy, mutually beneficial experience.

Computer Cuts Boat Builder's Errors

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

A rented computer and a Victoria scientist's yen to build a boat has resulted in a breakthrough that could revolutionize the Canadian boat-building industry.

It's already been enthusiastically adopted by a French naval architect.

Astronomer Christopher Morbey, 30, of 2381 Barbara Place, stumbled on his discovery.

He explains: "I wanted to build a 23-foot power boat, doing everything myself including the lofting (taking the designer's plans and enlarging them in every detail to full scale.)"

Normally, lofting is a painstakingly slow process.

"Take, as an example, the last boat Philbrook's Shipyard built," says Morbey. "It took several weeks to do the lofting properly. Even the most experienced loftman finds it a very demanding job."

Using the tools he knows best — mathematics — Morbey decided to find a better way.

Feeding data into the computer he rented at the University of Victoria, he devised a system that will give him the first "computerized" boat in the area.

Morbey's system allows an amateur or professional boat-builder to construct a hull without using patterns, giving him final working or design dimensions to any scale that's needed.

Morbey stresses that, by using a computer, inaccuracies are almost eliminated.

The hull of his own boat, almost ready for fiberglassing, has less than a millimeter variance.

Morbey's discovery was adopted by a French naval architect due to similar boating aspirations by Morbey's father.

A retired naval commander living in Ottawa, he plans to build a 35-foot ketch, designed by Peter Ibold of Paris, to sail her to Victoria.

Morbey says that his father originally intended to rent a church hall so that he could carry out his lofting chores. Instead, he was able to get a shortcut by using his son's computerized system.

Enthusiastic about the new system, the elder Morbey sent his computerized working plans to Ibold, who is now making them available to all his customers.

Morbey's power boat is designed by John Brandimayr of Vancouver, whose Spencer-line sailboats are well known in these parts. Morbey reports that Brandimayr is considering enlisting Morbey's system for his next design.

Asked why the skyrocketing pleasure boat industry has not crashed the computer scene before now, Morbey says:

"The mathematics used for computer programming have only been available in the last decade at most.

"There's always been a lag between pure theorizing work and its application."

Morbey reports, however, that the United States' navy department is using computer output for its warships and the Swedish aircraft company of SAAB is doing the same thing for its new machines.

The Danish shipbuilding company of Computas is using a similar method for large ocean-going ships, also using a computer-driven cutting machine.

Morbey predicts that his type of system will eventually be adapted for use in other fields.

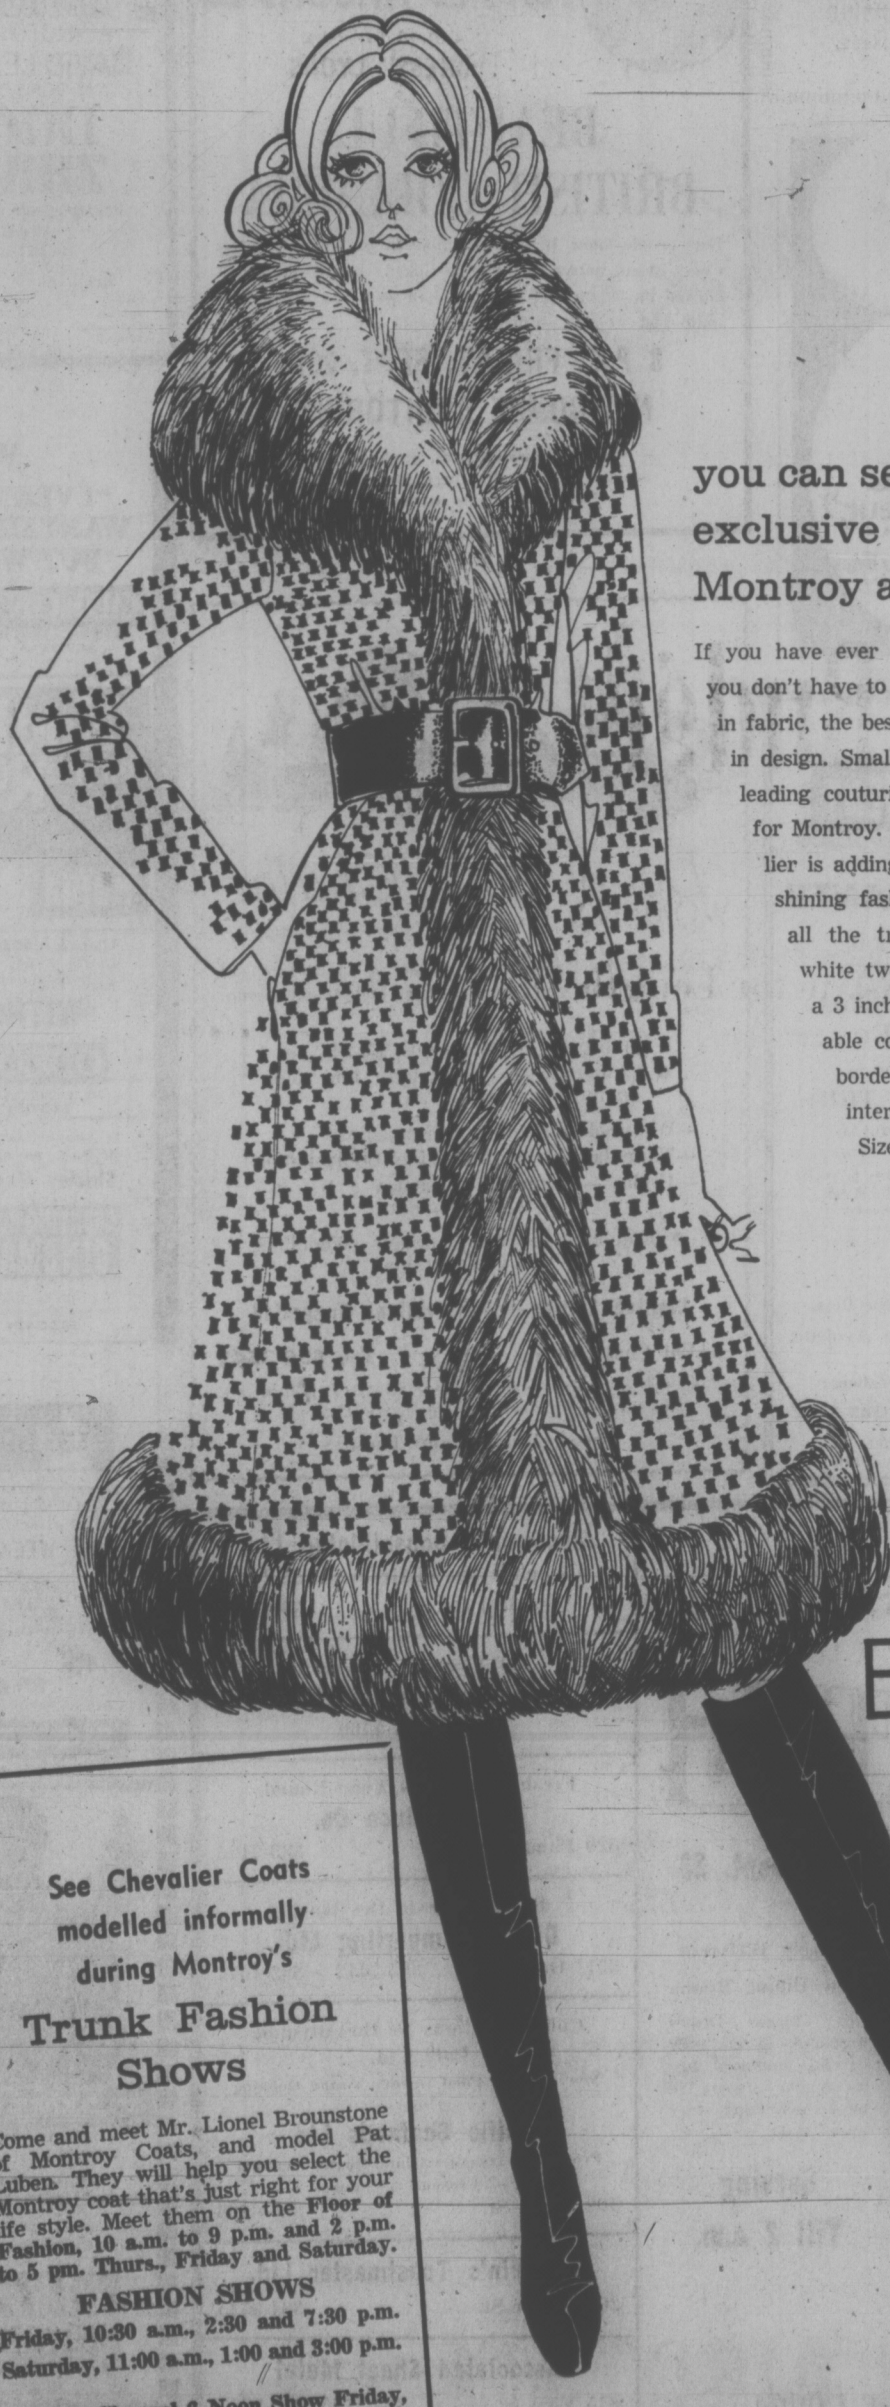

"It could be used, as an example, to lay out large laminated beams for arenas so as to get the curvature right."

Morbey won't forsake astronomy if his new theory is adopted en masse by the Canadian boat-building industry.

"If it really did catch on I'd still stay with astronomy. But I'd still have some part in it."

Builder Morbey sands the hull of his computer-plotted boat

Bankers Honor Students

Awards were presented recently to University of Victoria students enrolled in Institute of Canadian Bankers courses.

More than 50 local bankers, representing all the chartered banks in Greater Victoria, attended the annual awards meeting.

Those honored for receiving the highest marks in the Institute's evening extension program were: Mrs. Lorna Bullas, Mrs. Ann Peltier, Richard Foster and Lawrence Tong of the Royal Bank of Canada, and Roy Crick of the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Recital To Play Baroque

Baroque music will be highlighted in a chamber music recital at the Church of Our Lord, Humboldt and Blanchard, Friday at 8 p.m.

Lanny Pollet, graduate of Eastman School of Music in New York, will be featured on Baroque flute during the program which will include works by Telemann, Purcell, Vivaldi and Quantz.

Proceeds from voluntary offerings will go towards the Church of Our Lord organ restoration fund.

White Sox Pilot Gets Pay Raise

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago White Sox gave manager Chuck Tanner a one-year extension on his contract Tuesday with a "substantial raise."

Tanner, whose contract formerly extended through the 1974 American League baseball season, was given an extension into 1975.

Canada Threatens to Cancel Game

MOSCOW (UPI) — Team Canada said today it was prepared to cancel Thursday's tie-breaking match in the eight-game hockey series if a new dispute with Soviet hockey officials was not resolved.

"We're quite prepared to cancel the game if the Russians do not live up to the agreement," said Joe Kryczka, a Calgary attorney who is president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

He referred to an agreement the Canadians thought they had made with the Russians Monday that two West German referees who officiated in Sunday's game here would not work any others in the series. The referees, Franz Baader and Joseph Kompalla, came under heavy Canadian criticism after the game, which Canada won 3-2.

Kryczka said the Russians now wanted the Germans to officiate at the tie-breaker.

Because of the Germans officiating in Tuesday's game, the Canadians played short-handed for 17 minutes while serving a total of 10 penalties including a major to Phil Esposito and a 10-minute misconduct to Bobby Clarke — to only two for the Russians.

Kryczka told newsmen after an afternoon meeting at the V.I. Lenin ice rink that the Russians said they never agreed the West Germans would not officiate at the last two games — only that they would not handle Tuesday's contest.

The Canadians won that game 4-3, to even the series at 3-3-1. The referees were Rudolph Batja of Czechoslovakia and Uwe Dalberg of Sweden — the men Canada wants to officiate at the final match.

There was no word after today's meeting when the two sides would meet again to discuss the dispute. One Canadian source said it was possible they would get together tonight.

Speculation here was that the situation would be resolved by a compromise with one of the West German referees working with one of the other pair.

NO ONE GETS PEACE PRIZE

OSLO (AP) — The Norwegian Nobel Prize committee announced today it has decided not to award a Peace Prize this year.

A Nobel Committee spokesman gave no official reason for this year's decision. The prize money, approximately $100,000, will be kept in the Nobel fund.

Tanzania Troops Spotted

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — A Ugandan military spokesman said late Tuesday that a large convoy of vehicles carrying Tanzanian troops had been spotted moving through northern Tanzania towards the Ugandan border villages of Mutukula and Nikagati.

He added, in a statement broadcast by the government radio here, that boats "suspected to be carrying troops" had also been seen heading for the eastern Ugandan town of Tororo from Musinga, on the southern shore of Lake Victoria.

The spokesman warned: "If this is another planned provocation by Tanzania, the Uganda government should not be blamed for any repercussions that might come as a result of the movement of troops from Tanzania towards Uganda."

Less than 12 hours earlier the spokesman had claimed that India, Zambia and Tanzania were collaborating to plan a new attack on Uganda.

In Dar es Salaam, a Tanzanian spokesman today denied the latest Ugandan assertions.

An Indian High Commission spokesman has "categorically denied" this charge. He said, "The Uganda government has been misinformed, and there is no foundation to these allegations."

Both invasion claims followed Tuesday's reported statement by Somalia's foreign minister, Omar Arteh (Ghalib, broadcast by Radio Uganda, that he was "satisfied" with the outcome of his mediation between Uganda and Tanzania.

Did Signal Tip-Off School?

Saturna Island Free School residents had a signal system in operation which warned them when health officials were about to inspect the premises, Victoria county court was told Tuesday.

The school was closed last fall for alleged unsanitary conditions and is appealing the closure.

Senior medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread was asked by the school's counsel, William Sigurdson of Vancouver, why he had used an RCMP launch to pay a surprise visit to the school June 18, 1971.

Whitbread replied that it was necessary because every time he boarded a ferry at Swartz Bay a warning signal was sent to the school, triggering "rapid action to clean the place up."

He said that when he, four RCMP officers and public health inspector Daryl Anderson arrived, "we actually caught them with their pants down."

Whitbread described the school buildings as being "dirty and filthy." He said bottles, blankets and garbage were strewn on the floors. There were dirty dishes in the kitchen, he said, and traces of grease on kitchen counters.

Although there was food in the refrigerator, Whitbread said he wouldn't want to eat it because the doors and shelves were dirty.

There appeared to be no regular meals served, he said, and children seemed to be helping themselves to bread and cheese.

Victoria dentist Eugene Kaelis, whose son and daughter both attended the school, testified that he was "rather fussy about cleanliness" and had been completely satisfied when he visited the school.

Jim Campbell, whose property adjoins the school's site, also testified on behalf of the school.

U.S. Bugged
PoW Gifts, Says Hanoi

Times News Services

American anti-war activists travelling with three prisoners of war released by North Vietnam have disclosed a charge by Hanoi that U.S. packages mailed to POWs contained spying devices rigged into supplies such as cans of milk.

The group arrived in Moscow today after leaving Hanoi Monday and stopping over in Peking Tuesday.

The Pentagon called the charge ridiculous.

Cora Weiss, leader of the for Americans who went to Hanoi to receive the released servicemen, said: It looks to us an unmistakably professional job."

The charge was first made on the American delegation's second day in Hanoi, Sept. 17.

The activist delegation said they asked for evidence to back up the charge.

Deficit Rises

OTTAWA (CP) — The deficit in Canada's international balance of payments rose to $343 million at mid year, up $73 million in April, May and June. Statistics Canada reported today.

It compares with a surplus of $263 million in the first half of last year, and surplus of $848 million in all of 1971.

Jamaicans Lured
By Promises

OTTAWA (CP) — Jamaican women are being used as near-indentured servants, a provincial government report indicated Tuesday.

The women, the report says, are lured to Canada by flowing descriptions produced by Jamaican agencies and find themselves employed as domestics working long hours for pay far lower than they were told to expect.

The situation was revealed by two Ottawa university students working for the ministry of community and social services this summer.

They found that some of the women were told that they owed five years work to their employers, who had paid part of their transportation costs from the West Indies.

The students discovered the situation when they sent out letters offering assistance to new arrivals in Canada.

Among the replies they received were complaints from three women who told of poor pay — ranging from $75 to $100 a month — and long hours.

The letters told of loneliness and alleged inhumane treatment.

The report censures the immigration department and the Jamaican employment agencies for allowing the situation to continue.

The Afro Canadian Association says it plans to set up a local ombudsman agency to provide a more realistic picture of job opportunities and conditions in Canada for prospective immigrants.

The report suggested that placing domestics under the Minimum Wage Act might help curtail the problem.

Times News Services

Prime Minister Trudeau admitted Tuesday in Medicine Hat that the Unemployment Insurance Fund is running a deficit into "several hundred millions of dollars," but denied it as a scandal.

During a question and answer session Trudeau was forced for the first time in this campaign to defend the fund's deficit as a result of the current high unemployment rate.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has called the deficit a national scandal, and although he has defended other aspects of the unemployment insurance administration, the prime minister until Tuesday had avoided answering this specific charge.

During the question and answer period, attended by about 700 mostly friendly residents of the area, Trudeau was asked if the Unemployment Insurance Fund is in trouble.

It is not, the prime minister replied, even though there is a sizeable deficit.

He noted that some of the opposition have tried to make this a campaign issue, but insisted that the deficit was foreseen, given the high rate of unemployment, under recent changes in the legislation approved by the House of Commons.

I know it (the deficit) is into several hundred million dollars, but I don't see any scandal in that — that's the way the act was made," he stated.

The prime minister explained that under the new legislation, the federal government pays 100 per cent of the benefits — "gobs of money," he called it — when the unemployment rate exceeds four per cent.

He said that the exact amount of the deficit will be made known when the unemployment insurance Commission makes its regular report — he added he believed such reports are made four times a year.

Meanwhile, the Toronto Star says federal Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey has documents tending to disprove election campaign charges that the government's new unemployment insurance program contributes to unemployment by encouraging idlers to freeload.

The newspaper says in an Ottawa story an internal dossier claims that more rigorous examination of eligibility in the 12 months up to last Aug. 1 resulted in 742,000 claims for benefits being disallowed — an increase of 89 per cent over the previous 12 months period.

The Star says the dossier will be used by Mr. Mackasey in a stepped up defence of the insurance scheme, which has become a major campaign issue amid charges that administration is lax and benefits are so high that many prefer not to work.

Robert Stanfield met students, housewives, shopkeepers and a dog named Trudeau Tuesday in a varied day that saw him fly almost 1,000 miles to speak in support of one candidate.

The Conservative leader spoke on a radio program, conducted a brief interview, addressed his first meeting of university students of the federal election campaign and

Lewis Adds
Mac-Blow
To 'Bums' List

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mac-

Millan Bloedel Ltd. doesn't rate as high on David Lewis' list of "corporate welfare bums" as some corporations, "but it certainly knows how to take advantage of the corporate welfare system established for it by the Liberals and Conservatives."

Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, zeroed in on MacMillan Bloedel today in response to a statement Tuesday by J. V. Clyne, the chairman of the giant forest products company.

Clyne called on his fellow corporate chiefs to mount a vocal defence against NDP criticism of tax concessions to industry, saying Lewis was suggesting that major companies are "acting disreputably."

Lewis stepped off his aircraft in Vancouver Tuesday and eagerly welcomed news of the counter attack against his "corporate ripoff" campaign theme which is mounting among big business.

Told of Clyne's statement Lewis said he was "delighted."

"I would expect Mr. Clyne to be upset," said the NDP leader.

At a news conference today

the NDP leader stressed that he is not suggesting that corporations are being devious or are doing something illegal.

"We are not attacking the corporations; we are attacking the system which allows corporations to legally avoid paying their way," he said. "The only way one can dramatize what I am trying to say is by naming names and giving figures."

23.8 PER CENT

Lewis said he had checked with the NDP's research department and was told that between 1964 and 1971 MacMillan Bloedel had net earnings of $812.9 million on which it paid income tax of $193.2 million, for an effective tax rate of 23.8 per cent.

"If we had had real tax reform in 1971 and had closed the loopholes I am concerned about, Clyne's hard-pressed company would have paid something near the 48 per cent it is theoretically supposed to pay."

"I suspect the ordinary taxpayers of British Columbia had to pick up this shortfall... not only individuals but also large and small businesses in the manufacturing field."

Turner Praises
Monetary Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Finance Minister John Turner welcomed the United States' monetary reform proposals today as constructive and helpful.

Turner, addressing the International Monetary Fund and World Bank meetings, said he detected that delegations are "anxious and determined to press on with the work" of reforming the international payments system.

Turner then spoke of the problem of adjusting national currencies against other world currencies.

"There is a natural tendency for countries to give prime place to domestic stability, especially when in balance of payments surplus," he said. "But this tendency can lead to distortions in the international system. All of us must manage somehow to find that combination of our economic policy instruments which will not only satisfy our legitimate domestic objectives but also induce appropriate balance of payments adjustments."

The proposals were met with some hope in Europe, concern in Japan and moderate enthusiasm in the U.S.

"We will no longer sit back and be a patsie as we have in the past," said M. E. Norman, an investments counsellor in Houston. "It is a positive step to strengthen the dollar and it was anticipated." Sources in Brussels reported Europeans — particularly the French — are not eager to downgrade the role of gold. Also, they have rejected the link between monetary reform and trade reform insisted upon by Washington.

In Japan, the Mainichi Daily said finance ministry and Bank of Japan officials termed the plan "too bold for America's self-interest." They said the proposals would hit Japan on both "monetary and trade fronts."

Fourth Victim
For Strangler

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — A fourth teenage boy was attacked by a strangler Tuesday in a field in Waterloo.

The boy, 14, was crossing the field at about 10:30 p.m. when a man leaped at him, seizing him by the throat. The boy was able to fight off his attacker and was not choked into unconsciousness as were the first three victims.

FIRECRACKER
SALE BANNED

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald announced today he has banned the sale of firecrackers to the general public.

The minister said the ban, effective immediately, will restrict the use of firecrackers to persons licensed to use display fireworks under new conditions that will be implemented in the next few months.

The change will be made by tightening regulations applying to fireworks under the Canada Explosives Act.

Firecrackers already are banned by all Greater Victoria municipalities and some others across the country, but have been ineffective because they have not been applied universally.

U.S. Money Plan 'Revolutionary'

By HOBART ROWEN
The Washington Post
An Analysis

WASHINGTON — The United States seized the initiative on the question of monetary reform Tuesday, suggesting a bold six-point program that would end the special reserve role of the dollar and establish mandatory international rules to force necessary changes in exchange rates.

Treasury Secretary George Shultz presented the plan as a set of "ideas," rather than a "detailed blueprint." But its revolutionary sweep, as well as its detailed nature, was a big surprise for his audience, the delegates of the annual meeting of the World Bank and International Monetary Fund.

The average citizen would not see much of an impact from great changes in the monetary system, but would stand to benefit from the absence of repeated monetary crises if the reforms worked.

The underlying theme of the American suggestion is this: In contrast to the Bretten

Woods monetary system which allowed changes in exchange rates only when a nation's currency was in "fundamental disequilibrium," the American plan calls for compulsion to force changes, according to pre-determined rules, "and under appropriate international surveillance," when things get out of line.

The most important test would be the level of a nation's reserves. If they got to be too high, a nation would be expected to revalue its currency. If it resisted, it would be subject to certain sanctions — including an import surcharge put in effect by others.

Shultz made clear that no one could expect quick resolution of the "difficult, complicated, and controversial issues" that he had raised.

To get "stability without rigidity," Shultz organized his suggestions into these six headings:

The exchange rate regime — there should be a "central" or "par value fixed for each country, with those values assured by convertibility into "other international assets."

To dampen speculation, the allowable margin should be "sufficiently wide," with the dollar, like other currencies floating within that range.

The reserve mechanism — the SDRS (Special Drawing Rights) would replace the dollar as the "numeraire" of the system — that is, the unit in which other currencies are dominated. Gold would "not disappear overnight" but diminish in importance.

The balance of payments adjustment process — this is the heart of the proposal and

The Phoenix Rose To Stormy Challenge

Only 24 Hours Out, Greenhorn Sailors Ran Into Hurricane Ginger, Limped Back to Port, Dried Out, Made Repairs and Returned to Frey

Times Staff

The Scruggs family took its first sailing lesson in the middle of a hurricane.

They survived.

This week they headed their 36-foot sloop Phoenix into the Inner Harbor, 16,000 miles and 18 months later, some of the most seasoned sailors in these parts.

Bart Scruggs talked about

his family's "learning on the job" experience as his three oldest daughters, Dianna, 15; Debbie, 13, and Dolores, 12, cleared up topsides.

He and his wife, Lorene, and their five daughters (the youngest, Norma-Jean, is now five, and her sister, Elizabeth, six) had never been on a sailboat until they took possession of Phoenix in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

With stores aboard, on what was to be the trip Scruggs had dreamed about since a boy, they headed out to sea.

"We were so green just putting up the mainsail was quite a job," he recalled.

"Suddenly 24 hours out of Fort Lauderdale we found ourselves in the middle of Hurricane Ginger, being thrown about in huge waves with no idea in which direction we were heading!"

Friends ashore were relieved and surprised when the pummelled Phoenix limped back into port.

They were even more surprised when, dried out and her old seaworthy self again, the Phoenix and her intrepid crew started out again.

This time they made it.

Since that time the Phoenix has logged a course which has taken her all around the Bahamas, the island of Haiti, Jamaica, the Sanblas Islands off Panama, through the Panama Canal to the Perlas Islands in the Pacific, the Galapagos Islands and up the coast to Victoria.

Scruggs said some of the most uncomfortable sailing was not done in the brace of hurricanes and two tropical storms that they've weathered.

It was the attitude of the Haitians that gave them their worst moments.

"They were very inhospitable," Scruggs explains, "When we first entered their waters we were met by a gunboat loaded down with armed personnel. We didn't actually go ashore because all the beaches had armed patrols on them, it gave you an eerie feeling."

Mrs. Scruggs and the two youngest children left Phoenix at San Diego after a 43-day leg from the Galapagos, making the last trek home by bus.

Scruggs and the three oldest girls have taken a month to bring Phoenix up from San Diego.

"It was a difficult beat up," Scruggs said. The wind was against us and we had to tack, tack, tack."

Signs of the strain were in the faces of his all-girl crew. But, willing and able, they set out like old hands as the order to cast off came.

The final leg of Phoenix's odyssey was to the family home on Saturna Island where Scruggs is looking forward to sleeping in a house for the first time in 18 months.

His sailing days, however, are not over.

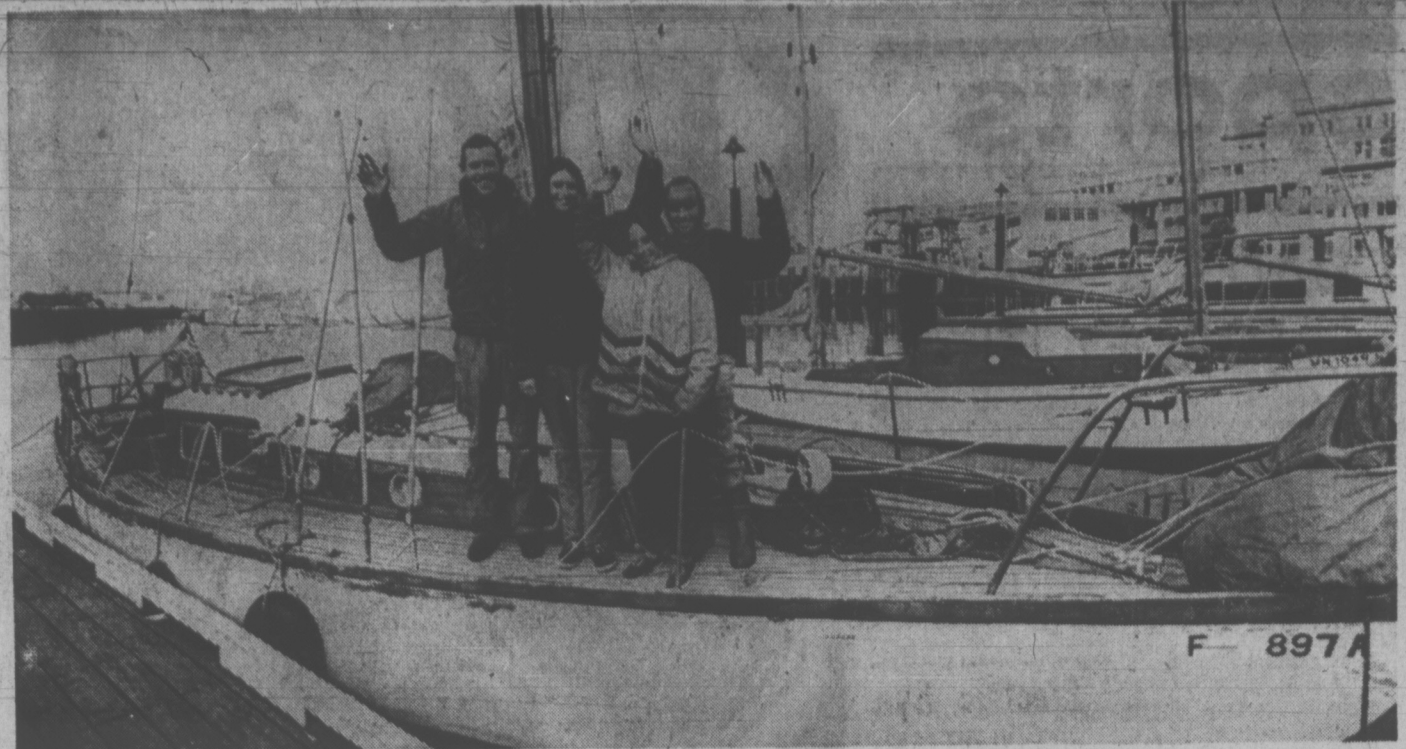

He's now setting his sights on entering the 1974 Victoria-Maul race.

The Scruggs girls may make history by becoming the first all-girl crew to enter the trans-Pacific classic.

Are they willing?

As they cast off lines, the answer comes loud and clear:

"Sure, after we've had a rest."

Bart, Dianne, Dolores and Debbie Scruggs . . . happy homecoming

FIVE-YEAR TERM FOR ROBBERY

One of the planners of an armed robbery Aug. 26 at a house at 211 Helmcken Rd. today was sentenced to five years in the B.C. Penitentiary in Westminister by Judge William Ostler.

Richard David Moyes, 19, of 2512 Douglas, was arrested by Colwood RCMP after five men, carrying rifles and wearing stockings over their heads, were seen walking down a driveway at the side of the house.

By coincidence, RCMP drug squad had the house under observation at the time.

Moyes pleaded guilty.

A total of nine shots were fired and the occupants of the house were robbed of $275.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said Moyes' rifle had a shell in it and "it's obvious that this young man was one of the planners."

Council Delays Causeway Ban

Operators of sightseeing vehicles based on the Causeway won't be immediately banned from parking there, city hall sources indicated today.

The ban had been recommended by the public works committee but council is not expected to give approval at its meeting Thursday.

Instead, one alderman said today, council will probably refer the matter back to committee so that the companies concerned can make representations.

The change of attitude resulted from discussion Tuesday at council's committee of the whole.

Meanwhile, the operators themselves have requested a meeting with city hall to discuss the situation and see what can be done to remove the problems which have been the subject of frequent council complaints over recent months.

For the past seven years the sightseeing firms have been allowed to use eight street parking spaces on the Causeway opposite the Empress, but recently council members have complained that the privilege has been exceeded.

The resulting congestion and "huckstering" among the competing operators should not be tolerated, says Mayor Peter Pollen.

In recommending the Causeway parking ban last week the public works committee also proposed that the operators should be allowed four parking spaces elsewhere, and left traffic engineer Dave Campbell to suggest on which street these should be permitted.

Spokesmen for some of the bus companies said today that they had not been officially approached by city hall concerning the complaints.

"It seems reasonable to expect that if any of the sightseeing operators were creating problems that they would be contacted," said Jack Thomas, manager of Grey Line tours.

Ald. Percy Frampton, chairman of the public works committee, has said several times that the Causeway problems surrounding the parked buses tend to be exaggerated.

He claims that there is little or no congestion and that touring for business is now very subdued, and nothing like the nuisance or embarrassment it was some years ago.

A desperate situation of overcrowded schools has developed in rapidly-growing parts of the Sooke school district.

As a result, the school board has cut off enrolment at two of the schools, Savory and Happy Valley Elementary.

District superintendent E. E. Hyndman describes class sizes in the schools of the Colwood-Langford area as being at a "critical level."

Much of the problem, he said, has been caused by a combination of rapid growth in the area's subdivisions and the effects of this summer's three-month construction shut-down.

The district has 18 classrooms under construction, but none of them will be ready for use before February.

During the past week, parents attempting to register

their children in Savory and Happy Valley schools have had to be turned away and directed to other schools in the district.

Hyndman says some of these other schools are not that far away, but it is still an inconvenience to parents and children.

Under department of education regulations, the district is allowed to hire more staff to handle the extra students enrolled in its schools. But the problem is that there is no space to put the children in.

The superintendent said portable classrooms are being used to capacity at various schools and that activity rooms and even basement are being pressed into service rooms, considered unsatisfactory for classroom teaching, to handle the overflow of students.

Sooke district enrolment climbed about five per cent

this year over last, Hyndman said, but the Colwood-Langford area experienced a growth rate of 12 per cent.

"We put extra room in some of the schools, but it just wasn't enough," he said. "There is no way of knowing, no way of planning ahead for this kind of growth."

The Sooke school board is presenting a capital referendum to its ratepayers on Dec. 9 this year. Hyndman says about $2 million of classroom construction is involved.

With the district expected to grow by about 400 students again next year, the referendum will be of critical importance to the overcrowding situation, he said.

Until February, he said, the schools will just have to make do with the space that is available, after which the new classrooms will be used and the problem eased to some degree.

Save Christmas Hill!

Unspoiled Area Ideal For Teaching Ecology

125 and 150 acres of land would be involved in the proposal, including the area immediately surrounding Swan Lake.

The two areas would be joined across McKenzie by a narrow corridor of green belt which could have a nature trail threaded through it.

Loney said Second Century projects must be unique and stand on their own merits.

One of the species of plant life found on Christmas Hill is lupin, growing wild in quantities found no other place in the metropolitan area.

Most of the land on and around Christmas Hill is owned by a few people, which the committee was told would make its acquisition easier.

One family canvassed earlier by university and provincial botanists indicated they would be willing to give up their holdings as long as the land was to be preserved for public use.

"I think we have some responsibility for the future," said committee chairman Ald. Frank Waring regarding preservation of the hill.

Loney said the proposal fits into Saanich green belt planning, although green belt acquisition terms of reference are not aimed exclusively at nature conservation areas.

Ald. Edith Gunning asked why Loney rejected two other areas suggested for acquisition under the National Second Century Fund — Gordon Point and Mystic Springs.

Loney said Gordon Point on Gordon Head was turned down because of an access problem involving narrow streets in a developed residential area and the fact that it has no special ecological value.

Mystic Springs (at Cadboro Bay) also is in a built-up area and was thought to be too small for the purpose.

Planners will draw up a detailed proposal within a few weeks to enable council to make a comprehensive submission for Christmas Hill.

Student to Seek Election As Progressive Independent

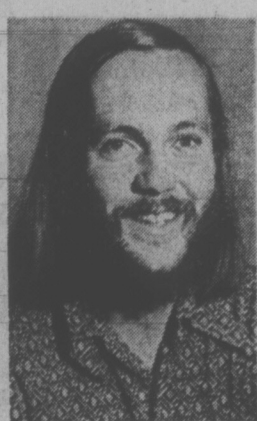

A 21-year-old Camosun College student has announced he will run in the Oct. 30 federal election as a Progressive Independent candidate in Victoria riding.

Dan Heffernan said he is running because he sees the need to bring up issues that have not been touched by party-affiliated candidates.

He said he's had a real interest in politics since he was 13, filed his nomination papers Tuesday and plans to run a tight campaign costing $200.

"Victoria needs an independent representative," he said, predicting a minority government would be elected, giving any independent politician a vital role.

Heffernan, who is married and lives at 2705 Seaview with his parents, has spent two years as a B.C. government surveyor — a job which he says has given him a bird's eye view into most of the problems facing the province.

... $200 campaign

If elected he promises to draw up a housing bill.

"If I can push it through another party, I'll try to get it through myself."

"The housing situation has got to be changed to make it possible for young people to buy their own house." He said at least 70 per cent of young people in Victoria would like to invest in their own home.

In a wide-ranging platform, he supports the idea of a guaranteed annual income, and wants to see more federally supported drug prevention and cure programs.

A second year student majoring in history and political science, he sees little problem in trying to relate to the elderly voters in the riding. His flexible guaranteed income plan would be applicable to pensioners, students with a passing grade, welfare recipients and the unemployed.

Ask the Times

Q. Could you tell me the common and botanical names of the wild sweet-peas that grow on the cliffs near Dallas and Cook? They are a sort of cerise color. — P.W.

A. This attractive flower is called the Everlasting Pea, according to Victoria municipal horticulturalist Ron Edwards. "Actually in spite of its looks we consider this flower a bit of a weed, since it takes some containing," Edwards said. The Everlasting Pea is a member of the species Lathyrus Odoratus.

Q. Where can I get a complete copy of the Canadian regulations for non-licensed amateur broadcasters? G.D.

A. Copies can be obtained from the federal department of communications in Ottawa.

Q. How deep does the ground freeze around Prospect Lake? — P.H.

A. In the coldest weather the freeze goes about one foot deep.

Hot Sewage Plan Considered For Ship Lanes

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A study will be made this winter of the possibility of using heated effluent to keep Great Lakes channels open during the winter months.

Col. Myron Snoko, with the Detroit district of the army corps of engineers, said Monday that if study results are favorable a pilot test may be conducted the following winter.

Col. Snoko addressed the seaway, navigation and commerce committee meeting in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Great Lakes Commission in suburban Minneapolis.

The committee heard a report on progress in a three-year demonstration program working on the feasibility of extending the navigation season on the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway to a full 2 months. Snoko is chairman of the working committee for the program.

"We're going to make a study of whether warm effluent from, say a conventional power plant could be used in an acceptable manner to help maintain commercial navigation channels ice free," Snoko explained further in an interview.

Col. Snoko also told the committee that a so-called bubbler system may be tested in the Duluth-Superior harbor this winter to ease the passage of vessels in and out of the harbor during late season shipping.

A bubbler, which was tried on an experimental basis in Duluth two winters ago and has been tried in the St. Mary's River between Lake Superior and Lake Huron, causes movement of warmer water at the lake bottom to the top.

"No heat is introduced into the water," Col. Snoko stressed. "The bubbler just brings up the warmer water from the bottom and helps keep ice from forming on the surface."

The bubbler is a small plastic pipe containing tiny holes through which compressed air is forced. The pipe is placed near the lake bottom and the air bubbles rise to the surface, facilitating circulation of the water.

Canada Threatens to Cancel Game

MOSCOW (UPI) — Team Canada said today it was prepared to cancel Thursday's tie-breaking match in the eight-game hockey series if a new dispute with Soviet hockey officials were not resolved.

"We're quite prepared to cancel the game if the Russians do not live up to the agreement," said Joe Kryczka, a Calgary attorney who is president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

He referred to an agreement the Canadians thought they had made with the Russians Monday that two West German referees who officiated in Sunday's game here would not work any others in the series.

The referees, Franz Baader and Joseph Kompalla, came under heavy Canadian criticism after the game, which Canada won 3-2.

Kryczka said the Russians now wanted the Germans to officiate at the tie-breaker.

Because of the Germans officiating in Tuesday's game, the Canadians played short-handed for 17 minutes while serving a total of 10 penalties — including a major to Phil Esposito and a 10-minute misconduct to Bobby Clarke — to only two for the Russians.

Kryczka told newsmen after an afternoon meeting at the V.I. Lenin ice rink that the Russians said they never agreed the West Germans would not officiate at the last two games — only that they would not handle Tuesday's contest.

The Canadians won that game 4-3, to even the series at 3-3-1. The referees were Rudolph Batja of Czechoslovakia and Uwe Dalberg of Sweden — the men Canada wants to officiate at the final match.

There was no word after today's meeting when the two sides would meet again to discuss the dispute. One Canadian source said it was possible they would get together tonight.

Speculation here was that the situation would be resolved by a compromise with one of the West German referees working with one of the other pair.

UIC Deficit No Scandal — Trudeau

Times News Services

Prime Minister Trudeau admitted Tuesday in Medicine Hat that the Unemployment Insurance Fund is running a deficit into "several hundred millions of dollars," but denied it is a scandal.

During a question and answer session, Trudeau was forced for the first time in this campaign to defend the fund's deficit as a result of the current high unemployment rate.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has called the deficit a national scandal, and although he has defended other aspects of the unemployment insurance administration, the prime minister until Tuesday had avoided answering this specific charge.

During the question and answer period, attended by about 700 mostly friendly residents of the area, Trudeau was asked if the Unemployment Insurance Fund is in trouble.

It is not, the prime minister replied, even though there is a sizeable deficit.

He noted that some of the opposition have tried to make this a campaign issue, but insisted that the deficit was foreseen, given the high rate of unemployment, under recent changes in the legislation approved by the House of Commons.

I know it (the deficit) is into several hundred million dollars, but I don't see any scandal in that — that's the way the act was made," he stated.

The prime minister explained that under the new legislation, the federal government pays 100 per cent of the benefits — "gobs of money," he called it — when the unemployment rate exceeds four per cent.

He said that the exact amount of the deficit will be made known when the unemployment insurance Commission makes its regular report.

He added he believed such reports are made four times a year.

Meanwhile, the Toronto Star says federal manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey has documents tending to disprove election campaign charges that the government's new unemployment insurance program contributes to unemployment by encouraging idlers to freeload.

The newspaper says in an Ottawa story an internal dossier claims that more rigorous examination of eligibility in the 12 months up to last Aug. 1 resulted in 742,000 claims for benefits being disallowed — an increase of 89 per cent over the previous 12-month period.

The Star says the dossier will be used by Mr. Mackasey in a stepped up defence of the insurance scheme, which has become a major campaign issue amid charges that administration is lax and benefits are so high that many prefer not to work.

Robert Stanfield met students, housewives, shopkeepers and a dog named Trudeau Tuesday in a varied day that saw him fly almost 1,000 miles to speak in support of one candidate.

The Conservative leader spoke on a radio program, conducted a brief interview, addressed his first meeting of university students of the federal election campaign and

NO ONE GETS PEACE PRIZE

OSLO (AP) — The Norwegian Nobel Prize committee announced today it has decided not to award a Peace Prize this year.

A Nobel Committee spokesman gave no official reason for this year's decision. The prize money, approximately $100,000, will be kept in the Nobel fund.

Tanzania Troops Spotted

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — A Ugandan military spokesman said late Tuesday that a large convoy of vehicles carrying Tanzanian troops had been spotted moving through northern Tanzania towards the Ugandan border villages of Mutukula and Nikagati.

He added, in a statement broadcast by the government radio here, that boats "suspected to be carrying troops," had also been seen heading for the eastern Ugandan town of Tororo from Musoma, on the southern shore of Lake Victoria.

The spokesman warned: "If this is another planned provocation by Tanzania, the Uganda government should not be blamed for any repercussions that might come as a result of the movement of troops from Tanzania towards Uganda."

Less than 12 hours earlier the spokesman had claimed that India, Zambia and Tanzania were collaborating to plan a new attack on Uganda.

In Dares Salaam, a Tanzanian spokesman today denied the latest Ugandan assertions.

An Indian High Commission spokesman has "categorically denied" this charge. He said, "The Uganda government has been misinformed, and there is no foundation to these allegations."

Both invasion claims followed Tuesday's reported statement by Somalia's foreign minister, Omer Arteh Ghalib, broadcast by Radio Uganda, that he was "satisfied" with the outcome of his mediation between Uganda and Tanzania.

BAREFOOTING through Calgary's first big snow of the season, a country visitor flees from famous western hospitality. Police with tranquilizer guns and shotguns pursued the full-grown black bear through city streets until he finally made a getaway back to the wilderness.

Did Signal Tip-Off School?

Saturna Island Free School residents had a signal system in operation which warned them when health officials were about to inspect the premises, Victoria county court was told Tuesday.

The school was closed last fall for alleged unsanitary conditions and is appealing the closure.

Senior medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread was asked by the school's counsel, William Sigurgeirson of Vancouver, why he had used an RCMP launch to pay a surprise visit to the school June 18, 1971.

Whitbread replied that it was necessary because every time he boarded a ferry at Swartz Bay a warning signal was sent to the school, triggering "rapid action to clean the place up."

He said that when he, four RCMP officers and public health inspector Daryl Anderson arrived, "we actually caught them with their pants down."

Whitbread described the school buildings as being "dirty and filthy." He said bottles, blankets and garbage were strewn on the floors. There were dirty dishes in the kitchen, he said, and traces of grease on kitchen counters.

Although there was food in the refrigerator, Whitbread said he wouldn't want to eat it because the doors and shelves were dirty.

There appeared to be no regular meals served, he said, and children seemed to be helping themselves to bread and cheese.

Victoria dentist Eugene Kaellis, whose son and daughter both attended the school, testified that he was "rather fussy about cleanliness" and had been completely satisfied when he visited the school.

Jim Campbell, whose property adjoins the school's site, also testified on behalf of the school.

Lewis Adds Mac-Blow To 'Bums' List

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. doesn't rate as high on David Lewis' list of "corporate welfare bums" as some corporations, "but it certainly knows how to take advantage of the corporate welfare system established for it by the Liberals and Conservatives."

Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, zeroed in on MacMillan Bloedel today in response to a statement Tuesday by J. V. Clyne, the chairman of the giant forest products company.

Clyne called on his fellow corporate chiefs to mount a vocal defence against NDP criticism of tax concessions to industry, saying Lewis was suggesting that major companies are "acting disreputably."

Lewis stepped off his aircraft in Vancouver Tuesday and eagerly welcomed news of the counter attack against his "corporate ripoff" campaign theme which is mounting among big business.

Told of Clyne's statement Lewis said he was "delighted."

"I would expect Mr. Clyne to be upset," said the NDP leader.

At a news conference today the NDP leader stressed that he is not suggesting that corporations are being devious or are doing something illegal.

"We are not attacking the corporations; we are attacking the system which allows corporations to legally avoid paying their way," he said. "The only way one can dramatize what I am trying to say is by naming names and giving figures."

23.8 PER CENT

Lewis said he had checked with the NDP's research department and was told that between 1964 and 1971 MacMillan-Bloedel had net earnings of $812.9 million on which it paid income tax of $193.2 million, for an effective tax rate of 23.8 per cent.

"If we had had real tax reform in 1971 and had closed the loopholes I am concerned about, Clyne's hard-pressed company would have paid something near the 48 per cent it is theoretically supposed to pay."

"I suspect the ordinary taxpayers of British Columbia had to pick up this shortfall ... not only individuals but also large and small businesses in the manufacturing field."

Turner Praises Monetary Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Finance Minister John Turner welcomed the United States' monetary reform proposals today as constructive and helpful.

Turner, addressing the International Monetary Fund and World Bank meetings, said he detected that delegations are "anxious and determined to press on with the work" of reforming the international payments system.

Turner then spoke of the problem of adjusting national currencies against other world currencies.

"There is a natural tendency for countries to give prime place to domestic stability, especially when in balance of payments surplus," he said. "But this tendency can lead to distortions in the international system. All of us must manage somehow to find that combination of our economic policy instruments which will not only satisfy our legitimate domestic objectives but also induce appropriate balance of payments adjustments."

The proposals were met with some hope in Europe, concern in Japan and moderate enthusiasm in the U.S.

"We will no longer sit back and be a patie as we have in the past," said M. E. Norman, an investments counselor in Houston. "It is a positive step to strengthen the dollar and it was anticipated." Sources in Brussels reported Europeans — particularly the French — are not eager to downgrade the role of gold. Also, they have rejected the link between monetary reform and trade reform insisted upon by Washington.

In Japan, the Mainichi Daily said finance ministry and Bank of Japan officials termed the plan "too bold for America's self-interest." They said the proposals would hit Japan on both "monetary and trade fronts."

Fourth Victim For Strangler

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — A fourth teen-age boy was attacked by a strangler Tuesday in a field in Waterloo.

The boy, 14, was crossing the field at about 10:30 p.m. when a man leaped at him, seizing him by the throat. The boy was able to fight off his attacker and was not choked into unconsciousness as were the first three victims.

U.S. Bugged PoW Gifts, Says Hanoi

Times News Services

American anti-war activists travelling with three prisoners of war released by North Vietnam have disclosed a charge by Hanoi that U.S. packages mailed to POWs contained spying devices rigged to supply such as cans of milk.

The group arrived in Moscow today after leaving Hanoi Monday and stopping over in Peking Tuesday.

The Pentagon called the charge ridiculous.

Cora Weiss, leader of the for Americans who went to Hanoi to receive the released servicemen, said: "It looks to us an unmistakably professional job."

The charge was first made on the American delegation's second day in Hanoi, Sept. 17.

The activist delegation said they asked for evidence to back up the charge.

NEWS BRIEFS

Ugandans Due

OTTAWA (CP) — The first group of 145 immigrants from Uganda is scheduled to arrive at Dorval Airport in Montreal at 1:15 a.m. Thursday, the immigration department said today.

Israel 'Sent Bombs'

BEIRUT (AP) — Syria and Egypt have suggested Israel was behind the series of letter bombs mailed to its embassies abroad, and the large number of bombs intercepted before they reached their destination proved the point.

Viet Talks Hastened

PARIS (Reuters) — Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's foreign policy adviser, went into a second straight day of vital talks with North Vietnamese negotiators today, aimed at settling the Vietnam conflict before U.S. presidential elections in November.

Jamaicans Lured By Promises

OTTAWA (CP) — Jamaican women are being used as near-indentured servants, a provincial government report indicated Tuesday.

The women, the report says, are lured to Canada by glowing descriptions produced by Jamaican agencies and find themselves employed as domestics working long hours for pay far lower than they were told to expect.

The situation was revealed by two Ottawa university students working for the ministry of community and social services this summer.

They found that some of the women were told that they owed five years work to their employers, who had paid part of their transportation costs from the West Indies.

The students discovered the situation when they sent out letters offering assistance to new arrivals in Canada.

Among the replies they received were complaints from three women who told of poor pay — ranging from $75 to $100 a month — and long hours.

The letters told of loneliness and alleged inhumane treatment.

The report censures the immigration department and the Jamaican employment agencies for allowing the situation to continue.

The Afro Canadian Association says it plans to set up a local ombudsman agency to provide a more realistic picture of job opportunities and conditions in Canada for prospective immigrants.

The report suggested that placing domestics under the Minimum Wage Act might help curtail the problem.

U.S. Money Plan 'Revolutionary'

By ROBERT ROWEN
The Washington Post
An Analysis

WASHINGTON — The United States seized the initiative on the question of monetary reform Tuesday, suggesting a bold six-point program that would end the special reserve role of the dollar and establish mandatory international rules to force necessary changes in exchange rates.

Treasury Secretary George Shultz presented the plan as a set of "ideas," rather than a "detailed blueprint." But its revolutionary sweep, as well as its detailed nature, was a big surprise for his audience, the delegates of the annual meeting of the World Bank and International Monetary Fund.

The average citizen would not see much of an impact from great changes in the monetary system, but would stand to benefit from the absence of repeated monetary crises if the reforms worked.

The underlying theme of the American suggestion is this: In contrast to the Bretton

Woods monetary system which allowed changes in exchange rates only when a nation's currency was in "fundamental disequilibrium," the American plan calls for compulsion to force changes, according to pre-determined rules, "and under appropriate international surveillance," when things get out of line.

The most important test would be the level of a nation's reserves. If they got to be too high, a nation would be expected to revalue its currency. If it resisted, it would be subject to certain sanctions — including an import surcharge put in effect by others.

Shultz made clear that no one could expect quick resolution of the "difficult, complicated, and controversial issues" that he had raised.

To get "stability without rigidity," Shultz organized his suggestions into these six headings:

The exchange rate regime — there should be a "central" or "par value fixed for each country, with those values assured by convertibility into "other international assets."

To dampen speculation, the allowable margin should be "sufficiently wide," with the dollar, like other currencies floating within that range.

The reserve mechanism — the SDRs (Special Drawing Rights) would replace the dollar as the "numeraire" of the system — that is, the unit in which other currencies are dominated. Gold would "not disappear overnight" but diminish in importance.

The balance of payments adjustment process — this is the heart of the proposal and

FIRECRACKER SALE BANNED

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald announced today he has banned the sale of firecrackers to the general public.

The minister said the ban, effective immediately, will restrict the use of firecrackers to persons licensed to use display fireworks under new conditions that will be implemented in the next few months.

The change will be made by tightening regulations applying to fireworks under the Canada Explosives Act.

Firecrackers already are banned by all Greater Victoria municipalities and some others across the country, but have been ineffective because they have not been applied universally.

Options Many, Varied For Peninsula Growth

Five alternatives for future residential development on southern Vancouver Island are outlined in a report released today by the Capital Regional District's planning department.

The report makes recommendations as to which of the alternatives should be selected.

The choices given by the planners:

1. Continuing present policies, or making some modifications;
2. Directing residential development into the Highlands;
3. Directing development into Langford, Colwood and Metcheson;
4. Increasing development on the Saanich Peninsula, and in the urban core;
5. Establishing satellite towns in Central Saanich and Colwood.

"At this stage, it is not possible to say which of the alternatives best fulfills residential land use needs. Each has some advantages and disadvantages.

"However, those which are considered inappropriate should be eliminated at the outset so that attention can be focused on the remainder," the report says.

One of the alternatives, or parts of several of them, could be selected as a residential land use pattern to form the basic framework of a new regional plan.

"Some uniform policy is necessary in order to assure that events which take place in one area do not adversely affect people who live in another," the report says.

The satellite-town alternative ran into quick opposition from Central Saanich Mayor Archibald Galbraith.

The towns would accommodate 30,000 people, at Latoria in Colwood and Turgoose Point (an Indian reserve) in Central Saanich.

Galbraith called the alternative "a planner's dream."

He said the municipality already has a plan which will keep it five-sixths rural by the turn of the century.

He felt it would be a waste of good agricultural land and would deprive merchants already established in Sidney of local business.

Discussing the urban areas, the report envisages the Saanich population increasing to 143,100 from 65,100 by the turn of the century. Saanich planners, the report says, estimate that up to 226,000 people could be accommodated within urban containment areas.

Victoria's population would rise to 89,900 from 60,900 but continuation of present policies "will mean that the city will remain the economic and social focus of the region."

If present policies are continued, it would be possible for Oak Bay to grow to 34,400 from 18,400. The report noted that in the last 10 years, 60 per cent of residential construction was for multiple-family dwellings.

Esquimalt could grow from 12,900 to 21,400.

The report is expected to be discussed at regional board meetings next month.

REPORT 'LEAK' IRKS DIRECTOR

A director of the Capital Regional District board said today it was "totally irresponsible" for someone to have publicly leaked a planning department report on alternative residential land uses.

The report was officially released this morning, following an earlier unauthorized release. The report was due to be made public later this week, after regional board directors got their copies.

Jim Campbell, director representing the Outer Gulf Islands, was one of a number of directors yet to get a copy in the mail.

"It was totally irresponsible for one of the directors — I don't know who leaked it — but I will want to know," he said from his Saturna Island home.

"I don't believe in secrecy. I have attempted to have this matter discussed at the board. I just happened to pick up a paper and there was a complete report.

"If it was one of the staff, and I don't believe it is, he should be severely reprimanded.

"If it was an elected person, he should apologize to the rest of the board and make an undertaking not to do this sort of thing.

"I certainly will bring it up at the regional board if no one else does. I have already expressed my concern to the chairman and the executive director."

Director Raps Library Study

A community interest survey which found that most adults and students were in favor of a public library in a proposed high school at Burnside and Acorn was labelled "suspect" Tuesday.

Donald Miller, director of library services, said at a meeting of the Greater Victoria Public Library's board.

"There are lots of things in this survey that are suspect. The survey asks all sorts of questions but doesn't come up with the answers."

The survey, designed to determine the recreational and social needs of people in the area of the proposed high school, was commissioned by members of the Community Advisory Group, Saanich's municipal planning department and the Greater Victoria School Board's research and testing division.

Sixty per cent of 552 men questioned had said they would use a public library if it were located in the proposed school. Sixty-eight per cent of the women said they would, 68.7 per cent of the students.

Saanich Ald. Alan Newberry said he was pleased to see people putting libraries above "swimming pools and more traditionally glamorous types of things."

Esquimalt Ald. Art Mebs said he couldn't see the feasibility of placing public libraries in schools of an urban community.

Chairman Brian Tobin said libraries should be placed where people go, whether it be shopping centres or elsewhere. He pointed out that the new Victoria-Saanich branch library was only a mile away from the school site.

It was agreed that the use and services of the new branch should be assessed before considering putting a branch in the school, which Miller said he understood could be ready as early as 1974 if approved.

In other business: Miller told the board that former B.C. Centennial Committee chairman J. J. Wallace probably would officially open the new library 2:30 p.m. Oct. 16.

The sum of $1,000 was voted to hire a temporary clerk at the Oak Bay branch from Oct. 1 to Dec. 31. Miller said book circulation at the branch had reached a record 15,225 in August, almost rivaling the Saanich branch level.

It was agreed to use $5,000, received from the University of Victoria for a Canadian fiction collection, to buy other books.

The board voted to spend up to $2,000 on construction of an office for the head of the main library's circulation department.

Miller was asked to report on possible sites for a branch library in Gordon Head. Allowance for such a branch would be included in the 1973 budget.

Now It's Victoria General Hospital

A senior spokesman for doctors hinted in Victoria Tuesday that major changes are on the way across Canada in the delivery of health care.

Dr. Peter Banks, past president of the B.C. Medical Association and president-elect of the Canadian and British Medical Associations, was speaking at the official renaming of Victoria General Hospital.

"Large changes in the pattern of our work are on the horizon and we look forward to working harmoniously as a functioning unit in this city's health system with the new provincial government under a strong and independent and informed regional board," he said.

"It would appear that those who plan this nation's health care intend to make us, the doctors, no longer the servants of our patients but rather the servants of the state, and that we might well have progressive difficulty in putting the interests of our individual patients before that of the state."

Before 30 onlookers, including a dozen Sisters of St. Ann, Banks unveiled a plaque just inside the hospital entrance, a tribute from the medical staff to the Order which founded the former St. Joseph's Hospital in 1876.

Said Banks: "I have walked the wards of this hospital for nearly 20 years, and at all hours of the night and day I have seen the Sisters working within the hospital in many capacities, and on no occasion have I ever seen their dedication or their kindness falter."

The Sisters turned the 430-bed hospital over to the community earlier this year. It now is operated by the public Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society.

It was renamed Queen Victoria Hospital by the society's board, but the annual meeting in April voted in favor of the name Victoria General Hospital.

John Murray, acting executive director, said Tuesday in his remarks that retiring of the name St. Joseph's Hospital was the wish of the Sisters. The St. Joseph's School of Nursing will retain that name and the hospital's chapel will continue to be known as St. Joseph's Chapel, to be used by all clergy and for all faiths.
